

Contents

List of figures	page viii
List of tables	xi
List of boxes	xii
Preface	xiii
Overview	xvii
What caused the 2008–9 global crisis?	xvii
A win-win path to recovery	xix
How poor countries can catch up: flying geese and leading dragons	xxii
Toward a brave new international monetary system	xxvi
Part I What Caused the 2008–9 Global Crisis?	1
1 The world economy and the 2008–9 crisis	5
Eruption, evolution, and consequences of the crisis	8
How the crisis spread around the world	13
2 The real causes of the crisis	14
Hypothesis 1: global imbalances led to the housing bubble and the global financial crisis	15
Hypothesis 2: US policies led to the global financial crisis	23
3 Financial deregulation and the housing bubble	33
New financial instruments and the housing bubble	33
The Federal Reserve Board’s approach to bubbles: the “Greenspan put”	37
Expansion of the subprime mortgage market	39
4 What’s wrong with the Eurozone	43
Deregulation and financial integration in the Eurozone	44
The euro and financial deregulation	45
Rising wages and government spending in noncore Eurozone countries	51

vi	Contents
5	Why China's reserves have risen so much 56
	China's dual-track reform strategy led to high corporate savings 56
	Relocation of labor-intensive production from East Asia to China 62
	Conclusions 63
	Part II A Win-Win Path to Recovery 65
6	Infrastructure investments – beyond Keynesianism 67
	Infrastructure investments in advanced economies:
	solid but limited options 67
	Infrastructure investments in developing countries: abundant opportunities 75
7	A massive global infrastructure initiative 78
	Benefiting developed countries, developing countries,
	and the global economy 78
	Identifying bottleneck-releasing infrastructure projects 85
	Closing the financing gap 86
	Designing the global infrastructure initiative 94
	Moving from the “new normal” to the “new new normal” 96
	Part III How Poor Countries Can Catch Up: Flying
	Geese and Leading Dragons 99
8	The mystery of the great divergence 101
	The great divergence 101
	Flying geese and leading dragons to the rescue 104
9	The mechanics and benefits of structural change 106
	Early insights about leader–follower dynamics 107
	Are the Asian geese still flying? 112
	Stylized facts – and unexplained failures of transformation 117
10	Lessons from the failures and successes of structural transformation 123
	Looking more closely at industrialization – and deindustrialization 125
	Upgrading industrial structures 130
	Assembling the puzzle: the new structural economics 130
11	Unique opportunities for poor countries 133
	A tectonic shift ahead – with opportunities 135
	How large are the benefits? 139
	A roadmap for seizing the moment: the Growth Identification and Facilitation Framework 141

Contents	vii
Part IV Toward a Brave New World Monetary System	145
12 The evolution of the international monetary system	149
The gold standard (1819–1914)	150
The interwar period (1914–39)	151
The Bretton Woods system (1946–73)	153
Since Bretton Woods (1973–present)	155
13 Emerging pressures and policy challenges	160
Is there an alternative to the dominance of the US dollar?	160
Persistent payments imbalances and volatile capital flows	163
14 (In)stability of the emerging multiple reserve currency system	166
Moving toward a multipolar growth system	166
Prospects for the US dollar, euro, and yuan	168
How stable would the emerging multipolar international financial system be?	170
15 The thinking behind the main reform proposals	182
The international payments system	182
Lender of last resort	184
Provider of global liquidity – during “normal” times	189
16 Costs and benefits of major reform proposals	191
A bigger and better International Monetary Fund	191
A global central bank with international currency	195
Global policy coordination	197
17 A proposal for a new global reserve currency:
paper gold (“p-gold”)	199
Correcting external imbalances	200
Ensuring adequate global liquidity	202
18 Why it still matters	205
References	211
Index	236