INDEX

accountability and transparency in use of CPE of demand, 299–303 adjusted R² statistic in multiple regression analysis, 270, 270–271, 286, 299 administrative burden of quantitative evidence, 314–315 admissibility of expert economic testimony, 209–212, 214–216 adversarial bias in expert economic testimony, 198–199 adversarial jurisdictions
advantages of, 195
expert economic testimony in, 191–194
advertisement, marketing, and distribution strategies, 107–109, 172 aims-and-effects test, 88–92
allocative efficiency, 17, 18–19, 23 Antidumping Agreement (WTO, 1994), 136 antitrust law, 15–21.
See also comparative analysis of antitrust and international trade law burden of proof in, 318–319
centrality of product likeness and relevant market to, 1–9 competition, defined, 15 competitive constraints analysis in, 149–152 consumer welfare, promoting, 19–21 CPE of demand in.
See under cross-price elasticities (CPE) of demand economic approach historical development of, 95–100 initial reluctance regarding, 109–111 reasons for shift to, 111–113 “supply-side” factors in move to, 117–118 economic efficiency, promotion of, 17–19 EU versus US, economic analysis in, 2. See also EU antitrust law; US antitrust law expert economic testimony in, 192, 205, 206, 209, 210–211, 214–215 extent of substitutability in, 156 market, concepts of, 168–178 neoclassical microeconomic price theory, premised on, 15–16 on potential competition, 150, 162 quantitative methods in, 185–186
role of market definition in.
See under role of market definition statistical and economic significance, confusion of, 273
on supply-side substitution, 150–151 terminological issues, 2
traditional formalistic approach in, 58–67
arbitrary nature of traditional formalistic approach, 119–123 Article I:1 of the GATT, 41, 43, 49–51, 153
Article III of the GATT.
See also comparative analysis of antitrust and international trade law; treaty interpretation of Article III of GATT
aims-and-effects test, 88–92
beneficiaries of, 51
See also Border Tax Report
competitive constraints analysis under, 152–156 CPE of demand under.
See under cross-price
elasticities (CPE) of demand
de jure and de facto discrimination under, 53, 116–117 economic approach, 332
backlash against, 128–130
historical development of, 100–109
extent of substitutability under, 157–158 fiscal measures in Article III:2(1) and (2), 45–49
focus on, 7–8
in GATT 1947 jurisprudence, 75–77
in GATT 1994 jurisprudence, 77–81
general principles in Article III:1, 142, 144, 145 internal measures, shift in focus of GATT regime from border to, 116 interpretation of. See treaty interpretation of Article III of GATT
interrelationship of instances of product comparison in, 181–183 “less favorable treatment” under, 51, 55, 89, 92, 142–143
“like” and DCS products, concepts of, 40–41, 47–48, 49–51, 181–183
market-based approach,
development of, 100–107
marketing, advertisement, and distribution strategies, consideration of, 107–109
potential competition under, 162–168 price increase test for, 158–162
purpose of, 26
quantitative methods and, 186–188
regulatory measures in Article III:4, 49–51
role of market definition in.
See under role of market
definition
SATAP requirements, 47, 51, 89, 91–92, 161 structure of, 44–45
supply-side substitution under, 152–156
traditional formalistic approach in, 67–94
types of discriminatory treatment covered by, 53–54
Article III:1 of the GATT, 142, 144, 145
Article III:2 of the GATT, 157
Article III:2(1) of the GATT, 45–49, 142, 181–182, 186
Article III:2(2) of the GATT, 45–49, 175, 181–182, 186
Article III:4 of the GATT, 49–51, 142, 179, 182
asymmetrical information in expert economic testimony, 196–197, 200
autocorrelation, 296, 297, 299
averaging, regression as generalized form of, 296
Bain, J. S., 172, 226
Baker, Jonathan B., 328
beneficiaries of Article III of the GATT, 51 Best Practices guides, US and EU, on expert economic testimony, 205
Bhala, R., 141
Border Tax Report (GATT Working Party, 1970), 68–72
abstract, analysis of product likeness in, 72
criteria for product likeness in, 68–70
legal and de facto status of, 70–72
market-based framework, criteria subordinate to, 179
border to internal measures, shift in focus of GATT regime from, 116 Brandeis, L., 1
burden of proof regarding quantitative evidence
in antitrust law, 318–319
eroding ability to prove and increasing ability to disprove, 315 general principles of standard of proof, 316–318 high technical burden for establishing econometric evidence, 315–316 “imperfection” of quantitative evidence, implications of, 325–327 refutation of evidence, 327–330 statistical significance, relationship to, 321–325
in WTO law, 318
“but for” test, 165, 165, 242, 242, 243, 243
Cellophane Fallacy (over-priced CPE of demand), 239–241, 249, 250, 265
Chicago School, 17, 20, 111 coefficient estimates in multiple regression analysis, 266–267 Commission Best Practices for Economic Evidence (EU), 301, 309, 328 Commission Notice on market definition (EU), 97, 150, 151, 179, 186, 205, 226, 228, 242, 335 commitment school, 21
comparative advantages, theory of, 22–23, 147 comparative analysis methodology, 11 comparative analysis of antitrust and international trade law, 11, 13–28 comparative advantage, international trade law premised on theory of, 22–23 congruence of efficiency and welfare standards, 26–28 corvergence of views on market definition, 333 differences versus commonalities, 13, 26–28 economic efficiency, promotion of in antitrust law, 17–19
congruence of standards, 26–28
in international trade law, 23–25 free trade, case for, 21 markets, different concepts of, 168–178 neoclassical microeconomic price theory, antitrust law premised on, 15–16 underlying purpose of market definition in, focus on, 6, 13 welfare benefits of antitrust law, 19–21
congruence of standards, 26–28
of international trade law, 25–26 comparing products. See product likeness and relevant market competition, defined, 15 competition law. See antitrust law competitive constraints analysis, 149–158 competitive relationship in the marketplace test, 100–107
as appropriate marketplace comparator, 146 Article III of the GATT’s notion of, 132 consumer choice at heart of, 156–158 content of, 148–162
demand-side substitutability as critical factor for, 149–158 dispute settlement bodies endorsing, 145 extent of substitutability, 156–158
interpretative modality providing basis for, 133
price increase test for Article III of the GATT, 158–162 purposive interpretation of, 148–149 purposive interpretation of Article III of GATT leading to, 141 concentration, measures of, 40 conceptual framework for an economic approach to market definition, 12, 132–184, 332–334.
See also competitive relationship in the marketplace test;
demand-side substitutability; treaty interpretation of Article III of GATT interrelationship of instances of product comparison in Article III, 181–183 market, different concepts of, 168–178
potential competition, 150, 162–168
SSNIP test in, 132, 149, 150, 157, 158, 171, 172, 177 traditional formalistic approach, role of, 178–181 conceptual framework for use of CPE of demand under Article III of the GATT, 230–252 confidence intervals in multiple regression analysis, 267–268, 271 conflict of interest in expert economic testimony, 196–197, 200 conflicting expert economic testimony, 199–200 conscious bias in expert economic testimony, 198, 201 consumers
antitrust law promoting welfare of, 19–21 competitive relationship in the marketplace test, consumer choice at heart of, 156–158 distorted customer perceptions of CPE of demand, 243–247 collectors’ tastes and habits (CTH), as criterion for product likeness, 68–70, 72, 84–88, 121–122, 152, 153, 180, 237 Cournot, A., 169–172
CPE. See cross-price elasticities (CPE) of demand cross-examination expert economic witnesses, 212–213, 216, 219 cross-price elasticities (CPE) of demand, 223–331, 335
advantages of, 303–304
antitrust law and case law, use of CPE in. See entry "market definition case law," below distorted (underpriced or overpriced) competitive conditions in, 239–240, 241–243 distorted customer perceptions, 244
statistical and economic significance, confusion of, 273
theoretical application in, 225–228, 230 arbitrary pre-selection of products, criticism of, 305, 306 Article III of the GATT and case law, use of CPE in. See entry "market definition case law," below conceptual framework for use under, 230–252
conclusions regarding, 248
distorted competitive conditions, 239–243, 251–252
distorted customer perceptions, 243–247
misleading price elasticities, 239–247
new products, 244
relevant CPE, determining, 233–235 sovereignty issues, 237–239 threshold issue, 231–233
wholesale versus retail CPE, 235–237
Cellophane Fallacy (overpriced CPE of demand), 239–241, 249, 250, 265
cross-price elasticities (cont.)
competitive influences on demand, impossibility of identifying and separating, 304 defined, 4, 225
disadvantages of, 307–330
domestic, 241
as economic measure for demand-side substitutability, 12
elasticities, concept of, 224 European criticism of, 306 historical evolution of, 59, 61, 65, 104 imported, 241
legal professionals’ lack of knowledge of, 305 market, concept of, 172
in market definition case law, 303 critical assessment of econometric estimation of elasticities in, 289–303 data observations, import of, 293–294
different uses of CPE, technical and non-technical, 273 econometric estimations using regression analysis, 280–289
interpretation of relevant parameters, 294–295
non-quantitative and descriptive use of CPE, 273–280
results, reliability of, 295–299
transparency and accountability in use of CPE, 299–303 variables used in regressions, 290–293 of Marshallian demand curve, 224
objections and criticisms to use of, 304–306 OPE versus, 224–225
price competition, criticism of focus on, 304, 305 quantitative nature of, 6–7 regression analysis, econometric estimation using. See regression analysis residual demand curve, 224

reverse Cellophane Fallacy (underpriced CPE of demand), 240–241, 251
self-confirming bias, problem of, 124 significance of, 188–190
SSNIP test and, 225, 226–228, 232, 235, 240, 244, 273 surveys, use in, 277–279
value of, 231–233
WTO use of, 4
CTH (consumers’ tastes and habits), as criterion for product likeness, 68–70, 72, 84–88, 121–122, 152, 153, 180, 237
Customs Valuation Agreement (WTO, 1994), 136
DCS (“directly competitive or substitutable”) products, 40–41, 47–48, 49–51, 181–183.
See also product likeness and relevant market dec jure and de facto discrimination under Article III of the GATT, 53, 116–117 de Melo, J., 291
degrees of substitutability, 126–128 demand-side substitutability as critical factor, 149–158 “like” and DCS products, Article III concepts of, 181–183
quantitative versus qualitative criteria regarding, 178–181 Department of Justice (DoJ), US economic presence of, 117 Merger Guidelines (1982 and 1992), 95–100, 150, 151, 185, 205, 228, 242, 332
direct measurement of market power, 37–38 “directly competitive or substitutable” (DCS) products, 40–41, 47–48, 49–51, 181–183.
See also product likeness and relevant market discovery and regression analysis materials in market definition case law, 299–303 discrimination
EU antitrust law (cont.)
purpose of, 15
quantitative methods in, 186
traditional formalistic approach in, 63–67

European Union (EU)
Commission Best Practices for Economic Evidence, 301, 309, 328 Commission Notice on market definition, 97, 150, 151, 179, 186, 205, 226, 228, 242, 335 criticism of CPE of demand in, 306
ECMR (EC Merger Regulation), 33
TFEU (Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union), 32–33, 34, 35, 97, 135, 137–140, 163, 175, 176, 239, 243 treaty interpretation of Article III of GATT in context of EU legal regime, 135, 137–140 evolution from traditional to economic approach. See historical evolution from traditional to economic approach expert economic testimony, 190–223
admissibility of, 209–212, 214–216 adversarial bias in, 198–199 adversarial characteristics emphasized as remedial option, 202 in adversarial (party-sponsored expert) versus inquisitorial (court-appointed expert) jurisdictions, 191–194
in antitrust law, 192, 205, 206, 209, 210–211, 212, 214–215 asymmetrical information, 196–197, 200
conclusions regarding, 221–223
conflicting, 199–200
conscious or “hired guns” bias in, 198, 201
cross-examination, 196, 212–213, 216, 219
effectiveness and quality, judging, 195

independent economic experts, Panel-appointed, 209, 213, 217–221 inquisitorial characteristics emphasized as remedial option, 202 institutional support for non-expert adjudicators, 202, 217 objectivity and truth, legal versus scientific notions of, 199–200, 222 Panel of expert adjudicators, appointment of, 202–203, 217, 220 principal–agent conflict of interest, 196–197, 200 problems with party-sponsored testimony, 195–201 remedial options, 201–221 selection bias in, 198
sufficiency of the evidence, analysis of, 209 summary judgment limiting, 209 training, education, and guidance for adjudicators regarding, 205–206, 217 in WTO dispute settlement procedure, 190 admissibility of evidence, 210–211, 214–216 compatibility of, 196
conclusions regarding, 221–223
consensus statement on use of economic and econometric evidence, 206
cross-examination, 212, 219
as hybrid adversarial/inquisitorial jurisdiction, 192–194 in-house economic expertise, 204, 217
independent economic experts, Panel-appointed, 207–209, 218–221
Panel of expert adjudicators, appointment of, 202
extent of substitutability, 156–158
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Term</th>
<th>Page(s)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (FRCP)</td>
<td>301</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Federal Trade Commission (FTC)</td>
<td>117, 192</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>formalistic approach. See traditional</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>formalistic approach</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>FRCP (Federal Rules of Civil Procedure)</td>
<td>301</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>free trade, case for, 21. See also</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade;</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>international trade law; World Trade</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Organization</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Freeman, P.</td>
<td>315</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>FTC (Federal Trade Commission)</td>
<td>117, 192</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>future-oriented market definition,</td>
<td>162–168</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>GATT. See Article III of the GATT;</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gaussian or normal distribution in</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>multiple regression analysis,</td>
<td>266</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gemines study (1996 and 1995)</td>
<td>277, 285</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(GATT). See also Article III of the GATT;</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(GATT), CPE of demand, 59, 61, 65, 104</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Custom Valuation Agreement, 136</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CTH, 68–70, 72, 84–88, 121–122</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>economic approach, move to,</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>MFN clause, 41, 43</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Textiles and Clothing Agreement,</td>
<td>182</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>geographic market, relevant, 29</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>German antitrust law, influence on EU</td>
<td>66</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>“goodness of fit” in multiple regression</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>analysis, measuring, 270–271, 286</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>guidance, education, and training for</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>adjudicators regarding expert economic</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>testimony, 205–206, 217</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>harmonization of tariff classifications,</td>
<td>74</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Harvard School, 172</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Heckscher–Ohlin theory, 23</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Herfindahl–Hirschman Index (HHI), 40</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>“hired guns” bias in expert economic</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>testimony, 198, 201</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>historical evolution from traditional</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>to economic approach, 12, 57–131, 332.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>See also traditional formalistic approach</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>aims-and-effects test, 88–92</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CPE of demand, 59, 61, 65, 104</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CTH, 68–70, 72, 84–88, 121–122</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>economic approach, move to,</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>94–109 in antitrust law, 95–100. See also</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>under antitrust law</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Article III of the GATT and, 100–109</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>backlash against, in WTO case law, 128–130</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Commission Notice on market definition</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(EU), 97 initial reluctance regarding,</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>109–111 in international trade law</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>See under international trade law</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>problems with traditional approach leading</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>to, 119–128</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table> market definition. See product likeness and relevant market; role of market definition market, different concepts of, 168–178 market power, antitrust law analysis of. See under role of market definition market research companies, data collections of, 312–313 marketing, advertisement, and distribution strategies, 107–109, 172 Marshall, A., 169–172
Marshallian demand curve, elasticities of, 224
Merger Guidelines (US DoJ, 1982 and 1992), 95–100, 150, 151, 185, 205, 228, 242, 332 MFN (most-favored-nation) clause in Article I:1 of GATT, 41, 43 misleading price elasticities of demand, 239–247
monopolies
allocative inefficiency of, 18–19 dynamic inefficiency of, 19
hypothesical monopolist test, 96, 159 productive inefficiency of, 19 most-favored-nation (MFN) clause in Article I:1 of GATT, 41, 43
multicollinearity, 296–297, 299
multiple regression analysis.
See under regression analysis
Nash equilibrium, non-cooperative, 21
National Treatment (NT) obligation in Article III. See Article III of the GATT neoclassical microeconomic price theory, antitrust law premised on, 15–16 new product introductions and CPE of demand, 244 non-discrimination provisions in Article III of GATT. See Article III of the GATT equality/equal protection principles and, 141 legal concepts inherent in interpretation of, 141 MFN clause in Article I:1 of GATT, 41, 43
in TFEU, 137–140
normal or Gaussian distribution in multiple regression analysis, 266 NT (National Treatment) obligation in Article III. See Article III of the GATT null hypothesis, 268–270, 269, 271
objectivity and truth, legal versus scientific notions of, 199–200, 222, 262, 307–312, 315, 325–327
OLS (ordinary least squares) regression, 259, 267, 296 OPE (own-price elasticities) of demand, 224–225, 225, 232 ordinary least squares (OLS) regression, 259, 267, 296 origin-neutral treatment under Article III of the GATT, 54 over-priced CPE of demand (Cellophane Fallacy), 239–241, 249, 250, 265 own-price elasticities (OPE) of demand, 224–225, 225, 232 Panel-appointed independent economic experts, 209, 213, 217–221
Panel of expert adjudicators, appointment of, 202–203, 217, 220
parameter estimation, 253
Pareto efficiency, 17, 20, 25
Philippines, use of econometric evidence in, 332 physical characteristics, as criterion for product likeness, 73–74, 75–80, 104, 120–121, 127, 178, 180 Popper, K., 199
potential competition, 150, 162–168
PPMs (process and production-based methods) for determining product likeness, 92–94, 179 practical or economic significance in multiple regression analysis, 272–273
price comparison, 169, 189
price elasticities of demand CPE. See cross-price elasticities (CPE) of demand defined, 224 econometric estimation using regression analysis. See regression analysis misleading, 239–247 OPE (own-price elasticities), 224–225, 225, 232
price increase test for Article III of the GATT, 158–162 principal–agent conflict of interest in expert economic testimony, 196–197, 200 Principles of Political Economy and Taxation (Ricardo, 1817), 22–24 prisoner’s dilemma, 21 process and production-based methods (PPMs) for determining product likeness, 92–94, 179 product likeness and relevant market, 332–338 Article III of the GATT, focus on, 7–8. See also Article III of the GATT centrality to antitrust and international trade law, 1–9 comparative analysis methodology used in, 11 comparative analysis of antitrust and international trade law, 11, 13–28. See also comparative analysis of antitrust and international trade law cost concept economic framework for, 12, 132–184, 332–333. See also conceptual framework for an economic approach to market definition CPE of demand as means of analyzing, 223–331, 335. See also cross-price elasticities (CPE) of demand economic approach to, 1–9, 336–338. See also economic approach to product likeness and relevant market expert economic testimony on, 190–223. See also expert economic testimony historical evolution of approaches to, 12, 57–131, 332. See also historical evolution from traditional to economic approach “like” and DCS products, Article III concepts of, 40–41, 47–48, 49–51, 181–183
practical relevance of economic approach to, 9–10 quantitative evidence regarding, 12, 185–331, 335–337. See also quantitative evidence relevant product market and relevant geographic market, 29 role of, 12, 29–56. See also role of market definition product market, relevant, 29 productive efficiency, 17, 19, 23 proof. See burden of proof regarding quantitative evidence protectionism price increase test for Article III of the GATT and, 158–162 treaty interpretation of, 142–144, 148 Public Choice Theory, 21
qualitative criteria, 58, 178–180, 335 quantitative evidence, 12, 185–331, 335–337. See also burden of proof regarding quantitative evidence; cross-price elasticities (CPE) of demand; expert economic testimony administrative burden of, 314–315
advantages of, 303–304
in antitrust law, 185–186
appraisal difficulties, 307–312
data requirements of, 312–314
as direct evidence of demand substitution, 178
disadvantages of, 307–330 “imperfection” of, 262, 307–312, 325–327 main benefit of, 185
objections and criticisms to use of, 304–306
objectivity and truth, legal versus scientific notions of, 307–312, 315, 325–327
price comparison, 169, 189
qualitative criteria, relationship to, 335 refutation of, 327–330
resistance to, 6–7
shock analysis, 189
WTO law, dispute settlement procedure in, 186–188, 189
R² or adjusted R² statistic in multiple regression analysis, 270, 270–271, 270–271, 270–271 reasonable interchangeability test, 59, 60, 64, 67, 124
Reference Manual on Scientific Evidence, US, 205 Regan, D. H., 147
regression analysis, 253–273
autocorrelation, 296, 297, 299
averaging, as generalized form of, 296
data observations, import of, 293–294
data requirements of, 312–314
defined, 253
determining regression line, 257, 259 display of results in economic regressions, 256 “imperfection” of regression models, 262, 307–312, 325–327
interpretation of relevant parameters, 294–295
legal context, practical use in, 253–255 linear regression, 256, 256 market definition case law using, 280–289
multicollinearity, 296–297, 299
multiple regression analysis
advantages of, 303–304
coefficient estimates, 266–267 confidence intervals, 267–268, 271 defined and described, 260–262
disadvantages of, 307–330
estimation of demand elasticities using, 263–265 evidentiary weight, appraising, 266–271 “goodness of fit,” measuring, 270–271, 286 new product introductions, distortion of CPE of demand due to, 248 normal or Gaussian distribution in, 266 null hypothesis, testing, 268–270, 269, 271
objections and criticisms to use of, 304–306
practical or economic significance, 272–273 R² or adjusted R² statistic, 270, 270–271, 270–271, 270–271 standard errors (SE), 266–267 statistical significance, 268–270, 271–273
t-statistics, 269, 269, 271, 285
OLS (ordinary least squares), 259, 267, 296
parameter estimation, 253
results, reliability of, 295–299
scatter diagrams, 257
simple regression, 255–260
table of outputs, 283 t. 1
transparency and accountability in use of, 299–303 variables included in market definition case law regressions, 267–268 relevant market. See product likeness and relevant market relevant product market and relevant geographic market, 29
residual demand curve, 224
retail versus wholesale CPE of demand, 235–237
reverse Cellophane Fallacy
(underpriced CPE of demand), 240–241, 251
Ricardo, D., trade theory of, 22–24 role of market definition, 12, 29–56 in antitrust law analysis of market power, 29–40
as analytical tool, 34–40
direct measurement of market power, 37–38
economic definition of market power, 36 indirect measurement of market power, 38–40 legal definition of market power, 35
relevant product market and relevant geographic market, 29
statutory law on, 30–34
in Article III of the GATT, 40–54
beneficiaries of Article III, 51 fiscal measures in Article III:2(1) and (2), 45–49
“like” and DCS products, concepts of, 40–41, 47–48, 49–51 non-discrimination obligation of NT (national treatment), 43–44
regulatory measures in Article III:4, 49–51
structure of Article, 44–45 types of discriminatory treatment covered by, 53–54
as economic exercise, 54
underlying purpose, focus on, 6, 13 SATAP (“so as to afford protection to the domestic production”) requirements, Article III, 47, 51, 89, 91–92, 161
scatter diagrams, 257
selection bias in expert economic testimony, 198
shock analysis, 189, 276
simple regression, 255–260
“small but significant and non-transitory increase in price” (SSNIP) test in conceptual framework for an economic approach to market definition, 132, 149, 150, 157, 158, 171, 172, 177 CPE of demand and, 225, 226–228, 232, 235, 240, 244, 273 in historical evolution from traditional to economic approach, 96, 97–100, 111, 127 profitability of SSNIP, determining, 227, 232
statistical and economic significance, confusion of, 273 “so as to afford protection to the domestic production” (SATAP) requirements, Article III, 47, 51, 89, 91–92, 161 sovereignty and CPE of demand, tensions between, 237–239
SPS (Sanitary and Phytosanitary) Agreement (WTO), 114, 194, 194, 207, 207 SSNIP test. See “small but significant and non-transitory increase in price” (SSNIP) test standard errors burden of proof in quantitative evidence, relationship to, 322–325
in multiple regression analysis, 266–267 standard of proof. See burden of proof regarding quantitative evidence statistical significance burden of proof in quantitative evidence, relationship to, 321–325
in multiple regression analysis, 268–270, 271–273 Stigler, G. J., 169–172
strategic markets, 172
submarkets, 60, 62
sufficiency of expert economic testimony, 209 summary judgment, expert economic testimony limited by, 209, 209 “supply-side” factors encouraging move to economic approach, 116–117 supply-side substitution antitrust law on, 150–151 Article III of the GATT and, 152–156
surveys, use of CPE of demand in, 277–279
Sweden, Panels of expert adjudicators in, 202
Sykes, A. O., 25

$t$-statistics in multiple regression analysis, 269, 269, 271, 285 tariff classification, as criterion for product likeness, 74–75, 77, 81, 179 Technical Barriers to Trade (TBT) Agreements (WTO), 114
Textiles and Clothing Agreement (GATT), 182
TFEU (Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union), 32–33, 34, 35, 97, 135, 137–140, 163, 175, 176, 239, 243 trade law. See Article III of the GATT; General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade; international trade law; World Trade Organization traditional formalistic approach, 57–94
in antitrust law, 58–67
arbitrary nature of, 119–123
in Article III of the GATT, 67–94
See also Border Tax Report
in conceptual framework for an economic approach to market definition, 178–181
defined, 57
degrees of substitutability, failure to reflect, 126–128 pertinent question, failure to respond to, 123–124 pre-determined results, leading to, 124–126 problems with, 119–128
qualitative criteria in, 58, 178–180 training, education, and guidance for adjudicators regarding expert economic testimony, 205–206, 217 transparency and accountability in use of CPE of demand, 299–303 treaty interpretation of Article III of GATT, 133–148 contextual analysis, 135–140
EU legal regime, in context of, 135, 137–140 fundamental economic purpose, 141–142, 147–148 historical circumstances, 140–141 marketplace comparator, determining, 145–148 non-discrimination, legal concepts inherent in, 141 ordinary meaning of the words, 133–148 protectionism, interpretation of, 142–144, 148 purposive interpretation, 141–148 standard of discrimination, 142–144
VLCT rules of treaty interpretation, 133–134, 140
WTO Agreements, in context of, 135, 136–137 Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union (TFEU), 32–33, 34, 35, 97, 135, 137–140, 163, 175, 176, 239, 243 truth and objectivity, legal versus scientific notions of, 199–200, 222, 262, 307–312, 315, 325–327 underpriced CPE of demand (reverse Cellophane Fallacy), 240–241, 251 US antitrust law. See also antitrust law burden of proof in, 318–319 US antitrust law (cont.)
econometric analysis welcomed in, 280 economic approach in, 2, 95–97, 112
expert economic testimony in, 192, 205, 206, 209, 211, 212, 214–215 market definition in statutory law, 30–32 Merger Guidelines (US DoJ, 1982 and 1992), 95–100, 150, 151, 185, 205, 228, 242, 332
purpose of, 15
quantitative methods in, 185
traditional formalistic approach in, 58–63
US Department of Justice (DoJ) economic presence of, 117
Merger Guidelines (1982 and 1992), 95–100, 150, 151, 185, 205, 228, 242, 332
US Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (FRCP), 301
US Federal Trade Commission (FTC), 117, 192
US objections to use of CPE by WTO dispute settlement bodies, 237 Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties (VCLT), 70, 133–134, 140 welfare benefits
of antitrust law, 19–21
congruence of standards regarding, 26–28
of international trade law, 25–26
wholesale versus retail CPE of demand, 235–237 Wille, S. B., 238
World Trade Organization (WTO).
See also Article III of the GATT;
General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade; international trade law Antidumping Agreement (1994), 136
burden of proof in, 318
comparative advantage, based on theory of, 26 CPE of demand in GATT Article III dispute settlement procedures.
See under cross-price
elasticities (CPE) of demand Customs Valuation Agreement (1994), 136 data limitations of quantitative analysis for disputes involving, 313 discovery and transparency rules, lack of, 301 DSU (Dispute Settlement Understanding), 115, 118, 193, 202, 204, 207–209, 210, 222, 314, 319 economic interpretation of WTO matters, 332
backlash against, 128–130
development of, 4–5
Economic Research and Statistics Division, 204 establishment of WTO and incorporation of GATT 1947 as GATT 1994, 77 exceptional nature of WTO Panels in judicial landscape, 221
expert economic testimony in dispute settlement procedure.
See under expert economic testimony judicialization of dispute settlement procedures, 114–116 quantitative approach in dispute settlement procedures, 186–188, 189 SPS (Sanitary and Phytosanitary) Agreement, 114, 194, 194, 207, 207 TBT (Technical Barriers to Trade) Agreements, 114 treaty interpretation of Article III of GATT in context of, 135, 136–137