Iambic Poetics in the Roman Empire

This is the first book to study the impact of invective poetics associated with early Greek iambic poetry on Roman imperial authors and audiences. It demonstrates how authors as varied as Ovid and Gregory Nazianzen wove recognizable elements of the iambic tradition (e.g., meter, motifs, or poetic biographies) into other literary forms (e.g., elegy, oratorical prose, anthologies of fables), and it shows that the humorous, scurrilous, efficacious aggression of Archilochus continued to facilitate negotiations of power and social relations long after Horace’s Epodes. The eclectic approach encompasses Greek and Latin, prose and poetry, and exploratory interludes appended to each chapter help to open four centuries of later classical literature to wider debates about the function, propriety, and value of the lowest and most debated poetic form from archaic Greece. Each chapter presents a unique variation on how each of these imperial authors became Archilochus – however briefly and to whatever end.

Tom Hawkins is Associate Professor of Classics at Ohio State University. His work and teaching focus on iambic poetics and invective as well as animal studies and personhood.
Iambic Poetics in the Roman Empire

TOM HAWKINS
Ohio State University
For Madeleine and Phoebe
Table of Contents

Acknowledgements [page ix]
Abbreviations [x]

Introduction: the bitter Muse [1]
Introduction [1]
Post-Horatian iambic poetics [7]
Slurring Thersites’ words: dissimulated iambic poetry (Chapters 1–3) [9]
Prosaic pastures of the Muses: simulated iambic poetics (Chapters 4–6) [16]
Conjuring up Iambe: what the imperial era knew about iambic poetics [23]

1 Iambus delayed: Ovid’s Ibis [32]
Introduction [32]
Ovid’s iambic dissimulation [38]
Callimachus and the idea of ibidic invective [46]
Callimachus’ Ibis and Plato’s Phaedrus [51]
The geopoetics of washing ashore at Tomis [63]
Ruinng the New Year in Ovid’s Ibis [69]
Ibidic therapy as a remedy for exile [73]
Conclusions [78]
Interlude 1 “Bad artists imitate, great artists steal”: Martial and the trope of not being iambic [82]

2 Iambos denied: Babrius’ Mythiami [87]
Introduction [87]
Iambos and fable [89]
Choliambics that neither sting nor bite [93]
Preconditioning an iambic reading of Babrius’ fables [111]
The iambic mode in Babrius’ fables [118]
Babrius and Phaedrus [128]
Conclusions [134]
Interlude 2 Iambopoioi after Babrius [137]

3 The Christian ἰαμβοποιός – Gregory Nazianzen [142]
Introduction [142]
The Callimachean turn: Eis ta emmetra [146]
Gregory bites back at the dog [163]
Table of Contents

Gregory the holy man vs. the bishops [169]
Conclusions [178]

Interlude 3 Palladas and epigrammatic iambos [181]

4 Archilochus in Tarsus: Dio Chrysostom’s First Tarsian [186]
Introduction [186]
Ethical λοιδορία and ethical crisis in Tarsus [188]
Becoming Archilochean and theorizing λοιδορία [194]
Rereading Dio’s persona [198]
Dio’s Archilochean performance [206]
Conclusions [214]

Interlude 4 Begging with Hipponax [216]

5 Playful aggression: Lucian’s Pseudologista [220]
Introduction [221]
Lucian on the attack [225]
Fun with (fighting over) words [230]
The gauche aggressor [237]
The mouth of the barbarian [242]
Mock salvation on the kalends [250]
Conclusions [254]

Interlude 5 Neobule in love: the Ps.-Lucianic Amores [257]

6 Festive iambos: Julian’s Misopogon [262]
Introduction [262]
Updating iambic poetics [267]
The emperor’s beard [275]
Of Hellenes and barbarians [280]
Carnival at Antioch [286]
Conclusions [293]

Interlude 6 Iambic time travel: Julian the Egyptian on Archilochus [295]

Conclusions: becoming Archilochus [300]

Works cited [304]
Index of passages cited [318]
Index of Greek words [328]
General index [329]
Acknowledgements

I am grateful to a host of friends, family, and colleagues for their support while the ideas presented in this book came together. Bob Gregg, Richard Martin, and Alessandro Barchiesi patiently read early drafts, and Benjamin Acosta-Hughes offered invaluable advice as I was preparing to submit the manuscript for publication. Along the way, I benefited immensely from the feedback of Ewen Bowie, Andrew Dyck, Maud Gleason, Simon Goldhill, Fritz Graf, John Henderson, Anthony Kaldellis, Denise McCoskey, Ralph Rosen, Susan Stephens, and Tim Whitmarsh. Countless hours of conversation with Don Lavigne and David Smith lie behind my approach to iambos and, indeed, to classical scholarship and the art of living.

Ohio State gave generous support during the most important writing stages, and my students often served as helpful sounding boards for many of the ideas found in these pages (as well as others that deserved to be left out!). My department chairs, David Hahm, Fritz Graf, and Benjamin Acosta-Hughes, each provided mentorship and guidance along the way, and my colleagues Richard Fletcher and Sarah Johnston have sustained me with their humor and friendship when my energy flagged.

I am deeply indebted to Michael Sharp, Editor for Classics and Byzantine Studies, and his team at Cambridge University Press. The two anonymous readers presented a wealth of suggestions that helped me shape and sharpen the book into its current form.

Phil Smith taught me to love stories when I was a child, and Marsh McCall saved me from a career as an engineer. In addition to the people mentioned above, I have enjoyed and benefited from the friendships of Bruce Fudge and Louisa Shea, Allen Romano, David Larmour, Erica Kallis, Dana Renga, Pete Carey and Cyndi Stamps, Desieree Floyd, and Chris Witmore. My family has been a bulwark of love and encouragement, particularly my parents, who have shown me the way. Maddie and Phoebe, together with Maverick and Django, have provided endless distractions, and have always been ready to remind me of what is most important in life. And above all, I want to thank my wife Julia, who knows the true value of classics and who has taught me how to live deliberately and joyously.
Abbreviations

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Abbreviation</th>
<th>Description</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>IG</td>
<td>Inscriptiones Graecae. Berlin 1873–.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Abbreviations of journals follow L’Année philologique.

All translations, unless otherwise noted, are my own.

List of Abbreviations

Kühn

Lenz-Behr

Lightfoot

Lomiento

Masson

P.Bour.

PCG

P.Cair.Zen.

P.Dubl.

Perry

Pf.

PG

P.Hib.

P.Lond.inv.
Greek Papyri in the British Museum, London, referenced by inventory number.

PMG

P.Oxy.
The Oxyrhynchus Papyri. Egypt Exploration Society in Graeco-Roman Memoirs. London 1898–.

SH

SIG

Tarditi

W

Abbreviations of journals follow L’Année philologique.

All translations, unless otherwise noted, are my own.