Index

Page numbers in italics indicate illustrations; page numbers with ‘n’ refer to notes in the text.

abundance rhetoric: juxtaposed with hunger by Niedecker, 10, 54–59; satirized in “Still Life #30,” 2, 3; and U.S. rationing program, 62, 64

Adamson, Joni, 151
Adorno, Theodor, 84–85
advertising, see marketing discourse agribusiness: and capitalism, 18, 56, 158; and Cather’s fiction, 9–10, 20–21, 44–46, 166, 175n12; compared to reproductive medicine in My Year of Meats, 119–20, 139–41; historical emergence of, 1, 44–45; and intellectual property, 15, 158, 177n47; locavore resistance to, 154–55; marketing rhetoric, 13–16; and militarized food systems, 12–13; and modernity, 1, 157, 165; and Ozeki’s fiction, 120, 129, 139–40, 146–47, 153, 201n12; relationship to weapons production, 12–13; reliance on information networks, 124; term origin, 1, 44; war as profit center for, 56; and World War II propaganda, 10; see also industrial agriculture agricultural production: promoted by World War I propaganda, 46; U.S. government support of, 157, 209n18; World War II gains in, 10, 59, 184n45; see also food production agricultural settlement: correlated with military conquest, 19; and nativist ideology, 28 agriculture: community supported (CSA), 4; compared to communication media, 123–27; and information technology in All Over Creation, 117–18; military technology repurposed for, 12–13, 32, 40–43, 46, 157; in postindustrial society, 1, 48, 117, 148; technology as vital to, 2; U.S. government support of, 157, 209n18; war allied with, 55, 36, 59
Alaimo, Stacy, 139
Alexandra Bergson (O Pioneers character): attachment to place, 23, 28–29, 32; as capitalist-farmer, 22–25; and gender roles, 22, 23–25, 32; see also O Pioneers
All Over Creation (Ruth Ozeki): as almanac, 151–52; analogies of agriculture and communication media, 123–27; analogies of people and plants, 119–21, 201n12; and computerized farming, 2, 117–18; hybrid form of, 150, 152; information trope in, 123–24, 151–52; as muckraking novel, 31; see also My Year of Meats; Ozeki, Ruth almanacs: and bioart, 152; concept of, 153; and locavore memoir, 152; and Ozeki’s fiction, 153–55; and realist narratives, 9, 152
Alternative Food Networks (Goodman et al.), 161
Ambruster, Karla, 106
American Beef Cooking (Yu Hayami), 148 “The American Century,” 6, 12
Anderson, Katherine, 151
An Extravagant Hunger (Anne Zimmerman), 68
Animal Factories (Peter Singer and Jim Mason), 131
Animal Farm (George Orwell), 50
Animal, Vegetable, Miracle (Barbara Kingsolver): and agriculture/military connection, 157; nostalgia for the preindustrial, 152, 157
Ántonia Shimerda (O Pioneers character): as earth mother figure, 32; see also My Ántonia
Appadurai, Arjun, 7, 113
Artists for Victory, 62 balanced diet, see standardized diet
Barthes, Roland, 4, 8–9
Beckett, Samuel: and food power, 12; and politicized form of modernism, 10; Waiting for Godot, 82–89

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org
Index

Beck, Ulrich, 7, 126
beef trade, see meat industry
Belasco, Warren: as food studies scholar, 8; on future of agriculture, 2; on futuristic kitchens, 71; on government nutrition rhetoric, 15; on New Nutrition, 43: “recombinant culture,” 15; on the supermarket, 94–95
Bell, Daniel, 7
Benjamin, Walter, 114–15
Bennett, Jane,
Berry, Wendell: and ethical eating, 118; and Yeoman farmer trope, 22, 30; and as emblem of childhood, 47; as exoticized food, 7, 116, 158; as global commodity, 112; and Hershey, 73–74, 188n102; and locavores, 158, 163; in One of Ours, 47; in Tar Baby, 106–8, 112, 116
bioart, 152–53
biotechnology: and DES, 128, 126–41; and GMOs, 15–16, 124; see also GMOs; technology
Bisler, Barron, photographs, 13, 130
A Book of Mediterranean Food (Elizabeth David): luxury feeding vs. hunger in, 50, 89; as response to British austerity policy, 79–82; transnational gastronomy in, 80–81
Borlaug, Norman, 12
Bourdieu, Pierre: concept of habitus, 94–96, 187n82; concept of taste and M.F.K. Fisher, 66–67; and supermarket scene in Tar Baby, 94, 96 bovine spongiform encephalopathy (BSE), and Japan’s beef ban, 142, 145
Braudel, Fernand, 193n77
Brillat-Savarin, Jean Anthelme, The Physiology of Taste, 166
Buell, Lawrence, 139 capitalism, see late capitalism capitalized farm: in “Nebraska: The End of a Cycle,” 26; in One of Ours, 45, 48, 56; in O Pioneers, 22–25
“capitalized kitchen,” 70–71, 188n92
Carney, Judith, 103
Carpenter, Novella: on her locavore experiment, 154; see also Farm City: The Education of an Urban Farmer
Carpentier, Alejo, 97
Carson, Rachel, 14
Castells, Manuel, 16, 124, 160
Cather, Willa: agribusiness anticipated by, 30, 166; and attachment to place, 23, 28–29, 177n125; concern about commodity crops, 44; concern with standardization of dietary practices, 43, 179n73; critical appraisal of, 8, 20, 22; critique of muckraking writers, 21–22, 148; and gender roles, 22, 23–25, 32, 43, 178n49; and industrialization of family farms, 9–10, 20–21, 22–25, 30–31, 43–46; as journalist/editor, 22–23; and nativism, 20, 23, 28, 30, 179n90; “Nebraska: The End of a Cycle,” 26; “The Novel Déménilâe,” 21; and postindustrial pastoral, 48; The Professor’s House, 28; and rural modernity, 9–10, 20, 22–23; “The Bohemian Girl,” 27; and U.S. expansionism, 10; and yeoman farmer trope, 30–31; see also My Antonia; One of Ours; O Pioneers
Cela, Matthew, 21, 28, 177n25
Center for Genomic Gastronomy: “Edible: The Taste of Things to Come” exhibit, 1, 4–5, 154, 164; redifinition of preindustrial agriculture, 163–64
ChâFREEE, Aimé, 102
Chamiseau, Patrick, Chronique de sept misères, 100
Chiu, Monica: on Buddhism and meat eating, 142, 143; comparison of The Jungle to My Year of Meats, 204n49; on use of metaphor in My Year of Meats, 138, 148–49 chocolate: and ge demonstration kitchen, 188n47 climate change: and factory farms, 11, 157; and methane emissions associated with agriculture, 11, 157, 203n45, 209n112
cocoa, see chocolate
Coe, Sophie and Michael, 107–8
Coe, Sue: “Battery Cage,” 124, 125; Dead Meat, 131; “Elephants We Must Never Forget” exhibition, 132; “Feed Lot,” 132, 133; Porkopolis, 124, 125, 128, 132; “Veal Skinner,” 132, 134 Cold War: abundance rhetoric, 2; and global food market, 6, 64, 145, 147; “Kitchen Debate” and GE demonstration kitchen, 71; and Cold War (cont.)
militarized food systems, 11–13, 89, 119, 139; and supermarket, 94, 155, 194n22; and Tar Baby’s narrative of the Caribbean, 104, 115
colonialism, see imperialism Columbus: power correlated with agricultural resources by, 103–4; sugarcane introduced to Caribbean by, 103; Voyages, 12
Coming Home to Eat (Gary Paul Nabhan): foodshed concept in, 155–56; as locavore memoir, 18; as protest of agribusiness, 18, 121, 154–35 commodity crops: Cather’s concern about, 44; impact on food access in Tar Baby, 113; linked with food shortages in How to Cook a Wolf, 77; and war profiteering, 48; and World War I, 44–45; see also monoculture commodity fetishism: as marketing strategy, 101–2; and Marx, Karl, 7 community supported agriculture (CSA), 4 computerized farming, see information technology concentrated animal feeding operation (CAFO), see feedlots Conlogue, William: on Alexandra Bergson (Carber character), 23; on industrial agriculture, 30, 117 corporatism: and farmers in Cather character, 23; on industrial agriculture, 30, 117 consumerism: and farmers in Cather’s fiction, 26, 42–43, 45; juxtaposed with war-related famine in How to Cook a Wolf, 73–75; and kitchen technology, 70–72; meat system as emblematic in My Year of Meats, 149; and neoliberalism in Tar Baby, 102, 111–13, 115; and New Deal policy, 60, 189n50; and “rummaging” in Waiting for Godot, 87; and rural modernity, 20 currency foods, see processed foods cookbooks: American Beef Cooking (Yu Hayami), 148; A Book of Mediterranean Cooking (Elizabeth David), 10, 50, 79–82; How to Cook a Wolf (M.F.K. Fisher), 50, 68–78; and literature of food, 6; mid-century cookbooks, 72, 95, 187n67 Coolidge, Calvin, “Address to Farm Bureau Federation” (1923), 4, 4–5, 10, 18, 19, 158
countercuisine, 4, 158 creative economy” (M.F.K. Fisher), 69–71 de Crèvecoeur, St. John, Letters from an American Farmer, 29–30 Critical Art Ensemble, 112–13
The Crying of Lot (Thomas Pynchon), 17–18 culinary cosmopolitanism: and “Edible: The Taste of Things to Come,” 1, 4–5, 164; and globalization, 5; and imperialism, 65; and locavore movement, 158; Massimo Montanari on, 6, 160; and supermarket scene in Tar Baby, 94–96, 158; and The Omnivore’s Dilemma, 158
Cwiertka, Katarzyna, 143
David, Elizabeth: A Book of Mediterranean Cooking, 10, 50, 79–82; use of modernist modes, 50, 80–81
Davis, Elmer, 49, 60–61
DDT, 59
Dead Meat (Sue Coe), 131
Delillo, Don, 128, 149–50
Deloughrey, Elizabeth, 91–92, 102–3
Dentfeld, Zack, 154, 164
DES (diethylstilbestrol): effects of, 205n63, 206n68; and My Year of Meats, 128–29, 136–41
Deutsch, Tracey, 35–36
diaspora, as Tar Baby theme, 11, 11, 95, 99, 109, 116 Distinction (Pierre Bourdieu), 67 diversity: biodiversity and cultural diversity in Ozeki’s fiction, 118, 120–21, 127, 201n12; and culinary traditions, 12, 43; and monoculture farming, 5, 77, 160
Douglas, Mary, 8–9
DuPlessis, Rachel Blau, 51
DuPuis, E. Melanie, see Goodman et al.
Durrell, Lawrence, 80
Eating Animals (Jonathan Safran Foer), 124–26 eating out, 64–65, 70, 143
“Edible: The Taste of Things to Come” (Center for Genomic Gastronomy 2012 exhibit), 1, 4–5, 154, 164
Eisenhower, Dwight D., 13, 50
“Electrified Farm” (New York World’s Fair exhibit), 2, 3 “Elephants We Must Never Forget” exhibition (Sue Coe), 132 empire, see imperialism Empson, William, 142, 203n73 environmental criticism, 7, 92, 102, 171n23, 174n54 environmental justice: activism, 136, 155, 160; and postcolonialism, 101 environmental nonfiction, 112, 155 environmental organizations: critique of industrial agriculture, 4, 11; opposition to GMOs, 4, 16, 114 ethical eating, 158, 208n7, 209n19 ethnic cuisine: soul food, 91, 103; stereotypes about, 95 factory farms: and climate change, 11; correlated with obesity in My Year of Meats, 139–40; and Eating Animals (Jonathan S factory farms (cont.)
Index

Safra...24–26; and Fast Food Nation
(Eric Schlosser), 132–36; feedlot exposés, 131–36; methane emissions, 11, 157, 203145,
209112; and "Milking Parlor, California
2007" (Barron Bisker), 156; and Porkopolis (Sue Cox), 124, 125, 128, 132; see also feedlots fair trade, 116, 165
famine: Bengali famine, 79; and Green Revolution, 12; in M.F.K. Fisher’s works, 65, 73, 77–78, 166; in Nieder...s poetry, 58, 89;
in Waiting for Godot, 83, 88; and World War II, 41, 75, 79, 189108, 190113; see also Irish Potato Famine
Farm City: The Education of an Urban Farmer (Novella Carpenter): challenges of urban farming in, 160–61, 164; foodshed concept in, 162; georgic mode in, 164; reliance on networks in, 18, 163–64; supermarket valued in, 114, 162–63; as unconventional locavore memoir, 161
The Farmer’s Almanac, 131 farming: as an enterprise in food system, 1, 48;
industrialization of in Cather’s fiction, 9–10, 20–21, 22–23, 30–31, 41–46; reliance on information technology, 2, 16–17, 17–19, 122–26, 151–52; see also agriculture; factory farms; food production; industrial agriculture; urban farming Fast Food Nation (Eric Schlosser): consumer health concerns in reception of, 133–34; critique of factory farms, 132–36; narrative structure, 135–36; slaughterhouse in, 135 Faulkner, William, 21 feedlot exposés, 124, 130–39, 130, 133, 134, 149–50 feedlots, 73, 124, 128, 130, 141; see also factory farms feminism: and Oecki’s fiction, 11, 119–20; see also gender; women
fine dining, see luxury feeding Fischer, Mike: on Cather’s nativism, 20, 175119; on pioneers and U.S. imperialism, 28
Fisher, Dorothy Canfield, 45
Fisher, M.F.K.: ambivalence toward gourmet eating, 65–66; The Gastronomical Me, 65–68; integration of eating practices with geopolitics, 10; modernist modes applied to cookbooks by, 50; see also How to Cook a Wolf
Fleissner, Jennifer, and food studies, 9 Foer, Jonathan Safran: Eating Animals, 124–26; and gourmet mode, 12 food: and biotechnology, 16; as complex chain of activities, 9; and cultural capital, 66, 96; as dialectical, 167–68; equated with weaponry in World War I propaganda, 46; linked with national security, 49, 50, 199; as multivalent concept, 4; networked structure of, 16–17;
politicization of in mid-century literature, 50–51; structuralist theories of, 8–9; war allied with, 13
food access: as focus of food justice movement, 90; impact of commodity crops on in Tar Baby, 113; impact of supermarket on, 25; and social class in M.F.K. Fisher’s works, 6–67, 72, 76–77; and social class in Nieder...s poetry, 49, 50, 56–59, 83; and social class in postwar U.K., 78–79; and social class in Waiting for Godot, 83–88; and the supermarket in Farm City, 162–63 food aid programs: and Marshall Plan, 78; and postwar British austerity policy, 78; U.S. export market expanded by, 44–45, 64 food consumption: interdependencies with food production, 9, 168; separated from production through globalization processes, 7; see also cookbooks; countercuisine; culinary cosmopolitanism; eating out; ethnic cuisine; luxury feeding; supermarket Food, Inc. (film), 156 food insecurity: documented by OWI, 62; and reliance on agricultural imports, 90, 192112, 3; see also famine; hunger food justice movements: and child labor, 116; food access as focus of, 90; and globalization theory, 7–8; and locavore movement, 160;
and Tar Baby, 10, 116
food-mile construct, 159, 210128; see also locavore memoir; slow food/locavore movement food power: as indicator of global power, 4, 10; linked with imperialism in Tar Baby, 11, 109, 111, 115–16; origins in U.S. agricultural discourse, 61; role of information management in, 117–18; symbolized in Waiting for Godot, 12; transnational social movements as response to, 4; and U.S./
Japanese conflicts over meat, 143–45; see also U.S. food power food production: and feedlot exposés, 130–36; and GMOs, 15–16, 124; interdependencies with food consumption, 9, 168; military technology repurposed for, 32, 40–43, 46, 157; and postindustrial pastoral, 17; separated from consumption through globalization processes, 7; see also agricultural production;
agriculture; factory farms; farming;
industrial agriculture; urban farming food routes: and imperialism/neoliberalism link in Tar Baby, 90, 102, 114–15; and nature/culture schism in Caribbean postcolonial literature, 102–3; significance in postcolonial food routes (cont.)
environmental criticism, 103; transpacific mapping of in My Year of Meats, 118; and transplantation of New World foods, 103 food security: and Caribbean kitchen gardens, 103; 1797854; price shocks (2006–2008), 90, 192121; and the supermarket in Farm City, 162–63; and “victory gardens,” 4, 159 foodshed: concept of in Coming Home to Eat, 155–56; concept of in Farm City, 162 food shortages: influence on Elizabeth David, 80; linked with commodity crops in How to Cook a Wolf, 77; and M.F.K. Fisher, 65, 68; uneven impacts of during World War II, 78–79; and Waiting for Godot, 86–88; see also famine; food insecurity; hunger food studies: cuisine/ agriculture division in, 2, 8–9, 16995; as interdisciplinary field, 161; literature as gauche to, 9, 166–67; scholarship trends in, 8–9, 165–66 food system: and Coolidge’s rhetoric, 1–2; farming as an enterprise in, 1, 48; and late capitalism, 21; and literature as analytic tool, 5–8; militarization of, 12–13; 13; and modernity, 4, 9, 92; in national imaginary, 1–2, 5; as networked, 16–17, 124–26; and power, 4; surplus/hunger paradox in, 4, 170111 foodways: in Coming Home to Eat, 156; concept of, 9, 121; in Tar Baby, 92, 102, 114, 116 food writing, see literature of food Forks over Knives (film), 156
For Paul and Other Poems (Lorine Niedecker), 51–52
François-Anne-Lise, 16, 126
“Free Range Grain” (Critical Art Ensemble), 152–53 free trade: critique of in Tar Baby, 10–11, 102, 113, 115; and gender, 118–19, 139; and globalization, 6–7, 104, 139; and meat industry, 145; see also globalization; late capitalism; neoliberalism
Fussell, Paul, on war narratives, 34, 38, 179169
Gabalresh, John Kenneth, 60
The Gastronomical Me (M.F.K. Fisher), 65–68
Gaud, William, 12
gender: and factory farms, 135; and food writing, 8; and globalization theory, 138–39; see also feminism; women gender roles: in Cather’s fiction, 22, 32, 43, 178149; in One of Our Number, 32; in O Pioneers, 22, 23–25, 32; and World War I propaganda, 35, 37 genetically modified organisms (GMOs), see GMOs (genetically modified organisms) georgic mode: in Cather’s fiction, 20–21; in contemporary food rhetoric, 12, 20; in Farm City, 164; in feedlot exposés, 12; and Monsanto marketing rhetoric, 13–16; in One of Our Number, 46–47; and realist narratives, 9
Georgics (Virgil), 15, 27, 28, 46, 180182
Giddens, Anthony, 6, 37, 117
Gifford, Terry, 9
Gigante, Denise, 8, 165
Gilroy, Paul, 91–92
Ginsberg, Allen, “A Supermarket in California,” 17
Gissiant, Edouard, 12, 102–3, 197160 globalization: and 1999 WTO Seattle protests, 151–56; concept of, 6–8, 16–17, 202126; and culinary cosmopolitism, 5; as enabling connections, 7–8, 16–17; and environmental critique, 7–8, 171213; and food aid programs, 44–45; and food system, 5–6, 8–9, 24–25, 145, 167; and gender, 138–39; impact on women in Tar Baby and My Year of Meats, 138–39; linked with hunger in How to Cook a Wolf, 77; and localism, 7–8, 8, 160, 201121; and locavore movement, 122, 152, 154, 158, 160, 163; and networks, 8, 16–18, 160; as separating places of production and consumption, 7; and slow food movement, 120; Tar Baby as critique of, 94, 107–8, 115–16; see also free trade; late capitalism; neoliberalism
GMOs (genetically modified organisms): and “Free Range Grain” (Critical Art Ensemble), 152–53; and Monsanto, 15–16, 114, 172159; and U.S. food power, 4
Goldsmith, Kenneth, 150–51
Goodman et al., Alternative Food Networks, 159, 161, 202123 gourmet dining, see luxury feeding Goyal, Yogita, 91
Great Depression, 60, 18190
Green Revolution, 12–13, 14, 89
grocery stores, see supermarket
Guthman, Julie: on industrial eating, 158–59; on the supermarket, 21116
Handley, George, 102–3
Harris, Richard C., 12–33
Harvard Business Review, 1, 44
Harvey, David, 7, 113
haute cuisine, see luxury feeding
Hawthorne, Nathaniel, 17
Hayami, Yu, American Beef Cooking, 148
Hayes, N. Katherine, 126
heirloom crops, 121
Heise, Ursula K.: on globalization, 7; on Ozeki’s use of analogies, 119, 121, 20112
Hemingway, Ernest, criticism of One of Our Number, 32, 43
Index

240

Hershey Company, 73–74, 74, 107–8, 183n102

Howard, Daisyma: agricultural technology

Hsu, Hsuan, 6

Huggan, Graham, 102

hunger: and food rhetoric, 103; juxtaposed with consumerism in How to Cook a Wolf, 73–75, 89; meanings of in M.F.K. Fisher's works, 66–67, 76; as outcome of Caribbean monoculture farming, 103; as theme in Tar Baby, 93; as theme in Waiting for Godot, 10, 81–83, 86–89; see also famine; food access; food insecurity; food justice; food shortages idyllic mode: in Letters from an American Farmer (St. John de Crèvecoeur), 30; in pastoral tradition, 20 imperialism: and Columbus, 103–4; and culinary cosmopolitanism, 65; embedded in Tar Baby landscape, 105; and food writing, 10; neoliberalism linked to in Tar Baby, 10–11, 90, 102, 106–8, 111–15; pioneer, 20, 175n19; and U.S. power, 6

Hunger Overcomes? (Andrew Warnes), 91

imperialism, British: and A Book of Mediterranean Food, 80–81; food control and rationing as vital to, 79

In Defense of Food (Michael Pollan), 156

industrial agriculture: Calvin Coolidge on, 1, 4, 5, 10, 18, 19, 198; depicted in How to Cook a Wolf, 75; and early muckrakers, 6; environmentalist critique of, 4; family farms shift to in Carter's fiction, 9–10, 20–21, 22–25, 30–31; immigrant farmers decoupled from in My Antonia, 27–28; and information technology, 117–18; and methane emissions, 11, 157, 203n45, 209n12; and migrant workers in My Year of Meats, 140; modernist veneration of, 12–13; World War I impact on, 32, 47; see also agribusiness; agriculture; factory farms; farming; feedlots; food production; monoculture

“industrial eating,” 167–8, 158–59, 209n19

information management, see information technology

information networks, see information technology information technology: and almanacs, 151; and bioart, 152–53; Carpenter's reliance on in Farmer City, 163–64; and food system, 14–17, 124–26; and Ozeki's fiction, 2, 117–19, 122–24, 150–53; and postindustrial society, 117–18; concern in contemporary food literature, 124–26, 150–51

Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), 157

International Monetary Fund (IMF), 99, 113

“In the great snowfall before the bomb” (Lorine Niedecker), 52–56

Irish Potato Famine, 77, 83

James, Henry, 21

Jameson, Fredric: on modernism, 80–81, 113; on Waiting for Godot, 82, 84

Japan: conflicts with U.S. over meat, 142, 144–45; decline of food power, 145; as food importer, 143–45; meat consumption in, 143–45; as target of “Desire Beef” campaign, 147–48; U.S. postwar occupation of, 143–45

Jefferson, Thomas, and pastoral tradition, 1, 20, 25–26, 163n3

Jim Burden (My Antonia character): image of American Midwest social structure, 28–29; implicated in modernization, 30–31; response to the prairie landscape, 29, 32, see also My Antonia

Judt, Tony, 78, 79

The Jungle (Upton Sinclair), 11, 21, 41, 129–30, 132, 134

Kennedy, Scott Hamilton, documentary on urban farming, 164

Kingsolver, Barbara: Animal, Vegetable, Miracle, 152, 157; and slow food, 121 kitchen gardens, and food security, 103, 197n54

kitchen technologies, and the “capitalized kitchen,” 70–71, 188n92

Koerner, Henry, 62

Kramer, Cathrine, 154, 164

Krumholz, Linda, 91, 96, 111

© in this web service Cambridge University Press modernism (cont.)
80–81; and My Year of Meats, 142; politicized in mid-century literature, 10, 50 modernity: Anthony Giddens on, 37, 117; concept of late modernity, 7, 127, 202/33; and food system, 4, 9, 92; see also rural modernity:
monoculture and corn, 157–58, 209/8; hunger as result of, 103; see also commodity crops; factory farms; industrial agriculture
Monsanto: marketing rhetoric, 13–16; New Leaf potato, 124; and Rachel Carson, 14
Montanari, Massimo, 6, 160
Morrison, Toni, 50
muckraking writers: Cather
neoliberalism: and consumerism linked in Tar Baby, 111–13, 115; and imperialism linked in Tar Baby, 10–11, 90, 102, 106–8, 111–15; and labor theory of value, 115; vs. national sovereignty in trade conflicts, 145; and World Trade Organization (WTO), 99; see also free trade; globalization; late capitalism
Monteith, Vernon, 21
Munro, William, 124
Museum of Modern Art (MOMA), war poster
My Antonia (Willa Cather): anti-modernization rhetoric in, 26, 27; immigrant farmers decoupled from industrialization in, 27–28; nativism in, 28; pastoral tradition in, 25–26, 27–31; see also Cather, Willa; Jim Burden; One of Ours; O Pioneers
My Year of Meats (Ruth Ozeki): agribusiness and obstetrics analogized in, 119–20, 139–41; agribusiness/slow food conflicts in, 11; and All Over Creation, 150; allusions to military-industrial complex, 146–47; as almanac, 141–52; compared to The Jungle, 204/49; critical appraisal of, 118–19; DES as topic of Jane’s documentary, 128–29, 136–41, 148; and documentary mode, 119–20, 128–29, 136–37, 141, 147–50; fedex lost as source material for, 131–36; as feminist narrative, 11, 118, 140–41; and globalization’s impact on women, 138–39; hybrid narrative strategy, 118–20, 129, 137; information management in, 110–13; mapping of transpacific food routes, 118; meat-and-grain diet satirized in, 11; metaphorization of meat in, 148–50; as muckraking novel, 11, 119, 131–32, 148–50; as narrative of postindustrial food network, 131, 148; as parody of agribusiness marketing campaigns, 147–48; pastiche in, 111, 142, 148, 150, 153; personal vs. systemic registers in, 118–19, 128, 129, 132, 137, 139–42, 148; as postindustrial pastoral, 150–53; postmodern elements in, 142; slaughterhouse in, 136–38; as slow food/locavore narrative, 118; source material for, 128; and Tar Baby, 138–39; U.S./Japanese conflicts over meat as context for, 144–46; see also All Over Creation; Ozeki, Ruth Nabhan, Gary Paul, Coming Home to Eat, 18, 121, 154–16
National Cattlemen’s Beef Association (NCBA), “Desire Beef” campaign, 147–48
nativism in Cather’s fiction, 20, 23, 28, 30; in U.S.
neoliberalism: and consumerism linked in Tar Baby, 111–13, 115; and imperialism linked in Tar Baby, 10–11, 90, 102, 106–8, 111–15; and labor theory of value, 115; vs. national sovereignty in trade conflicts, 145; and World Trade Organization (WTO), 99; see also free trade; globalization; late capitalism Nestlé Corporation, 109, 110 networks: and food system, 8, 16–17, 124–26; and globalization, 8, 16–18, 160; local places as nodes in, 160; slow food/locavore movement relies on, 18, 122, 124, 158, 158–60, 163–64; and the supermarket, 17, 94–96
Newhaus, Jessamyne: on M.F.K. Fisher, 72; on processed foods, 73; on the supermarket, 95
New Goose (Lorine Niedecker): critique of food propaganda in, 55–56, 58, 61; impact of war on rural communities in, 49, 52–54, 56–59; luxury feeding vs. hunger in, 50; see also Niedecker, Lorine
New Nutrition, and home economics, 43
New Woman: and Cather’s fiction, 22, 180/74; and One of Ours, 43; and World War I propaganda, 37
Niedecker, Lorine: abundance juxtaposed with hunger by, 10, 54–59; “Bombings,” 51; concern with food access and social class, 49, 50, 56–59, 81; contradictions in U.S. food politics highlighted by, 49, 58–59; For Paul and Other Poems, 51–52; and impact of war on rural communities, 52–54, 56–59, 183/26; and impoverishment of rural workers, 56–59, 89; “In the great snowfall before the bomb,” 52–56; on meat consumption, 74; modernism politicized by, 50; as Objectivist poet, 51–52, 59; as regional poet with global perspective, 51–54; on U.S. vs. European rationings, 74; see also New Goose
Nineteen Eighty Four (George Orwell), 78
Nixon, Rob, 106
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Index</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Norris, Frank: food production allegorized by, 21; and industrial agriculture, 6, 8; The Octopus, 21</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>North, Michael, 22, 43</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Notes on the State of Virginia (Thomas Jefferson), 20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>“Notes Toward a Supreme Fiction” (Wallace Stevens), 65, 18675</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Novel Art (Mark McGurl), 21, 22, 27</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>nutrition rhetoric; and standardized diet, 43, 77; and World War II propaganda, 55–56</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Objectivism, 51–52, 59</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Octopus (Frank Norris), 21</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Office of Price Administration (OPA), 59–60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Office of War Information (OWI), see OWI</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Office of War Information)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ohsuki-Tierney, Emiko, 141–44</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Omnivore’s Dilemma (Michael Pollan), 17, 158; and agriculture/military link, 157; contrasted with Tar Baby, 158; and corn-based monoculture, 157–58; 209n18; and culinary cosmopolitanism, 158; as locavore memoir, 17, 156, 157–58</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>One of Ours (Willa Cather): capitalist-farmer in, 44–48; critical appraisal of, 32–33; and emergence of agribusiness, 44–46; Enid Royce as rural modernity symbol, 37, 43, 180n74; and gender roles, 43; georgic mode in, 46–47; indictment of industrialized food systems, 43–46; irony in, 33–34, 45; military-industrial complex articulated in, 12, 32, 40–43, 46–48; as narrative of rural war mobilization, 37, 54; omniscient narrator in, 33, 38, 39–41; pastoral tradition in, 32, 37–39; romanticism countered by realism in, 39–41, 46–47; rural modernity as theme in, 32, 37–38, 42–45; and slow food politics, 45; sources for, 33; war as boon for American farmers in, 44–45, 48, 56; see also Cather, Willa; Claude Wheeler; My Antonia; O Pioneers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>OPA (Office of Price Administration), food propaganda, 59–60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>open-pollinated seeds, see seeds, open-pollinated</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Opie, Frederick, 103</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>O Pioneers (Willa Cather): allusion to Whitman’s poem, 19; capitalized farm in, 22–25; food globalization in, 24–25; and gender roles, 22, 23–24, 32; nativism in, 28; and pastoral tradition, 25–26; rural modernity in, 22–25; shift to industrial agriculture in, 22–23; U.S. expansionism as frame for, 39; see also Alexandra Bergson; Cather, Willa; My Antonia; One of Ours</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Orenberg, Cynthia Laitman, 129, 136, 140, 203n41, 206n68</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>organic agriculture, see sustainable agriculture</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Orwell, George: Animal Farm, 50; food writing politicized by, 50; on inequities in food access, 78; and luxury feeding, 50, 64–65; Nineteen Eighty-Four, 78</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oulipo, and constraint-based food writing, 72</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>OWI (Office of War Information): food insecurity documented by, 61; and military/agriculture alliance, 55; rationing promoted as egalitarian by, 61–62, 65; war poster campaign, 61</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ozeki, Ruth L.: analogies of agriculture and communication media, 123–24, 126–27; analogies of people and plants, 118–20, 121, 205n12; hybrid narrative form, 119, 121–22, 150–53; interconnectedness as theme, 121–22; on My Year of Meats, 117; and postindustrial pastoral, 150–53; and slow food/locavore movement, 11, 118–22, 152; see also All Over Creation; My Year of Meats</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Palumbo-Liu, David, 128, 142</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Parrish, Dillwyn, 65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Partisan Review, 64, 65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pastiche, in My Year of Meats, 11, 142, 148, 150, 151</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pastoral tradition: in agribusiness discourse, 12–16; and Cather’s fiction, 19–21, 25–26, 27–31, 32, 37–39, 166; georgic mode in, 9, 12, 20; idyllic mode in, 205; and locavore memoir, 18, 52, 157; and male writers, 8; Mark McGurl on, 27; as masking technology, 35–16; and networked society, 17; Raymond Williams on, 20, 28, 30, 32; scholarly treatment of, 8; and St. John de Crèvecoeur, 29–30; in war narratives, 38, 179n69; and Wendell Berry, 30; William Empson on, 142, 203n73; yeoman farmer in, 20, 25–26, 29–30; see also georgic mode; idyllic mode; postindustrial pastoral patriarchy, meat system as metaphor for in My Year of Meats, 149</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Penberthy, Jenny, 53–54</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pesticides, 14, 44, 89, 127, 140</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Perrini, Carlo, 121, 156</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Philippon, Dan, 158</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Physiology of Taste (Jean Anthelme Brillat-Savarin), 65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>“Pioneers, O Pioneers” (Walt Whitman), 19, 30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pollan, Michael: on food system militarization, 13;</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>In Defense of Food, 156; on industrial</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org
Index

Pollan, Michael (cont.)
eating,” 157–58, 209n19; Second Nature: A Gardner’s Education, 156; and slow food, 121; The Omnivore’s Dilemma, 17, 156–58

Porkopolis (Sue Coe), 124, 125, 128, 132

postindustrial pastoral; and Cather’s fiction, 48; concept of, 35–38, 48, 174n54; and Monsanto’s marketing rhetoric, 15; and Ozeki’s fiction, 150–53; and the supermarket, 17–18

postindustrial society: agriculture in, 1, 48, 117, 148; concept of, 7, 117, 202n16; and information management, 117–18; and networks, 8, 16–18, 124; and service industries, 48

postmodernism: aspects of in Ozeki’s fiction, 119, 123, 142; and globalization, 7; and nature, 106

Pound, Ezra, 55

Pratt, Mary Louise, on the “imperial gaze,” 104 precision farming, 117–18 processed foods; and corn-based monoculture in The Omnivore’s Dilemma, 157–58; linked with war effort in World War II propaganda, 55–56; satirized in How to Cook a Wolf, 73–75, 74, 77; and “Still Life P30,” 2, 3 propaganda, see World War I propaganda; World War II propaganda

Pynchon, Thomas, The Crying of Lot, 17–18

Quartermain, Peter, on Objectivism, 51

radio, as propaganda medium, 55

Ramazani, Jahan, 52, 182n2

rationing, see U.K. rationing program; U.S. rationing program

Reardon, Joan, 71

Refuge (Terry Tempest Williams), 139

reification of commodities, 101–2, 195n40 restaurants, see eating out

Roach, Joseph, 83

Robbins, Bruce: on contemporary fiction, 150; and reification of commodities, 101

Rockwell, Norman, “Four Freedoms” covers, 61

romanticism, countered by realism in One of Ours, 39–41, 46–47

Roosevelt, Franklin D.: “Four Freedoms” speech, 61; on U.S. government’s role in democracy, 60

rum, imperial history of production, 99–101 rural communities: impact of war on explored by Niedecker, 49, 52–54, 66–59; as target of World War I propaganda, 33–36, 56; see also All Over Creation; Cather, Willa; My Antonia; One of Ours; rural modernity rural consumerism vs. agricultural productivity: in “Nebraska: The End of a Cycle,” 26; in One of Ours, 42–43, 45 rural modernity: Alexandra Bergson as signifying, 22–25; and Cather’s fiction, 9–10, 20, 22–23; concept of, 20, 173n77; and consumerism in “Nebraska: The End of a Cycle,” 26; EndRoyce as signifying, 37, 43, 180n4; as theme in One of Ours, 32, 37–38, 42–45; see also modernity

Sakoh, Katsuro, 143

Saldivar, Ramón, 64

Sassen, Saskia, 7, 113

Savage, Elizabeth, 57–58

Schlosser, Eric: Cogs in the Great Machine, 205n77; Fast Food Nation, 132–36; and george mood, 12

Second Nature: A Gardner’s Education (Michael Pollan), 156

seed patents, 15, 118, 127, 171n47

seed saving: as “open source biohacking,” 163–64; and terminator gene, 16

seeds, open-pollinated: analogized to multiethnic families in All Over Creation, 159; compared to open-source software in All Over Creation, 127; as information archives, 123–24

Sense of Place, Sense of Planet (Ursula K. Heise), 7

Shukin, Nicole, 137

Silent Spring (Rachel Carson), 14

Sinclair, Upton: critique of meat industry, 11; food production allegorized by, 25; and industrial agriculture, 6; The Jungle, 11, 41, 42–59, 132, 134

slaughterhouses, see feedlot exposés; feedlots; meat industry

Slow Food Internationa l, 156

slow food/localvore movement; and Carlo Petrini, 56; and culinary cosmopolitanism, 158; and “eating locally,” 155, 158–59; and ethical eating, 158, 208n7, 209n19; and food-mile construct, 139, 210n28; and How to Cook a Wolf, 71; ideology coopted by others, 159; and Michael Pollan, 121; as nostalgic retreat from globalization, 160; and One of Ours, 45; published literature, 156; reliance on networks, 18, 122, 124, 155, 158, 160–61, 163–64; and Ruth Ozeki, 11, 118–22, 152; tenets and practices, 121, 156; and “victory gardens,” 159

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org
Index

Index

More information

© in this web service Cambridge University Press  www.cambridge.org

Cambridge University Press 978-1-107-03282-8 - Global Appetites: American Power and the Literature of Food Allison Carruth

Index

Smiley, Jane, 11, 117
Social class and food access in M.F.K. Fisher’s works, 66–67, 72, 76–77; and food access in Niedecker’s poetry, 49, 50, 56–59, 85; and food access in Waiting for Godot, 85–88
Social realism, mixed with magical realism in Tar Baby, 95–98, 104–5; 111, 113–15 Standardized diet: Cather’s concern with, 43, 179 (critiqued in How to Cook a Wolf, 69–72, 76–77; promoted by WFA, 77
Steinbeck, John, 11, 117
Still Life with a Snowy Evening (Robert Frost), 106
Steinbeck, John, 111
Szalay, Michael, 60
Sze, Julie: on Ozeki, 65
Szalay, Michael, 60
Sugar: and Ozeki, 65
Supermarket pastoral, 97–101, 142–211; and Wendell Berry, 9
Sustainable agriculture: and Ozeki, 120–21; and urban farming, 162–65; and Wendell Berry, 9
Szlaby, Michael, 60
Sze, Julie: on Ozeki’s analogies, 121; on Ozeki’s treatment of DES, 138
Tar Baby (Toni Morrison): allusion to Enfamil controversy, 108–9; black diaspora as theme in, 91–92, 95–96, 109, 111; candy industry in, 91, 105, 106–9, 112; characters as consumers in global food chain, 92, 114; chocolate consumption/trade in, 93, 106–9, 113–14, 116; compared to Columbian rhetoric of Caribbean landscape, 104–5; contrasted with The Omnivore’s Dilemma, 138; correspondences with tar baby folktales, 93–94, 114–15; critical appraisal of, 91–92; as critique of U.S. food power, 11, 109, 111, 115–16; as environmental justice text, 10, 116; function of food in, 96–99, 111; globalization as separating places of production and consumption in, 107–8; globalization’s impact on women in, 116, 118–39; globally networked supermarket in, 17, 94–96; hunger as theme in, 93, 97–99; imperialism and neoliberalism linked in, 10–11, 90, 102, 106–8, 111–15; magical and social realism mixed in, 95–98, 104–5, 111, 113–15; Martinique as inspiration for, 102, 196 (1976); and My Year of Meats, 138–39; as narrative of late capitalism, 107–8, 112–13; nature/culture schism in, 104–6; as postcolonial environmental narrative, 92, 94, 102–3, 111; setting of, 90–91; treatment of slavery in, 98–99; see also Morrison, Toni
Technology: consumer goods as form of, 75; downplayed by world War I propaganda, 34, 37; impact on food transport, 24; modernist valuation of, 12–14; and Monsanto marketing rhetoric, 13–16; repurposing of, 46, 166; as vital to agriculture, 2; see also biotechnology; GMOs; information technology; postindustrial society
Tchi, Cecilia: “civic protest” fiction, 131; on Eric Schlosser, 132; on muckraking, 176 (14 transgenic crops, see GMOs (genetically modified organisms)
Transnational: approach to literature of food, 12, 78, 166–67; and feminism in Ozeki’s fiction, 118–19; food coalitions, 4, 155; framework for food power, 11, 90, 147, 166–67; and poetics, 52; see also culinary cosmopolitanism; globalization
Trout, Steven, 32
Turner, Frederick Jackson, 33
U.K. rationing program: and A Book of Mediterranean Food, 79–82; postwar continuation of, 78–79, 183 (110, 111; and Waiting for Godot, 83–85
United Nations, Millennium Development Goals (MFG), 90
The Unsettling of America (Wendell Berry), 30
Urban farming: and Farm City, 161–65; and food production, 17; see also farming
U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), 50, 59
U.S. expansionism, and Cather’s fiction, 10, 19
U.S. food power: dimensions of, 4, 10; domestic violence correlated with in My Year of Meats, 141, 144–45; and government support of agricultural production, 157, 209 (188; historical precedents, 5; and late modernist literature, 88; likened to abusive motherhood in Tar Baby, 109, 116, 138; and World War I, 6, 44; and World War II, 10, 59, 184 (185; see also food power
U.S. government; promotion of meat-and-grain diet in Japan, 142, 144; support of agricultural production, 157, 209
U.S./Japanese beef trade, conflicts over, 142, 144–45

© in this web service Cambridge University Press  www.cambridge.org
Index

U.S. Meat Export Federation (USMEF), 147–48
U.S. rationing program: and abundance rhetoric, 61, 64; conflicting mandates in, 56–57, 57; and expansion of food exports, 64; food-waste-to-weapons campaign, 56, 57, 60, 75; and “Here’s Front Pledge,” 62–63; and How to Cook a Wolf, 69–70, 73–74, 76–77; ideology of hoarding in, 61, 64; points-based program, 60; promoted as egalitarian, 49, 61–62, 63 victory gardens: and food security, 4; and locavore movement, 199; as patriotic, 60 Virgil, Georgics, 15, 27, 28, 46, 180 vitamins, in nutrition rhetoric, 55
Waiting for Godot (Samuel Beckett): food power symbolized by characters, 12; historical referents in, 82–83; and Irish Potato Famine, 83; luxury feeding vs. hunger in, 50, 86–89
Walcott, Derek, 97
Wallace, Kathleen R., 106
Wallace, Molly, 126–27 war: allied with agriculture, 13, 59; framed as adventure, 34–36; as new frontier, 33, 35; as profit center for agribusiness, 56; see also military-industrial complex; World War I World War II
War Food Administration (WFA), see WFA
Warner, Andrew: as food studies scholar, 165; on Tar Baby, 91, 93, 111–12 war posters: and Artists for Victory, 62; white housewife image in, 62–64
Wesselsmann, Tom, “Still Life #30, 2, 3
Westling, Louise, 20, 32
WFA (War Food Administration), 50
Williams, Raymond: and food studies, 9; on pastoral tradition, 20, 28, 30, 32
Williams, Terry Tempest, Refuge, 139
Willis, Elizabeth, 53–54
Wilson, Woodrow, 35
Witt, Doris, 8, 95
Wolf, Cary, 112
women: and globalization in Tar Baby, 116, 138–39; image of in war propaganda, 56, 58; and property rights, in Ó Pioneers, 23–25; and reproductive health in My Year of Meats, 128, 116–41; as target of war propaganda, 10, 56, 62–63; see also feminism; gender World Bank, 99, 113
World’s Fairs, and food futurism, 2, 3, 71
World Trade Organization (WTO): 1999 Seattle protests referenced by Nahban, 15; and neoliberalism, 99; and U.S./Japanese conflict over beef, 142, 145
World War I: amalgamation of weapons production and agribusiness, 15; and development of agribusiness, 44–45; impact on industrial agriculture, 32, 47; and U.S. food power, 6, 44
World War I propaganda: agriculture and industry linked in, 35, 36; food equated to weaponry in, 46; and gender roles, 37; heroic fantasy promoted by, 33–36; and military-industrial complex, 46; and New Woman, 37; rural youth targeted by, 33–36, 36 weapons technology downplayed by, 34, 37
World War II: atomic bomb, 51–54, 146; and culture of luxury feeding, 64–65, 186
WTO: references to in Waiting for Godot, 83–84; and U.S. food power, 10, 59, 184

WAR II propaganda: contradictory food rhetoric, 49, 58–59, 64; countered by literature of food, 50–51, 187; critique of in Niedecker’s poetry, 55–56, 58, 61; democracy equated with abundance in, 61; food linked with national security in, 49–50; image of women in, 56, 58; kitchen as target of, 10, 56; marketing discourse aligned with, 56, 58; nutrition rhetoric, 55–56; and OPA, 59–60; processed foods linked with war effort in, 55–56; role of radio in, 55; war posters, 62–64 yeoman farmer: in Letters from an American Farmer (St. John de Crèvecoeur), 29–30; in Notes on the State of Virginia (Thomas Jefferson), 20, 23–26, 30; as pastoral trope in My Antonia, 30–31
Zimmerman, Anne, 68
Zukofsky, Louis, 51