Dialogue, Politics and Gender

Dialogue is promoted by its supporters as a pluralising force capable of accommodating the moral disagreement inevitable in every sphere of human society, but this promise is widely and vehemently challenged. How are we to determine the principles upon which the dialogical exchange should take place? How should we think of ourselves as interlocutors? Should we associate dialogue with the desire for consensus? How should we determine decision-making? What are the gender dynamics of dialogical politics and how much do they matter? This book brings together internationally recognised expert authors from the fields of political and social theory, political philosophy and international relations to consider these controversial questions anew from a range of theoretical positions. The differences of opinions and clashes of views make for a fascinating and highly informative read.

Jude Browne is the Jessica and Peter Frankopan Director of the University of Cambridge Centre for Gender Studies and a Fellow in Social Sciences at King’s College, Cambridge.
Dialogue, Politics and Gender

Edited by

JUDE BROWNE
This volume is dedicated to Dame Professor Louise Johnson
1940–2012
Contents

List of contributors

ix

Acknowledgements

xi

Introduction: dialogue, politics and gender
JUDE BROWNE

1 Women and the standpoint of concrete others: from the criticism of discourse ethics to feminist social criticism
JAMES GORDON FINLAYSON

13

2 Gender, discourse and non-essentialism
BARBARA FULTNER

52

3 Universalism in feminist international ethics: gender and the difficult labour of translation
KIMBERLY HUTCHINGS

81

4 Language, gender, dialogue, ethics: universalism and consensus after gender trouble
TERRELL CARVER

107

5 Between consensus and deconstruction: a feminist reading of dialogue
MARTIN LEET AND ROLAND BLEIKER

120

6 Trapped in a family portrait? Gender and family in Nietzsche’s refiguring of authority
VERITY SMITH AND TRACY B. STRONG

146

7 Gender, gesture and garments: encountering embodied interlocutors
DIANA COOLE

173
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Chapter</th>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>8</td>
<td>What kind of dialogue do we need? Gender, deliberation and comprehensive values</td>
<td>198</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>CLARE CHAMBERS AND PHIL PARVIN</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9</td>
<td>Deliberation, domination and decision-making</td>
<td>227</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>JUDITH SQUIRES</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Index 259
Contributors

Roland Bleiker is Professor of International Relations at University of Queensland.

Jude Browne is the Jessica and Peter Frankopan Director of the University of Cambridge Centre for Gender Studies and a Fellow of King’s College, Cambridge.

Terrell Carver is Professor of Political Theory at the University of Bristol.

Clare Chambers is University Senior Lecturer in the Faculty of Philosophy, University of Cambridge, and a Fellow of Jesus College, Cambridge.

Diana Coole is Professor of Political and Social Theory at Birkbeck, University of London.

James Gordon Finlayson is University Senior Lecturer in Philosophy and Director of the Centre for Social and Political Thought at the University of Sussex.

Barbara Fultner is Professor of Philosophy and Women’s Studies at Denison University, Granville, Ohio.

Kimberly Hutchings is Professor of International Relations at the London School of Economics.

Martin Leet is Senior Researcher at the Brisbane Institute.

Phil Parvin is University Senior Lecturer in Politics at Loughborough University.

Verity Smith is Assistant Professor of Political Studies at Bard College, New York.
List of contributors

JUDITH SQUIRES is Professor of Political Theory and Dean of Social Sciences and Law at University of Bristol.

TRACY B. STRONG is Distinguished Professor of Political Theory at the University of California, San Diego.
Acknowledgements

Special thanks are due to Umar Salam, without whose help this book would not have been possible. Sincerest thanks also to Duncan Bell, Andrea Sangiovanni and Ze’ev Emmerich for reading drafts at various stages and offering very helpful comments. I am enormously grateful to all those at Cambridge University Press who helped produce this book – Carrie Parkinson, Ed Robinson and Hilary Hammond – and in particular, I am indebted to John Haslam, whose help and guidance has been invaluable. Finally, huge thanks to all the contributors for their patience and hard work in putting this edition together.