CONTRACTS IN THE REAL WORLD

Contracts, the foundation of economic activity, are vital, fascinating, and misunderstood. Through a series of engaging stories – involving such captivating individuals as Maya Angelou, Clive Cussler, Lady Gaga, Paris Hilton, Martin Sheen, and Donald Trump – this book corrects the misunderstandings. Capturing the essentials of this subject and reviewing the classic cases, the book explores recurring issues people face in contracting. It shows how age-old precedents and wisdom still apply today and how contract law’s inherent dynamism cautions against exuberant reforms. The book will appeal to the general reader and specialists in the field alike, and to both teachers and students of contracts.

Lawrence A. Cunningham is the Henry St. George Tucker III Research Professor at the George Washington University Law School. He has been a professor of law and business for more than twenty years at Boston College, George Washington University, and Yeshiva University. Cunningham is the author of many books, notably The Essays of Warren Buffett: Lessons for Corporate America, and editor for many years of the leading treatise on contract law, Corbin on Contracts. His writing has appeared as op-eds in The New York Times, The Financial Times, and The National Law Journal.
Contracts in the Real World

STORIES OF POPULAR CONTRACTS
AND WHY THEY MATTER

Lawrence A. Cunningham

George Washington University Law School
For Stephanie,

My Dream Come True
CONTENTS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Annotated Contents</th>
<th>page xi</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Acknowledgments</td>
<td>xxiii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Introduction</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1. Getting In: Contract Formation .......................... 11

A. Gifts, Bargains, Reliance: MLK and BU
   - A Charitable Pledge
   - Estopping Aretha Franklin

B. Ads or Offers: Pepsi and Harrier Jets
   - “First Come, First Served”
   - Orders at the U.S. Mint
   - Jesting

C. Frolic or Acceptance: Boasts on “Dateline NBC”
   - The Curious Carbolic Smoke Ball
   - The Hole in One

D. Mutual Assent: Spyware and Secret Clauses
   - Two Ships Peerless

E. Policies or Pacts: The Cleveland.com Blogger
   - Mobil Coal’s Employee Handbook
   - Breaching Promises of Secrecy

2. Facing Limits: Unenforceable Bargains ................. 35

A. Unconscionability: Gail Waters’s Annuity Swap
   - Chasing Alaska Gold
   - Escaping Nazi Greece
   - The Christmas Dollar Joke

Contents

3. Getting Out: Excuses and Termination .......................... 59
   A. Mistake and Warranty: Madoff’s Ponzi Scheme 59
      The Forged Dime
      The Fertile Cow
      The Fake Stradivarius
   B. Impossibility and Force Majeure: Donald Trump 66
      The Uninsurable Roller Rink
   C. Infancy: Craig Traylor of “Malcolm in the Middle” 70
   D. Outrage: AIG’s Employee Bonuses 73
      E. Embarrassment: The New York Mets and Citi Field 78

4. Paying Up: Remedies ............................................. 84
   A. Interests and Limits: Paris Hilton and “Pledge This!” 84
      Clever Endeavor
      Vanessa Redgrave’s Losses
      Jack Dempsey’s Breached Bout
      Robert Reed’s English Misadventure
   B. Compensation: Paris Hilton and Hairtech 91
      The Hairy Hand
      The Beatles’ Recordings
   C. Markets and Mitigation: Redskins Season Tickets 94
      The Bridge to Nowhere
      Lost Volume Sellers
      Shirley MacLaine’s “Bloomer Girl”
   D. Stated Remedies: Sprint’s Early Termination Fees 99
      The Delayed Mausoleum
      Vanderbilt’s Traitorous Football Coach
   E. Specific Performance: Tyson Chickens and IBP Pork 104
      A Unique Manhattan Billboard

B. Blackmail: Michael Jordan’s Paternity 41
   The Blackmail of David Letterman
   Child Support
C. Palimony: The Rapper 50 Cent 44
   Lee Marvin’s Lover
D. Gambling: Octogenarian Powerball Sisters 49
E. Making Babies: Baby M, Baby Calvert 52
Contents

ix

5. Rewinding: Restitution and Unjust Enrichment . . . . . . .109
   A. Gratuity or Exchange: Caring for Aunt Frances 109
      Bascom’s Folly 110
      Emergency Surgery 111
   B. Mere Volunteers: Battling Alaskan Beetles 113
      The Plagiarism Informant 114
   C. Trailing Promises: Lena Saves Lee’s Life 116
      The Heroic Lumberman 117
      An Escaped Bull 118
   D. Novel Ideas: The Making of “The Sopranos” 118
   E. Off-Contract Remedies: Rod Stewart at the Rio 122

6. Writing It Down: Interpretation, Parol, Frauds . . . . . . .126
   A. Plain Meaning I: Eminem’s Digital Records 126
   B. Plain Meaning II: Dan Rather’s Last Broadcast 130
   C. Parol Evidence: The Golden Globes 132
   D. Scrivener’s Error: Who Owns the L.A. Dodgers? 136
      The Fraudulent Architect 138
      The Erroneous Deed 139
   E. Statute of Frauds: Cliff Dumas’s Phantom Radio Deal 141
      Jane Fonda’s Luckless Agent 142
      Elizabeth Arden’s Fortunate Hire 144

7. Performing: Duties, Modification, Good Faith . . . . . . .148
   A. Implied Terms: Butch Lewis and Maya Angelou 148
      Lucy, Lady Duff-Gordon 150
   B. Express Terms: Clive Cussler’s Movie “Sahara” 152
      TSM’s Tom Waits Recordings 155
      Lucy, Again 156
   C. Unanticipated Circumstances: Deutsche Building 157
      Unexpected Industrial Detritus 160
      Unexpected Landfill Needs 160
      The Salmon Fishermen’s Threat 161
   D. Accord and Satisfaction: Lady Gaga 162
      The Disputed Home Improvements 165
   E. Adjustment: Conan and “The Tonight Show” 167
8. Hedging: Conditions

A. Interpretation and Effect: Kevin Costner’s Bison
   - An Aborted Vineyard Sale 172
   - A Crop Insurance Caper 175
B. Order of Performance: Charlie Sheen and Warner
   - The Country Hotel Sale Bust 179
   - The Four-Stage Construction 180
C. Partial or Total Breach: Sheen and Warner II
   - An Accidental Bulldozing 182
D. Waiver: Sheen and Warner III
   - The Imbibing Professor 184
E. Substantial Performance: Sandra Bullock’s Lake House
   - The Wrong Plumbing Pipes 189
   - A Misplaced Living Room Wall 189
   - The Unrestored Peevyhouse Property 190
   - The Ungraded Gravel Lot 191

9. Considering Others: Third Parties and Society

A. Beneficiaries: Supply Chain Abuse at Wal-Mart
   - A Sweatshop in Brooklyn 194
   - Sally Beauty 200
   - Haagen-Dazs Ice Cream 202
B. Assignment: JP Morgan’s Cablevisión Loan
   - Sally Beauty 200
   - Haagen-Dazs Ice Cream 202
C. Interference: New England Patriots and StubHub
   - Amnesty for Ordinary Negligence 207
   - A Misleading Authorization 209
D. Torts: Katie Janeway’s Tragic Accident
   - Amnesty for Ordinary Negligence 207
   - A Misleading Authorization 209

Conclusion

Notes 217
Table of Cases 241
Index 247
ANOTATED CONTENTS

1. GETTING IN: CONTRACT FORMATION

Tools to distinguish enforceable promises from others – seals, writings, deals, and reliance – and to evaluate intention to bargain: offer, acceptance, and mutual assent.

A. Gifts, Bargains, Reliance: MLK and BU

Why bargains but not promises to make gifts are enforceable as contracts and how to tell the difference, using the case of Martin Luther King’s donation of his papers to Boston University.

B. Ads or Offers: Pepsi and Harrier Jets

The difference between an unenforceable ad and an enforceable offer, using the case of a consumer’s effort to hold Pepsi to a deal for a military fighter jet based on a humorous television commercial.

C. Frolic or Acceptance: Boasts on “Dateline NBC”

The difference between mere talk and valid offers that can be accepted to form a contract, using the case of a law student taking up prominent criminal defense lawyer J. Cheney Mason’s boast on “Dateline NBC” about the strength of his defense in a capital murder trial.
Annotated Contents

D. Mutual Assent: Spyware and Secret Clauses

Why mutual assent is required to form contracts and how it is tested, using controversial cases of software users subject to restrictions buried electronically or appearing inside the product’s packaging.

E. Policies or Pacts: The Cleveland.com Blogger

The rising struggle about whether corporate policies, especially about privacy on the Internet, are enforceable as contracts, using the example of a blogger at Cleveland.com and analogizing today’s challenge to contract law’s resolution during the 1990s of disputes about whether employee handbooks are enforceable as contracts.

Synthesis: Why neither formal rules and pure objectivity nor pure context and subjectivity are sufficient to determine the existence of an enforceable contract.

2. FACING LIMITS: UNENFORCEABLE BARGAINS

Boundaries of enforceable contracts, which exclude those merely disguised as bargains and those bordering on illegality or violating prevailing sense of public policy.

A. Unconscionability: Gail Waters’s Annuity Swap

Why courts rarely examine the fairness of exchange but will probe contracts on massively lopsided terms plagued with bargaining irregularities, using the example of an impressionable young woman’s agreement to sell for $50,000 cash an annuity contract with a cash surrender value of $189,000.

B. Blackmail: Michael Jordan’s Paternity

Why courts resist enforcing bargains amounting to blackmail and how to distinguish those from valid contracts, highlighting the context of patrimony, and illustrated using a case involving Michael Jordan.
Annotated Contents

C. Palimony: The Rapper 50 Cent

Why courts struggle against enforcing contracts for personal services among unmarried cohabitants except when other elements of a bargain appear conspicuously, using the example of claims of a paramour against the rapper 50 Cent.

D. Gambling: Octogenarian Powerball Sisters

Why courts defer to people’s freedom of contract yet still identify a class of cases as illegal bargains that courts would not enforce, using the case of two elderly sisters who made an agreement about lottery tickets.

E. Making Babies: Baby M, Baby Calvert

Continuing struggles in law, society, and technology concerning human reproduction, addressing contracts involving multiple participants in child bearing, contrasting competing approaches states take, from banning, to regulating, to endorsing this field of human endeavor.

Synthesis: Why neither pure freedom of contract nor excessive judicial second-guessing of the legitimacy of contracts is desirable.

3. GETTING OUT: EXCUSES AND TERMINATION

Legitimate grounds to excuse an otherwise enforceable contract, such as mutual mistake, impossibility, infancy, mental illness, fraud, and express termination clauses – albeit not including hysteria resulting from public outrage or private embarrassment.

A. Mistake and Warranty: Madoff’s Ponzi Scheme

Why problems existing but unknown when a deal is made, owing to mutual mistake or warranty, can justify excusing contractual obligation, using the case of a divorcing couple’s settlement agreement based on the existence of a Madoff account that turned out to be fictional.
Annotated Contents

B. Impossibility and Force Majeure: Donald Trump

Why problems arising from supervening events like fire, flood, and other catastrophes that make performance impossible or impracticable can justify excusing contractual obligation, using the case of Donald Trump’s effort to delay loan repayment duties in light of the 2008 financial crisis.

C. Infancy: Craig Traylor of “Malcolm in the Middle”

Why minors and mentally ill persons have the right to elect to affirm or disaffirm otherwise valid contracts they make, using the case of child actor Craig Lamar Traylor who elected to disaffirm a contract with his personal manager, Sharyn Berg.

D. Outrage: AIG’s Employee Bonuses

Why public outrage is not a ground to rescind a bargain, and how the terms of a contract govern whether it must be performed or not, using the example of the bonuses AIG paid employees during the 2008 financial crisis.

E. Embarrassment: The New York Mets and Citi Field

How contracts can be used to promote business relationships with parties who can become an embarrassment and why this does not excuse the obligation, using the example of the contretemps over the deal Citicorp made to name The New York Mets’ home field, at the crest of the 2008 financial crisis.

Synthesis: Why ancient doctrines like caveat emptor (let the buyer beware) or pacta sunt servanda (promises are kept) are vital but cannot be absolute, and how contracts and contract law rather than politics and ideology rightly define the terms of bargains people make.

4. PAYING UP: REMEDIES

Remedies for breach of contract, primarily compensation for disappointed expectations, along with limits on remedies.
Annotated Contents

A. Interests and Limits: Paris Hilton and “Pledge This!”

Contract law’s remedies for breach of contract designed to protect interests in expectancy, reliance, and justice, subject to limitations requiring losses to be shown with reasonable certainty and foreseeable as a result of breach, using the example of Paris Hilton’s agreement to promote the raunchy film “Pledge This!”

B. Compensation: Paris Hilton and Hairtech

Differences between how contract claims award remedies to compensate and tort claims that can include damages to punish, using the case of claims by Hairtech International against Paris Hilton for failing to promote hair care products as promised.

C. Markets and Mitigation: Redskins Season Tickets

Standard market references contract law uses to measure damages from breach and associated limitations on recovery for losses that can be avoided with reasonable diligence, using the case of claims by the Washington Redskins against season ticket buyers who breached their agreements to buy tickets.

D. Stated Remedies: Sprint’s Early Termination Fees

The possibility of contracts stating the remedy for breach and how courts police these for excess, using the case of early termination fees in cell phone service contracts.

E. Specific Performance: Tyson Chickens and IBP Pork

Limited times that courts require contract parties to perform their promises specifically, as opposed to paying money damages, when money would not be adequate to protect an interest because of unique features of the bargain, using the case of a merger agreement between Tyson Foods and IBP.
Annotated Contents

Synthesis: Why awarding money damages in most cases works while holding out the possibility of specific performance in extraordinary cases, as well as the possibility of restitution when all else fails.

5. REWINDING: RESTITUTION AND UNJUST ENRICHMENT

A body of law intertwined with contracts, called restitution, available to promote justice when contract law’s standard tools break down, recognizing obligations where contract law might not and awarding remedies to prevent unjust enrichment.

A. Gratuity or Exchange: Caring for Aunt Frances

Difference between those conferring benefits gratuitously and those doing so in the expectation of compensation or reimbursement, using the example of family caretakers.

B. Mere Volunteers: Battling Alaskan Beetles

Limits of restitution, not extending to cover mere volunteers, using the example of a prospective buyer of Alaskan timberland voluntarily preparing a site study amid Alaska’s beetle epidemic that threatened the state’s forests.

C. Trailing Promises: Lena Saves Lee’s Life

Why promises made after someone else has conferred a benefit are rarely valid, using the case of one neighbor saving another neighbor’s life.

D. Novel Ideas: The Making of “The Sopranos”

When no contract is formed but one person shares ideas with another who exploits them for gain, a claim in restitution can arise so long as the ideas were novel but not otherwise, using the example of a municipal judge’s claim to a share of the profits from the hit HBO television series “The Sopranos.”
Annotated Contents xvi

E. Off-Contract Remedies: Rod Stewart at the Rio

When a contract is too indefinite to resolve a dispute over entitlement to money, off-contract remedy of restitution to prevent unjust enrichment can apply, using the example of a $2 million advance paid to Rod Stewart for a concert he could not perform because of complications arising after his throat surgery.

_Synthesis_: Why formal rules of contract should be resisted to enable the flexible protection of interests that the doctrine of restitution enables.

6. WRITING IT DOWN: INTERPRETATION, PAROL, FRAUDS

The significance, problems, and requirements of putting a deal in writing.

A. Plain Meaning I: Eminem’s Digital Records

How courts interpret written contracts, evaluating whether contractual expressions manifest a plain meaning or require additional evidence, using the case of rapper Eminem’s claim against his record producer about whether recordings marketed as iTunes and ringtones are “sales” or “licenses.”

B. Plain Meaning II: Dan Rather’s Last Broadcast

Example of plain meaning interpretation that complements the preceding story, showing how telltale linguistic cues convey a plain meaning, using the example of CBS’s termination of Dan Rather following controversial news broadcast about President Bush’s Vietnam-era military service two months before the 2004 presidential election.

C. Parol Evidence: The Golden Globes

Why complete and final written agreements prevent consideration of evidence about previous or contemporaneous deal making, using the example of a production contract for the Golden Globes.
xviii

Annotated Contents

D. Scrivener's Error: Who Owns the L.A. Dodgers?

Effects of fraud and mistake on determining obligations, using the example of scrivener's error in preparation of postnuptial agreement between Jamie and Frank McCourt about ownership of the Los Angeles Dodgers baseball team.

E. Statute of Frauds: Cliff Dumas's Phantom Radio Deal

Limited but important circumstances where contracts must include a writing to be valid, along with exceptions and how the requirement is met, using the example of country music radio personality Cliff Dumas's employment with a local radio station.

Synthesis: Why “putting it in writing” is not always the surest path to contractual certainty, but how it remains an appealing way to iron out the details, contract law taking the pragmatic middle ground between those who invest full faith in written expression and those incapable of believing that sometimes words have plain meanings.

7. PERFORMING: DUTIES, MODIFICATION, GOOD FAITH

What having a contract entails and how duties may be adjusted during performance.

A. Implied Terms: Butch Lewis and Maya Angelou

The role good faith can play to fill in gaps in indefinite, incomplete, or tentative agreements, using the case of the entertainment impresario Butch Lewis’s deal to promote the poet Maya Angelou’s work as greeting cards with Hallmark, in a deal that generated hundreds of millions of dollars for the card company and many millions of dollars in royalties.

B. Express Terms: Clive Cussler's Movie “Sahara”

The relation between express contract terms and standards of good faith, using the case of best-selling adventure novelist Clive Cussler’s deal with billionaire Philip Anschutz’s Crusader Entertainment to make a movie of Cussler’s book, “Sahara.”
Annotated Contents

C. Unanticipated Circumstances: Deutsche Building

Why unanticipated circumstances can justify departing from literal terms of a contract, but how promises extorted by duress are unenforceable, using the example of Bovis Lend Lease’s fixed-price contract to demolish the Deutsche Bank building in Lower Manhattan, rendered dangerous by 9/11.

D. Accord and Satisfaction: Lady Gaga

Why parties may settle bona fide disputes by contracts called “accord and satisfaction,” using the example of disputes between music producer Rob Fusari and pop performer Lady Gaga.

E. Adjustment: Conan and “The Tonight Show”

Renegotiation of contracts, role of good faith, covenants not to compete, and remedies using the 2010 dispute between Conan O’Brien and NBC over “The Tonight Show.”

Synthesis: Why the prevailing scope of the duty of good faith and respect for the express terms of a bargain properly balance the need for flexibility in contractual relationships with aversion to holding contracting parties to standards of conduct to which they did not assent.

8. HEDGING: CONDITIONS

Why and how parties limit the scope of their promises with conditions, express or implied, and how contract law’s tools reinforce bargains and protect their fruits rather than encourage parties to walk away and scatter losses.

A. Interpretation and Effect: Kevin Costner’s Bison

How to determine whether a contractual expression makes a promise, whose breach entitles the injured party to remedies, or states a condition, whose non-occurrence excuses duties, using the case of Kevin Costner’s commission of fine rural American sculpture inspired by his film “Dances With Wolves.”
Annotated Contents

B. Order of Performance: Charlie Sheen and Warner

How to minimize problems arising from finger-pointing about who breached first with constructive conditions to regulate the order of performance, using the example of the saga of actor Charlie Sheen’s role on the Warner Brothers television show “Two and a Half Men.”

C. Partial or Total Breach: Sheen and Warner II

Why contract law encourages parties to use self-help and other steps to promote performance and protect the bargain, highlighting different calibers of breach, especially partial and total breach, continuing the example from the saga of Sheen and Warner.

D. Waiver: Sheen and Warner III

How parties can make minor adjustments, but not major modifications, to their ongoing deals by waiver, opening disputes about whether some commitments are promises or conditions, rounding out the saga of Sheen and Warner.

E. Substantial Performance: Sandra Bullock’s Lake House

Why a party in default can recover anyway, at least if they substantially performed, compensating the other side in money, using the example of Sandra Bullock’s contract to build a mansion in Austin, Texas.

Synthesis: Why parties should be encouraged to use self-help, backed by the strength of judicial enforcement.

9. CONSIDERING OTHERS: THIRD PARTIES AND SOCIETY

The limited rights and related duties third parties have concerning contracts to which they are strangers.
Annotated Contents

A. Beneficiaries: Supply Chain Abuse at Wal-Mart
Scope of rights of third parties to enforce contracts to which they are strangers, highlighting the case of foreign employees against Wal-Mart for violations of local labor laws by its suppliers.

B. Assignment: JP Morgan’s Cablevisión Loan
Scope and limits of party’s rights to transfer contract interests, using the example of JP Morgan’s attempted sale of a loan contract to a competitor of the borrower.

C. Interference: New England Patriots and StubHub
Limitations on the rights of third parties to interfere with the contracts of others, using the example of the New England Patriots challenging the online ticket service StubHub for arranging sales of Patriots’ season tickets.

D. Torts: Katie Janeway’s Tragic Accident
Why courts police bargains that purport to exculpate people from civic obligation, like negligence, using the example of contracts purporting to relieve sports and recreational facilities from liability for grossly negligent behavior.

Synthesis: Why law rightly limits the rights of strangers to contracts to enforce them and protects the interests of parties in contractual relationships from impairment by assignment or by tortious interference from others and law’s interest in standards of behavior that may trump freedom of contract.
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I am indebted to many people whose help on this book was valuable. For helpful comments on many chapters, thanks to my colleagues at The George Washington University Law School, H. Jefferson Powell and Michael Selmi, and to the following readers: Ian Ayres (Yale University), Miriam A. Cherry (Saint Louis University Law School), Ronald K. L. Collins (University of Washington), Susan Heyman (Roger Williams University), David A. Hoffman (Temple University), Tom C. W. Lin (University of Florida), Jake Linford (Florida State University), James Steven Rogers (Boston College), Andrew Sutter (Rikkyo University), Jennifer S. Taub (Vermont Law School), Douglas J. Whaley (The Ohio State University), and several anonymous reviewers commissioned by Cambridge University Press and other prospective publishers.

For enthusiastic and astute editorial support, I am grateful to John Berger of Cambridge University Press, and for general editing of portions of the manuscript, as well as helpful comments and encouragement, I owe thanks to Ira Breskin, Fred Cuba, Marion Cuba, Lucy Martucci, and Susan Schulman.

For spectacular copyediting of the entire manuscript, exuberant thanks to my former Contracts student, Stephanie Resnik, George Washington Law School class of 2012. For additional editorial assistance on selected chapters, thanks to another former Contracts student at George Washington, Zachary Stern, class of 2010, and for research assistance, thanks to two others: Chris Davis, George Washington Law class of 2010, and Christa Laser, class of 2011.
Acknowledgments

For assistance concerning documents and other materials for the stories, I appreciate the help of lawyers and paralegals involved in the cases, including: Andrew R. Damgaard (Janklow Law Firm, Lawrence, South Dakota, in Detmers v. Costner); David George (Connelly Baker Wotring, Houston, Texas, in Kolodziej v. Mason); and Richard Emery and Ellen Wood (Emery Celli Brinckerhoff & Abady LLP, New York, in Simkin v. Blank).

Above all, for reading, commenting, and editing, plus listening, and for everything, forever and always, thanks and love to Stephanie Cuba.