

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-02897-5 - Imperial Portugal in the Age of Atlantic Revolutions: The Luso-Brazilian World, c. 1770–1850

Gabriel Paquette

Frontmatter

More information

Imperial Portugal in the Age of Atlantic Revolutions

As the British, French, and Spanish Atlantic empires were torn apart in the Age of Revolutions, Portugal steadily pursued reforms to tie its American, African, and European territories more closely together. Eventually, after a period of revival and prosperity, the Luso-Brazilian world also succumbed to revolution, which ultimately resulted in Brazil's independence from Portugal. The first of its kind in the English language to examine the Portuguese Atlantic World in the period from 1770 to 1850, this book reveals that, despite formal separation, the links and relationships that survived the demise of empire entwined the historical trajectories of Portugal and Brazil even more tightly than before. From constitutionalism to economic policy to the problem of slavery, Portuguese and Brazilian statesmen and political writers labored under the long shadow of empire as they sought to begin anew and forge stable post-imperial orders on both sides of the Atlantic.

GABRIEL PAQUETTE is an assistant professor of history at The Johns Hopkins University. He is the author of Enlightenment, Governance, and Reform in Spain and its Empire, 1759–1808 (2008), editor of Enlightened Reform in Southern Europe and its Atlantic Colonies, c. 1750–1830 (2009), and co-editor of Connections after Colonialism: Europe and Latin America in the 1820s (2013).

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-02897-5 - Imperial Portugal in the Age of Atlantic Revolutions: The Luso-Brazilian World, c. 1770–1850

Gabriel Paquette

Frontmatter

More information

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-02897-5 - Imperial Portugal in the Age of Atlantic Revolutions: The Luso-Brazilian World, c. 1770–1850

Gabriel Paquette

Frontmatter

More information

Imperial Portugal in the Age of Atlantic Revolutions

The Luso-Brazilian World, c. 1770–1850

Gabriel Paquette

The Johns Hopkins University

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-02897-5 - Imperial Portugal in the Age of Atlantic Revolutions: The Luso-Brazilian World, c. 1770–1850

Gabriel Paquette

Frontmatter

More information

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

University Printing House, Cambridge CB2 8BS, United Kingdom

Cambridge University Press is part of the University of Cambridge.

It furthers the University's mission by disseminating knowledge in the pursuit of education, learning and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org

Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781107028975

© Gabriel Paquette 2013

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 2011, 2013

Second Edition 2012

Reprinted 2013 (Twice)

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloguing in Publication data

Paquette, Gabriel B., 1977– author.

Imperial Portugal in the age of Atlantic revolutions : the Luso-Brazilian world, c. 1770–1850 / Gabriel Paquette, The Johns Hopkins University.

pages cm

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 978-1-107-02897-5 (hardback)

1. Portugal–Relations–Brazil. 2. Brazil–Relations–Portugal.
3. Portugal–Relations–Africa, Portuguese-speaking.
4. Africa, Portuguese-speaking–Relations–Portugal.
5. Portugal–Colonies–History. 6. Imperialism–History.
7. Revolutions–History. 8. Decolonization–History.
9. Political culture–Portugal–History. 10. Political culture–Brazil–History. I. Title.

DP557.B7P37 2013

909'.0971246907–dc23

2012036034

ISBN 978-1-107-02897-5 Hardback

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication, and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-02897-5 - Imperial Portugal in the Age of Atlantic Revolutions: The Luso-Brazilian World, c. 1770–1850

Gabriel Paquette

Frontmatter

More information

Contents

List of figures	page vi
Acknowledgments	viii
Abbreviations	xii
Map of the Portuguese Atlantic world c. 1800	xiv
Introduction	1
1 The reform of empire in the late eighteenth century	17
2 From foreign invasion to imperial disintegration	84
3 Decolonization's progeny: restoration, disaggregation, and recalibration	164
4 The last Atlantic revolution: emigrados , Miguelists, and the Portuguese Civil War	235
5 After Brazil, after Civil War: the origins of Portugal's African empire	316
Conclusion: The long shadow of empire in the Luso-Atlantic world	372
Bibliography	391
Index	445

Figures

- | | |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------|
| 1 James Godby, engraving, after a painting by Domenico Pellegrini. “[Dom João] His Royal Highness, the Prince of the Brazils and Prince Regent of Portugal” (London: Edward Orme, 1808). Courtesy of the Anne S. K. Brown Military Collection, Brown University. | page 87 |
| 2 Charles Turner, engraving/aquatint, after a painting by Thomas Staunton St. Clair. “City of Coimbra” (London: C. Turner and Colnaghi, 1812–15). Courtesy of the Anne S. K. Brown Military Collection, Brown University. | 94 |
| 3 Jean-Baptiste Debret. “Acceptation Provisoire de la Constitution de Lisbonne, à Rio de Janeiro en 1821” (Paris, 1839). Courtesy of the John Carter Brown Library, Brown University. | 132 |
| 4 P. Langlumé, lithograph, after a painting by David Pradier. “Pedro Primeiro, Imperador Constitucional do Brasil” (1822). Courtesy of the Anne S. K. Brown Military Collection, Brown University. | 154 |
| 5 April 1826 revision, by Dom Pedro I and Francisco Gomes da Silva, of the 1823 Brazilian Constitutional Projecto . Courtesy of the Arquivo do Museu Imperial, Petrópolis (RJ). | 203 |
| 6 J. Sjober, engraving, after a painting by Gonsalva. “Dom Miguel, Tyrann von Portugal” (Vienna, 1830). Courtesy of the Anne S. K. Brown Military Collection, Brown University. | 237 |
| 7 S. Hall. “[Map of] Spain and Portugal” (London, 1828). Courtesy of the Harvard Map Collection, Harvard University. | 244 |
| 8 N. E. Maurin. “SMI O Senhor Pedro Restituindo sua Augusta Filha a Senhora D. Maria Segunda, e a Carta Constitucional aos Portuguezes” (Porto: J. B. Fontana, 1832). Courtesy of the Anne S. K. Brown Military Collection, Brown University. | 278 |

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-02897-5 - Imperial Portugal in the Age of Atlantic Revolutions: The Luso-Brazilian World, c. 1770–1850

Gabriel Paquette

Frontmatter

More information

List of figures	vii
9 [Anon.]. “Vista da Praia de Arnosa de Pampelido, onde Desembarcon [sic] o Senhor D. Pedro á Frente do Exercito Libertador” (1833). Courtesy of the Anne S. K. Brown Military Collection, Brown University.	298
10 A. L. P. da Cunha. “Perspectiva da Cidade São Paulo de Luanda de Angola” (1825). Courtesy of the Harvard Map Collection, Harvard University.	333

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-02897-5 - Imperial Portugal in the Age of Atlantic Revolutions: The Luso-Brazilian World, c. 1770–1850

Gabriel Paquette

Frontmatter

More information

Acknowledgments

In the preface to an article entitled “Politics and Political Economy of Portugal,” published in 1835, the editor of the London Review noted that “a book concerning that country would have few readers; and the fewer, perhaps, if it were copious in detail and methodical in generalization. All that the subject will bear is desultory sketches and remarks.”¹ I encountered this quotation when I began my research in Lisbon nearly a decade ago. I am grateful that so many fellow historians and funding bodies, to say nothing of Cambridge University Press, refused to reach the same conclusion as the London Review. The unflagging encouragement and unstinting generosity I received emboldened me to persevere, to write this book, and to hope that it might find its way into the hands of more than a few readers.

I acknowledge with gratitude the material support furnished by the following institutions which made possible long stints in foreign archives and uninterrupted periods of writing: The Johns Hopkins University; Trinity College, University of Cambridge; the British Academy; the Faculty of History, Cambridge; the Managers of the Smuts Memorial Fund, Cambridge; the Centre for History and Economics, Harvard University; the Brazil Studies Program, Harvard University; the Portuguese Fulbright Commission; the Lilly Library, Indiana University at Bloomington; the John Carter Brown Library; the National Endowment for the Humanities; and the University of Notre Dame Institute for Advanced Study (NDIAS).

I wish to thank several historians without whose example, encouragement, criticism, and letters of support this book would never have been completed: David Armitage, Chris Bayly, Tim Blanning, David Brading, John H. Elliott, Brian Hamnett, Ken Maxwell, Tony McFarlane, Nuno G. Monteiro, John Robertson, and Emma Rothschild. I wish to record my special debt of gratitude to Richard Drayton, who, with characteristic acuity and foresight, persuaded me to study Portuguese and go

¹ London Review, vol. I, no. 2 (July 1835), p. 371.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-02897-5 - Imperial Portugal in the Age of Atlantic Revolutions: The Luso-Brazilian World, c. 1770–1850

Gabriel Paquette

Frontmatter

More information

to Portugal well before I had written a single word of my dissertation, which he supervised, on eighteenth-century Spain.

The following friends (and colleagues) either read draft chapters of this book or helped me work through certain ideas in the course of conversation: Matthew Brown, José Luís Cardoso, Manuel Lucena Giraldo, Christopher Schmidt-Nowara, John Shovlin, and David Todd. I thank each of them for their comradeship and intellectual generosity. In addition, I wish to acknowledge the following scholars, mainly but not exclusively historians, whose support, conversation, criticism, and scholarship proved crucial to the development of the book: Jeremy Adelman, Tomás Amorim, Ken Andrien, Jesús Astigarraga, Derek Beales, Ted Beatty, Francisco Bethencourt, Harald Braun, Roberto Breña, Angus Burgin, Nicholas Canny, Pedro Cardim, Nathan Connolly, Jordana Dym, Richard Elphick, Javier Fernández Sebastián, Josep Fradera, Carrie Gibson, Karen Graubart, James Green, Patrick Griffin, Boyd Hilton, Jamie Hood, Vittorio Hösle, Maurizio Isabella, Maya Jasanoff, Charles Jones, Richard Kagan, Francis King, Franklin Knight, Thomas Kselman, Paul Lay, Philippa Levine, John Lonsdale, Inga Huld Markan, John Marshall, the late Sabine MacCormack, Adriana Méndez Rodenas, William Nelson, Marcy Norton, William O'Reilly, Paul Ocobock, Vijay Pinch, Pedro Ramos Pinto, Philip Pomper, Txema Portillo, Eduardo Posada-Carbó, Sophus Reinert, Lucy Riall, Mónica Ricketts, John Robertson, Ricardo Roque, the late John Russell-Wood, Neil Safier, Ricardo Salazar-Rey, Peter Sarris, Todd Shepard, Hamish Scott, Carolyn Sherman, Ana Cristina Nogueira da Silva, Marcio Siwi, Ricardo Soares de Oliveira, Koen Stapelbroek, Donald Stelluto, Robert Sullivan, Vasileios Syros, Lauri Tähtinen, Ben Vinson III, Jim Weinstein, Ted Widmer, and Reuben Zahler. In addition to those named, all of the participants at the two conferences held at Trinity College, Cambridge (December 2007 and May 2009, respectively) influenced my thinking. I thank the contributors to the resulting volumes (the second of which was co-edited with Matthew Brown). A monograph seems poor recompense for the many kindnesses bestowed by these colleagues. But if, as Robert Southey wrote toward the end of his monumental History of Brazil, “the value of a historical work be in proportion to the facts which it has first embodied, to the fidelity with which they are recorded, and to the addition thereby made to the stores of general knowledge,”² then I hope that they judge this effort to have contributed to our common scholarly enterprise.

² Southey 1822, vol. III, p. 879.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-02897-5 - Imperial Portugal in the Age of Atlantic Revolutions: The Luso-Brazilian World, c. 1770–1850

Gabriel Paquette

Frontmatter

More information

x Acknowledgments

My colleagues at The Johns Hopkins University, particularly the successive chairmen of the History Department (William Rowe, Ronald Walters, and Philip Morgan, respectively), graciously and generously granted me leave to finish this book soon after my arrival in Baltimore. I also thank the KSAS Deans' Office for approving my research leave. In addition to my current colleagues, I extend my gratitude to my past institutions for their support of my research. In particular, I thank the Master and Fellows of Trinity College, Cambridge; the Department of History, the Committee on History and Literature, the Center for History and Economics, and the David Rockefeller Center for Latin American Studies, all at Harvard University; and the Department of History at Wesleyan University.

I benefited from sharing my work-in-progress with audiences in the following places: Liverpool, Cambridge, Vadstena (Sweden), Helsinki, New York City, Tempe (Arizona), Baltimore, Lisbon, Bristol, Azcoitia (País Vasco), Santander, Seville, Boston, Middletown (Connecticut), Providence, Notre Dame, Mexico City, Medford (Massachusetts), Princeton, and New Orleans. I thank my interlocutors, critics, and collaborators on those occasions for asking hard questions which improved the book and propelled it toward completion. I also benefited from discussing these topics in seminars and tutorials with perspicacious undergraduates at Wesleyan, Cambridge, Harvard, and Johns Hopkins. Though they are too numerous to name individually, I have learned much from my students. I hope that these printed pages capture some of the enthusiasm and intellectual excitement of our seminars and tutorials.

Turning the manuscript into a book was a daunting task, one made much less so by the expert guidance of Michael Watson at Cambridge University Press. I thank him for commissioning this book and for working with me during the process culminating in publication. I express my gratitude to the Press's Syndics and to the two anonymous reviewers whose sound suggestions and perspicacious insights improved the analysis immeasurably. I thank the John Carter Brown Library, Brown University's Hay Library, and Harvard College Library's Map Collection for permission to reproduce images of the prints, lithographs, and maps held in their rich collections.

I wish to record my gratitude for the personal debts incurred during the course of this project to Robin Baird-Smith, Ben Block, Duk Blakaj, Fred Boll, Edith Bukovics, Lucie Campos, Rob Creswell, Danny Forster, Matty Goldstein, Sara Gonçalves, Janet Gunter, Evelyn Lincoln and Brian Shure, Kelly Land, Grant Lindsay, Tyler Luttmann, Cristina Miguel (and her entire family in Queluz-Belas),

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-02897-5 - Imperial Portugal in the Age of Atlantic Revolutions: The Luso-Brazilian World, c. 1770–1850

Gabriel Paquette

Frontmatter

More information

Acknowledgments

xi

Jason Nebenzahl, Ana Pereira, Bill and Dru Sampson, Richard Stanton Schwartz, Jack Shamblin, Rupert Shortt, Avi Spivack, Don Andres Jayhawk Toebben, Chris Warnes, and Chris Wuthrich.

I wish to add a more-than-customary-and-perfunctory message of thanks to my parents, Gregory and Kathy, and to my brother, Jonah. My parents took me to Portugal when I was a very young boy and they have encouraged my love of History and travel ever since, even when I pursued those passions to counterproductive extremes. Jonah, during Augusts spent in childhood on Cape Cod, never let Portugal slip from my mind, devouring malasadas with me in Provincetown and insisting that our family whale-watch aboard the Portuguese Princess. Toward the end of this project, I had the great fortune of entering into a second family. Pamela and Dean Richlin, together with Sara, Eli, Sabrina, and Dalia, have been more enthusiastic about my esoteric endeavors than any non-blood relation deserves.

This book is dedicated to Johanna Bard Richlin. While this project began before we met, it never would have been completed without her. With due respect to Clio, I can imagine neither a future book nor any other pursuit without her inspiration and love.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-02897-5 - Imperial Portugal in the Age of Atlantic Revolutions: The Luso-Brazilian World, c. 1770–1850

Gabriel Paquette

Frontmatter

More information

Abbreviations

AC	Academia das Ciências (Lisbon, Portugal)
ACM	Arquivo Central da Marinha (Lisbon, Portugal)
ADB	Arquivo Distrital de Braga [Arquivo do Conde da Barca] (Braga, Portugal)
AHI	Arquivo Histórico do Itamaraty (Rio de Janeiro, RJ, Brazil)
AHM	Arquivo Histórico Militar (Lisbon, Portugal)
AHP	Arquivo Histórico Parlamentar (Lisbon, Portugal)
AHU	Arquivo Histórico Ultramarino (Lisbon, Portugal)
AMC	Annaes Maritimos e Coloniaes
AMI	Arquivo do Museu Imperial (Petrópolis, RJ, Brazil)
ANTT	Arquivos Nacionais / Torre do Tombo (Lisbon, Portugal)
ANRJ	Arquivo Nacional (Rio de Janeiro, RJ, Brazil)
APBAC	Annaes do Parlamento Brasileiro: A Assembléia Constituinte de 1823
APEC	Arquivo Público do Estado do Ceará (Fortaleza, CE, Brazil)
APEJE	Arquivo Público Estadual Jordão Emerenciano (Recife, PE, Brazil)
APEM	Arquivo Público do Estado do Maranhão (São Luís, MA, Brazil)
APEP	Arquivo Público do Estado do Pará (Belém, PA, Brazil)
B.Aj.	Biblioteca da Ajuda (Lisbon, Portugal)
BCM	Biblioteca Central da Marinha (Lisbon, Portugal)
BNL	Biblioteca Nacional de Lisboa [Reservados] (Lisbon, Portugal)
BNRJ	Biblioteca Nacional (Rio de Janeiro, RJ, Brazil)
Bod.Ox.	Bodleian Library, University of Oxford (Oxford, UK)
Boe.C.	Boehrer Collection. Spencer Research Library, University of Kansas (Lawrence, KS, USA)

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-02897-5 - Imperial Portugal in the Age of Atlantic Revolutions: The Luso-Brazilian World, c. 1770–1850

Gabriel Paquette

Frontmatter

More information

List of abbreviations

xiii

BPBL	Biblioteca Pública “Benedito Leite” (São Luís, MA, Brazil)
BPMP	Biblioteca Pública Municipal do Porto (Porto, Portugal)
Cod.	Códice
CT	Colección Torrijos. Hispanic Society of America (New York, NY, USA)
Cx.	Caixa
DC	Diário das Cortes
DCSDNP	Diário da Câmara do Senhores Deputados da Nação Portuguesa
Hay	John Hay Library, Brown University (Providence, RI, USA)
Houghton	Houghton Library, Harvard University (Cambridge, MA, USA)
IAHGP	Instituto Arqueológico, Histórico e Geográfico Pernambucano (Recife, PE, Brazil)
IHGAL	Instituto Histórico e Geográfico de Alagoas (Maceió, AL, Brazil)
IHGB	Instituto Histórico e Geográfico Brasileiro (Rio de Janeiro, RJ, Brazil)
JCBL	The John Carter Brown Library (Providence, RI, USA)
Lill.L.	Lilly Library. Indiana University (Bloomington, IN, USA)
Mç.	Maço
Newberry	The Newberry Library (Chicago, IL, USA)
PBDP	Portugal-Brazil: Debates Parlamentares
SGL	Sociedade de Geografia de Lisboa (Lisbon, Portugal)
TNA	The National Archives (Kew [London], UK)

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-02897-5 - Imperial Portugal in the Age of Atlantic Revolutions: The Luso-Brazilian World, c. 1770–1850

Gabriel Paquette

Frontmatter

More information

Map of the Portuguese Atlantic world c. 1800

