

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-03914-8 - Liberty Abroad: J. S. Mill on International Relations

Georgios Varouxakis

Frontmatter

More information

LIBERTY ABROAD

John Stuart Mill (1806–1873) is widely regarded as the pre-eminent thinker of the liberal tradition; and yet because his views on international relations cannot be traced in any particular book or essay, his political thought remains largely misunderstood.

Liberty Abroad is the first comprehensive, critical study which brings together all of John Stuart Mill's extensive contributions with particular attention to the historical contexts in which they were produced, as well as the political and philosophical preoccupations that prompted them, and how they were received among his contemporaries.

As a leading Mill scholar, Dr Georgios Varouxakis combines an extraordinary command of Mill's varied and extensive writings with a meticulous mastery of a range of Victorian controversies and thinkers to give a full, subtle evaluation of a major aspect of Mill's thought. This definitive study offers a major contribution to an area of increasing scholarly interest: the history of international political thought.

DR GEORGIOS VAROUXAKIS is Reader in the History of Political Thought in the School of History at Queen Mary, University of London. He is the author of Mill on Nationality (2002) and Victorian Political Thought on France and the French (2002) and the co-editor of Utilitarianism and Empire (2005) and John Stuart Mill: Thought and Influence – The Saint of Rationalism (2010).

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-03914-8 - Liberty Abroad: J. S. Mill on International Relations
Georgios Varouxakis
Frontmatter
More information

IDEAS IN CONTEXT

Edited by David Armitage, Richard Bourke,
Jennifer Pitts and John Robertson

The books in this series will discuss the emergence of intellectual traditions and of related new disciplines. The procedures, aims and vocabularies that were generated will be set in the context of the alternatives available within the contemporary frameworks of ideas and institutions. Through detailed studies of the evolution of such traditions, and their modification by different audiences, it is hoped that a new picture will form of the development of ideas in their concrete contexts. By this means, artificial distinctions between the history of philosophy, of the various sciences, of society and politics, and of literature may be seen to dissolve.

The series is published with the support of the Exxon Foundation.

A list of books in the series will be found at the end of the volume.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-03914-8 - Liberty Abroad: J. S. Mill on International Relations

Georgios Varouxakis

Frontmatter

More information

LIBERTY ABROAD

J. S. Mill on International Relations

GEORGIOS VAROUXAKIS

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press
 978-1-107-03914-8 - Liberty Abroad: J. S. Mill on International Relations
 Georgios Varouxakis
 Frontmatter
More information

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

University Printing House, Cambridge CB2 8BS, United Kingdom

Published in the United States of America by Cambridge University Press, New York

Cambridge University Press is part of the University of Cambridge.

It furthers the University's mission by disseminating knowledge in the pursuit of education, learning and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org

Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781107039148

© Georgios Varouxakis 2013

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 2013

Printed in the United Kingdom by CPI Group (UK) Ltd, Croydon CRO 4YY

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloguing in Publication data

Varouxakis, Georgios, 1966–

Liberty abroad : J.S. Mill on international relations / Georgios Varouxakis.

pages cm. – (Ideas in context)

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 978-1-107-03914-8 (hardback)

1. International relations – Philosophy. 2. Mill, John Stuart, 1806–1873.

3. International relations – Philosophy. I. Title.

JZ1305.V377 2013

327.101 – dc23 2013005736

ISBN 978-1-107-03914-8 Hardback

Additional resources for this publication at www.cambridge.org/9781107039148

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication, and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-03914-8 - Liberty Abroad: J. S. Mill on International Relations

Georgios Varouxakis

Frontmatter

More information

To Bella, whose book this is

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-03914-8 - Liberty Abroad: J. S. Mill on International Relations

Georgios Varouxakis

Frontmatter

More information

Contents

Acknowledgments	page viii
1 Introduction: Mill and international politics	i
2 International law and international morality	19
3 Inter-state treaties and international morality	44
4 Re-defining non-intervention	77
5 A few words on Mill on empire	101
6 War and peace	145
7 Conclusion	184
Bibliography	188
Index	214

Acknowledgments

As anyone working on J. S. Mill, I am most indebted to the late John M. Robson and his collaborators at the Mill Project of the University of Toronto for the superb edition of Mill's Collected Works. I am very grateful to Anthony Howe for allowing me access to the content of the 3rd and 4th volumes of The Letters of Richard Cobden long before their publication. I would like to thank Dr Anne Manuel, the Librarian of Sommerville College Oxford, for being most helpful when I had to do research in what is left of J. S. Mill's personal library; the staff at the British Library in general and at Manuscripts and at African and Asian Studies collections; at the British Library of Political and Economic Science and at the Archives at the LSE; Princeton University's Firestone Library, UCL Library, Senate House Library, QMUL Library, IHR Library and the London Library. Richard Fisher, Liz Friend-Smith, Maartje Scheltens, Chloe Dawson, Chloe Harries and Amanda George of CUP have all been extremely helpful and I am very grateful to them. Caroline McPherson has been a most conscientious and efficient copy-editor. Geoff Holland has produced an extraordinarily well-thought-through and detailed index for which the reader will no doubt be as grateful as I am. I am most grateful to the Editorial Board of the series Ideas in Context, both in its current and in its earlier composition, for their faith in the project as well as for their extremely helpful comments and suggestions after the initial proposal was submitted. I am also very indebted to the anonymous referees both for their recommendation of the book and for their very valuable suggestions. I owe an immense debt to Fred Rosen, who supervised my PhD thesis on Mill two decades ago, and has, ever since, been an unfailing and most generous friend. I am sorry I did not have the benefit of reading his new work on Mill fully before completing the typescript, but I am confident that readers will find his book extremely enlightening. Fred's successor Philip Schofield and his colleagues in the Bentham Project at UCL have always been very helpful and have provided a wonderful environment for research and discussion on the history of the British Utilitarians. I learnt much and immensely enjoyed the experiences I shared with the speakers and participants at The John Stuart Mill Bicentennial Conference that Philip Schofield and I organised at UCL in 2006. I am grateful to the late Istvan Hont for inviting me to give a paper related to the topic of this book at the Cambridge Seminar in Political Thought and Intellectual History, and Duncan Bell who served as discussant; and to Ben Jackson for a similar invitation to speak at the Oxford History of Political Thought Research Seminar, as well as to the participants at these seminars. I have learnt much from, and derived immense inspiration and intellectual sustenance from, my fellow convenors and participants in the Seminar in the History of Political Ideas at the Institute of Historical Research of the University of London.

Acknowledgments

ix

It has been a privilege as well as a pleasure to work on the history of political thought at Queen Mary, University of London, over the past number of years. I am grateful to my colleagues Richard Bourke, Maurizio Isabella, Jeremy Jennings, Michael Lobban, Quentin Skinner and Gareth Stedman Jones, as well as Joel Isaac, who spent some years with us. I owe particular thanks to Richard Bourke and Jeremy Jennings for their mentorship and friendship since my arrival at Queen Mary, and to Quentin Skinner for his generous help and advice since he joined us. More generally, I am very lucky in the colleagues I work with in the School of History at Queen Mary and grateful for what they have taught me and for the wonderful atmosphere that prevails in the School. I have learnt much thanks to my students over the years. I am especially grateful to the students I have taught in the context of the intercollegiate MA in the History of Political Thought and Intellectual History and to my PhD supervisees and co-supervisees, Richard Smittenaar, Georgios Giannakopoulos, Michail Sotiropoulos and Callum Barrel. I am also more grateful than I can describe to my former doctoral student, Dr Antis Loizides, for all I have been learning from him since I met him and for his unbounded generosity. Gregory Molivas's support and friendship have been indispensable. Over the last few years I have been the beneficiary of the helpfulness and generosity of Daisuke Arie, David Armitage, Chris Bayly, the late J. H. Burns, the late John W. Burrow, Gregory Claeys, Janet Coleman, Roger Crisp, Kyriakos Demetriou, Yasunori Fukagai, Angus Gowland, Marco Guidi, Ross Harrison, Julian Jackson, Stuart Jones, Yuichiro Kawana, Paul Kelly, Paschalis Kitromilides, Axel Körner, Cécile Laborde, Michael Levin, Avi Lifschitz, Karuna Mantena, Dale Miller, Gregoris Molivas, Sankar Muthu, Philip Ogden, Jennifer Pitts, Jonathan Riley, Miri Rubin, Jerome Schneewind, Bart Schultz, Daniel Schwartz, John Skorupski, Djamel Souafa, Michael Sutton, Lucien Taylor,

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-03914-8 - Liberty Abroad: J. S. Mill on International Relations

Georgios Varouxakis

Frontmatter

More information

x

Acknowledgments

Guillaume Vincent, David Weinstein, Richard Whatmore, Jon Wilson, Donald Winch and Keiichiro Yamamoto.

I am immensely grateful to my mother-in-law Vanessa and my father-in-law Hugh for many things, including extremely stimulating conversations and much imaginative childcare. I am also grateful to Hugh for lending me his volume of Punch, from which the cover image of this book is taken. Alexander has been a most beloved and delightful distraction. Last but not least, I want to thank my wife Bella, to whom this book is dedicated. It was, indeed, her idea that I should write this book. She encouraged me daily, she took up the main part of looking after our son while I was working on the book, and then, having been the first reader of successive drafts of chapters, offering invaluable and indispensable advice, she came up with the title. This book is hers more literally than the reader might imagine.