

Contents

List of figures	page xi
Preface	xiii
Acknowledgments	xxi
Prologue	xxiv
1 Experiences in life and in art	1
Searching for lived experiences	1
Interpreting lived experiences	4
Theoretical perspectives on lived experiences	6
The aesthetics of lived experiences	9
The “aesthetics of emotion” and the mind–body interface	11
Reconciling opposing theories of emotion	13
2 Thinking critically about emotion theories	16
The loss of a concern for ecological validity	17
Being sensitive to the evolution of concepts	19
Avoiding the ontological trap	21
Thinking in terms of complementarities	22
Contrasting intellectual traditions: British Enlightenment and German Romantic thought	23
Goethe as a role model for “the poetics of science”	27
Three facets of an emerging scientific self	30
Working with hierarchies: the staircase metaphor	31
3 The depth of affective processing	39
Levels of affective processing	40
The experience and expression of “real” emotions	42
Explaining emotions in terms of non-emotional processes	45
Social constructionism	53
Summary of the nativist and constructionist perspectives	55
Critical reflections	56
Reframing the problem	57
4 Emotional experiences as reactions	60
From natural kinds to emotional experiences	60
Homologies as structural resonances across species, cultures, and time	61
Fundamental life themes and related complementary pairs of primary emotions	63
Juan Luis Vives (1492–1540): the psychologically modern mind	66
The framing and appreciation of emotional experiences	68

viii Contents

William James's peripheralism	69
A holistic approach to psychology	70
The contribution of organismic psychology	72
The psychodynamic contribution	73
The contribution of existential phenomenology	79
Summary and conclusions	81
5 Antecedents of the motivational action models	83
From passion to emotion	84
Energizing purposive action	86
The two faces of emotion and adaptation	89
Laboratory origins of a dualist model:
Emotion = Cognition + Arousal	90
Unfolding purposive behaviourism	95
Eponymy and Schachter's two-factor theory	99
The role of appraisal in feeling and emotion	100
Family resemblances among theories	106
6 Emotional Phase Theory	107
Contrasting approaches to representation	108
The reaction model: interpreted situations and emotional experiences	109
The action model: appraised situations and motivated actions	112
The threshold of awareness	115
Affects, feelings, and emotions	118
Affects	119
Feelings	122
Emotions	123
Emotional Phase Theory	125
Main principles of Emotional Phase Theory	130
Tables of key concepts	132
7 Neural underpinnings of emotional experiences and feeling-based actions	133
Pribram and McGuinness	134
Heinz Werner: from syncretic to abstract thinking	135
Don Tucker: Mind from body	137
Tucker and Luu: Cognition and neural development	142
Other voices from neuroscience	144
8 The aesthetic imagination	153
Top-down processing	153
Bottom-up processing	155
Complementary processes	155
Adopting an aesthetic attitude	156
Information theory and the cognitive-motivational approach	159

	Contents	ix
A holistic Gestalt approach		161
The psychodynamic approach		163
Phenomenological and existential psychology		167
Neuroaesthetics: art on the brain		170
Synthesis		174
9 Affective processes and aesthetic reception		176
Contrasting national cultural traditions and the social self		177
Optimizing aesthetic distance and the personal self		181
Depth of affective and cognitive aesthetic processing		182
Feelings: hedonic psychophysics and affective covariation		184
Emotional elaboration		187
Emotional themes: attachment, assertion, and absorption		188
Attachment: happiness and sadness		188
Assertion: fear and anger		190
Absorption: interest and disgust		190
High and Popular Art Culture wars		192
10 The “aesthetics of emotion” as analogy and metaphor		195
Analogies and metaphors		195
Analogical processes		197
Metaphorical processes		199
Content- and act-oriented metaphors related to emotion and aesthetics		200
Relational thinking in the generation and reception of metaphors		205
“Interanimations” between subject matter and style		208
11 Creative practices of contemporary artists		211
The curatorial process: Ihor Holubizky		212
Focusing on artistic practice		216
Tony Scherman		217
Harry Tiefenbach		220
Lanny Shereck		223
Michael Gerry		226
Bob Kussy		229
Andy Patton		233
Bernie Lubell		236
Stacey Spiegel		242
Yuval Avital		247
Conclusions		250
12 The cave artist’s share		252
Overview		252
The Chauvet Cave		255
A modern view of cave art		257
Conventionalist and reductionist views of cave art		259

x	Contents
	Critical perspectives	262
	Tracing the origins and development of cave art	264
	A new approach to the origins of cave art	268
	The emerging image	271
	After the social brain hypothesis: hemispheric integration	274
	Neurochemical and epigenetic influences	278
	Conclusions	281
	13 Studies in aesthetic reception	285
	Overview	285
	Fundamental principles	286
	The empirical narrative	287
	A curated series of experiments in visual and literary reception	288
	Fundamental perceptual qualities: hard versus soft edges	289
	Edge detection in Gestural Expressionism	291
	The prefrontal cortex: adopting an “aesthetic attitude,” and interpreting soft-edge images	293
	The Tao of aesthetics	295
	Judging moral and facial beauty	297
	Feelings and early global processing	298
	Comparing the effects of allegorical subject matter and rhetorical challenges	300
	Generating and receiving interpretations of short stories	302
	Ways of interpreting figurative scenes	304
	Close and far reading styles	306
	Emotions and feelings elicited by artworks	309
	Pace and depth of the reading process	312
	Comparing fresh emotions and emotional memories	314
	Hedonic psychophysics and the congruity principle	315
	Scented experiences of paintings	317
	Scented experiences of literature	317
	Scented memories of literature	318
	14 In search of a unified emotion theory	320
	A social thought experiment	323
	The contribution of aesthetics to Emotional Phase Theory	326
	The future of an emotion	331
	The future of an illusion (allusion)	334
	Epilogue	340
	References	342
	Index	373