Contents

List of figures viii
List of tables viii
Preface x
Acknowledgments xiv

Part I The interpersonal approach 1
1 Social phobia in interpersonal perspective: a conceptual framework and theoretical statement 3

Part II What is social phobia and what is its nature? 39
2 The received view: social phobia construed as a disorder (disease) of anxiety 41
3 The interpersonal outlook: social phobia construed as an extended fearful interpersonal pattern 89

Part III What causes social phobia? 109
4 Reductive dualism I: social phobia as a consequence of bodily (brain) defects with Adrianna Mendrek 111
5 Reductive dualism II: social phobia as a consequence of mental (cognitive) defects 143
6 Causality at the interpersonal level: a multi-causal analysis 159

Part IV Applications of the interpersonal approach 197
7 Assessment and functional analysis 199
8 Treatment: undoing and overhauling social phobia 222
Part V     Conclusions

9     Concluding remarks

   References
   Index

259
261
286
317