CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press 978-1-107-04595-8 - Socio-Economic Development: Second Edition Adam Szirmai Table of Contents More information

CONTENTS

	List o	f tables	xv
	List o	f figures	xvii
	List o	f boxes	xviii
	Prefa	Preface
	Ackno	owledgements	XXV
	List o	f acronyms and abbreviations	xxvi
1	Deve	loping countries and the concept of development	1
	1.1.	Approaches to development	1
	1.2.	The development debate	4
	1.3.	Growth and development	4
	1.4.	Are growth and development desirable?	9
	1.5.	Development and Westernisation	11
	1.6.	Indicators of growth and development	12
	1.7.	Does the 'Third World' exist?	15
	1.8.	The gap between rich and poor countries	27
	1.9.	What do developing countries have in common?	31
	1.10. The framework of proximate, intermediate and ultimate sources of growth and development	37
	~	ions for review	39
	Furth	er reading	39
2	Deve	lopment of the international economic order, 1450–2015	41
	2.1.	International economic order	41
	2.2.	Economic breakthrough and external expansion from Western Europe	41
		2.2.1. Economic growth before 1500	42
		2.2.2. Pre-modern international orders	43
		2.2.3. China in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries	44
	2.3.	Why expansion from Europe instead of from China?	45
	2.4.	European expansion in the world	49
		2.4.1. Types of international economic orders	51
		2.4.2. The first wave of expansion, 1400–1815	53
		2.4.3. The first wave of decolonisation	56
		2.4.4. The second phase of European expansion, 1815–1913	56
		2.4.5. The period 1870–1913	58
		2.4.6. Migration flows	59
		2.4.7. Non-colonised areas	65
		2.4.8. Latecomers in the process of economic development	65

Cambridge University Press 978-1-107-04595-8 - Socio-Economic Development: Second Edition Adam Szirmai Table of Contents More information

vi
	vi

Contents

		2.4.9. 2.4.10.		66 66
		2.4.10.	▲
	2.5.		Two perspectives on developments in the world economy, 1450–201 uses in development	.5 08 69
		ions for i		70
		er readin		70
	1 ur in	er reuum	8	/1
3	Grov	vth and	stagnation: theories and experiences	73
	3.1.		re the sources of growth and development?	73
	3.2.		al thinking about growth, development and stagnation	80
		3.2.1.	Adam Smith	80
		3.2.2.	· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·	80
		3.2.3.		81
		3.2.4.		81
		3.2.5. 3.2.6.		82 84
		3.2.0. 3.2.7.	1	84 84
	3.3.		and external approaches	86
	3.3. 3.4.		ations of economic backwardness	87
	э.т.	3.4.1.	Rostow's theory of the stages of economic growth	87
		3.4.2.	Kuznets' preconditions for industrialisation	89
		3.4.3.	Neoclassical theories of growth	90
		3.4.4.	Growth accounting	92
		3.4.5.	New growth theory	93
		3.4.6.	North and Thomas: efficient institutions	94
		3.4.7.		95
		3.4.8.	Rodrik: identifying the binding constraints to growth	95
	3.5.		ations of underdevelopment	97
		3.5.1.		99
		3.5.2.		100
		3.5.3.	· ·	102
	3.6.	Combir	ning internal and external influences	103
		3.6.1.	Advantages of technological backwardness	104
		3.6.2.	Evolutionary theories of economic change	106
	3.7.	Empiric	cal study of development experiences	107
		3.7.1.	Growth of income per capita: can developing countries escape
			stagnation?	108
		3.7.2.	Investment: how important is capital?	112
		3.7.3.	Export performance	113
		3.7.4.	Can primary exporters become manufacturing exporters?	116
		3.7.5.	External finance: does money flow from poor to rich countries?	116
		3.7.6.	Are developing countries dominated by foreign interests?	120
		3.7.7.	Are developing countries capable of structural change?	121
		3.7.8.	How unequal is the income distribution?	125
	Quest	ions for i	review	128

vii

Contents

4	Technology and development
	4.1.	The ro	le of technology	132
	4.2.	The tee	chnology race	133
	4.3.	Techno	blogical change and increases in productive capacity	134
		4.3.1.	How to increase labour productivity?	136
		4.3.2.	Investing in technological change	138
		4.3.3.		138
		4.3.4.	The knowledge economy: technology, productivity and competitivenes	ss 139
	4.4.		tors for science, technology and innovation	140
	4.5.		mic theories about the role of technological change revisited	141
	4.6.		quences of the acceleration of technological development for develo	ping countries	143
		4.6.1.	Acceleration of global technological change	143
		4.6.2.	0 0 1	143
		4.6.3.	New opportunities offered by technological development	145
		4.6.4.	New threats	149
	4.7.	Interna	tional technology transfer and technology diffusion	149
		4.7.1.	International technology transfer	149
		4.7.2.		150
		4.7.3.	Absorptive capacity	151
	4.8.	Biotecl	hnology and information and communication technology	155
		4.8.1.	6.	155
		4.8.2.		156
	4.9.		al and international policy	156
	-	tions for		158
	Furth	er readi	ng	158
5	Ρορι	ulation	and development	160
	5.1.	Introdu	action	161
	5.2.		ctives on population growth	162
	5.3.		h of world population	162
	5.4.		emographic transition	165
	5.5.		graphic developments in developing countries	167
	5.6.		economic consequences of population growth	172
		5.6.1.	Pessimistic and optimistic perspectives	172
		5.6.2.	Malthusian analyses	174
		5.6.3.	The Neo-Malthusian trap	174
		5.6.4.	Growth of national income, growth of per capita income and the dependency ratio	175
		5.6.5.	Changes in the age structure and the demographic dividend	176
		5.6.6.	Dependency ratio and savings	176
		5.6.7.	Population growth and investment	177
		5.6.8.	Population growth, education and healthcare	178
		5.6.9.	Employment, income distribution and poverty	178

5.6.10. Population growth and the environment

Cambridge University Press 978-1-107-04595-8 - Socio-Economic Development: Second Edition Adam Szirmai Table of Contents More information

viii

Contents

/
		5.6.11.	Population growth and technological progress	187
		5.6.12.	Consequences of population growth: concluding remarks	188
	5.7.	Why d	o people in developing countries have so many children?	188
		5.7.1.	Introduction	188
		5.7.2.	Intermediate determinants of fertility: the Bongaarts model	189
		5.7.3.	Economic explanations of fertility	190
		5.7.4.	Cultural and institutional explanations of fertility	192
	5.8.	Policy		194
	Ques	tions for	review	197
	Furth	her readii	ıg	197
6	Hea	lth, hea	Ithcare and development	199
	6.1.	The sta	te of health in developing countries	200
		6.1.1.	Quantitative indicators of the state of health	200
		6.1.2.	Infant and child mortality	201
		6.1.3.	Life expectancy	203
		6.1.4.	Patterns of disease and health	206
		6.1.5.	Common infectious and parasitic diseases in developing countries	207
		6.1.6.	Epidemiological transition	213
	6.2.	Theore	tical explanations of changes in health and morbidity	214
		6.2.1.	Factors affecting the state of health	215
		6.2.2.	Preston: per capita income and life expectancy	216
		6.2.3.	McKeown: the importance of nutrition	217
		6.2.4.	Preston and McKeown	217
		6.2.5.	The Mosley model and the importance of education	218
		6.2.6.	Caldwell: the importance of healthcare policy	221
		6.2.7.	Standards of living, education, medical technology and healthcare systems: a synthesis	225
	6.3.		and economic development	226
	6.4.		care policy	229
	_	tions for		234
	Furth	her readii	1g	235
7	Eduo	cation a	nd development	237
	7.1.	Theorie	es of the contribution of education to economic development	238
		7.1.1.	'Human capital' theory	238
		7.1.2.	Criticisms of human capital theory	242
		7.1.3.	Screening theory	242
		7.1.4.	Criticisms of screening theory	244
		7.1.5.	An evaluation of the human capital debate	244
		7.1.6.	Education as a necessary but not sufficient condition for development: thresholds and complementarities	246
	7.2.	Indicat	ors of educational development	249

7.2.2. Educational attainments

249

Contents

	7.2.3.	Financial indicators	251
	7.2.4.	Physical indicators	251
	7.2.5.	Educational outcomes: literacy	251
	7.2.6.	Educational outcomes: cognitive skills	252
7.3.	Educati	onal performance in developing countries	252
	7.3.1.	The initial situation after the Second World War	252
	7.3.2.	Increases in educational enrolment	253
	7.3.3.	Education completed	256
	7.3.4.	Years of education per member of the population	257
	7.3.5.	Educational expenditures	257
	7.3.6.	Cognitive skills	263
	7.3.7.	Non-formal and informal education	263
	7.3.8.	Literacy	265
	7.3.9.	Nation building	269
	7.3.10.	Summary: comparison with developments in more developed countries	270
7.4.	Problem	ns and challenges	271
	7.4.1.	Discrepancies between educational needs and financial resources	271
	7.4.2.	The quality of education	272
	7.4.3.	Lack of relevance	272
	7.4.4.	Unequal access to education	274
	7.4.5.	Mismatch between education and the labour market	275
	7.4.6.	Education and the national innovation system	276
	7.4.7.	The knowledge economy: increased importance of tertiary education	276
	7.4.8.	Brain drain versus brain circulation	277
7.5.	Policy		278
Ques	tions for i	review	279
Furth	her readin	g	280
Ecor	nomic de	evelopment, structural change and industrialisation	282
8.1.	Econon	nic development and structural transformation	283
0.1.	8.1.1.	Definitions of economic sectors	283
	8.1.2.	Structural change	284
8.2.		accumulation and structural change	280
0.2.	8.2.1.	Capital accumulation and industrialisation	291
	8.2.1.	Accumulation of industrial capital in open and closed models of the	291
	0.2.2.	economy; early and late stages of development	292
8.3.	The del	bate about engines of growth	292
0.5.	8.3.1.	Introduction	294
	8.3.1. 8.3.2.	Manufacturing as the engine of growth	294 295
	8.3.2. 8.3.3.	Is the agricultural sector a stagnant or a dynamic sector?	293 298
	8.3.3. 8.3.4.	What about service-led growth?	298 300
	8.3.4. 8.3.5.	Conclusion	301
8.4.		ral change in closed economies at early stages of development	301
0.4.	Suuciu	ar change in closed containes at early stages of development	501

Contents

	8.4.1.	The development of agriculture as a prerequisite for industrialisation at early stages of development	301
	8.4.2.	Historical examples of relationships between agriculture and industry	302
	8.4.3.	Conclusion	303
8.5.	Open m	odel: are primary exports an engine of growth and structural
	transfor	mation?	303
	8.5.1.	Introduction	303
	8.5.2.	Intermezzo: comparative advantage and the role of trade in development	304
	8.5.3.	Primary exports between 1870 and 1913: vent for surplus	306
	8.5.4.	Can primary exports function as an engine of growth?	308
	8.5.5.	Export pessimism	311
	8.5.6.	Debates about export pessimism and export optimism	315
	8.5.7.	Concluding remarks	321
8.6.	Closed	model: interactions between agriculture and industry in later stages of develop	ment and structural change	321
	8.6.1.	Introduction: import-substituting industrialisation in the closed model	321
	8.6.2.	Transfer mechanisms	322
	8.6.3.	Towards a balance between agriculture and industry	322
	8.6.4.	The mix of negative and positive incentives in a balanced growth path	324
8.7.	Open m	odel: labour-intensive manufactured exports	326
8.8.	Concluc	ling remarks	326
Quest	ions for r	review	327
Furthe	er readin	g	328
_
Indus	strial de	evelopment	330
9.1.	Introduc	stion	331
9.2.		cale industrialisation and balanced growth strategies, 1950–80	333
1.2.	9.2.1.	Economic development with unlimited supplies of labour	333
	9.2.2.	Capital–output ratio	336
	9.2.3.	Shortage of capital as the key bottleneck in economic development	337
	9.2.3. 9.2.4.	Does economic development result in increasing income inequality?	337
	9.2. 4 . 9.2.5.	The two-gap model of foreign finance: the role of financial flows	557
	9.2.5.	from abroad	339
	9.2.6.	Big is beautiful: large-scale investment, government planning and	559
	9.2.0.		340
0.2	Critician	import substitution	340 345
9.3.	9.3.1.	ns of orthodox industrialisation strategies Shortcomings of the Lewis model	345 345
	9.3.1. 9.3.2.	-	345 346
		Is capital really so important?
	9.3.3.	How important is the scale of investment?	347
9.4.	9.3.4.	Urban industrial bias and the neglect of agriculture	348
7.4.		tive industrialisation strategies	350
	9.4.1. 9.4.2.	Balanced growth path	350
		Unbalanced growth	351
	9.4.3.	Medium and small-scale enterprises and the urban informal sector	354

9.4.3. Medium and small-scale enterprises and the urban informal sector9.5. Export-oriented industrialisation

9

Cambridge University Press 978-1-107-04595-8 - Socio-Economic Development: Second Edition Adam Szirmai Table of Contents More information

xi
	xi

Contents

9.5.3. Global value chains, FDI and the role of MNCs in development 364 9.5.4. Resource-based industrialisation as an alternative export strategy for resource rich economies 366 9.6. Criticisms of market-oriented policies and the re-emergence of industrial policy 368 9.7. Outcomes of industrialisation strategies 372 9.8. Conclusions, new challenges and new paradigms 378 Questions for review 379 Further reading 380 10 Agricultural development and rural development 382 10.1. Is there enough food to feed the world population? 383 10.2. What are the sources of growth of agricultural production? 390 10.2.1. How much land is still left for cultivation? 390 10.2.2. Intensification of land use 396 10.2.3. Increasing yields per harvest 401 10.2.4. Models of agricultural development 408 10.2.5. The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops 413 10.3.1. Concluding remarks on agricultural policy 422 10.4. Rural development versus agricultural development 426 10.4.1. Changes in rural societies 426 10.4.2. Three perspectives on rural development 427 <t< th=""><th></th><th></th><th></th><th>The shift from import substitution to export orientation</th><th>357</th></t<>				The shift from import substitution to export orientation	357
9.5.4. Resource-based industrialisation as an alternative export strategy for resource rich economies 366 9.6. Criticisms of market-oriented policies and the re-emergence of industrial policy 368 9.7. Outcomes of industrialisation strategies 372 9.8. Conclusions, new challenges and new paradigms 378 Questions for review 379 Further reading 380 10. Agricultural development and rural development 382 10.1. Is there enough food to feed the world population? 383 10.2. Intensification of land use 390 10.2.1. How much land is still left for cultivation? 390 10.2.2. Intensification of land use 396 10.2.3. Increasing yields per harvest 401 10.2.4. Models of agricultural development 404 10.2.5. The green revolution: increase in yields per harvest 408 10.2.6. The green revolution: ontinued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops 413 10.3.1. Concluding remarks on agricultural policy 422 10.4. Rural development versus agricultural development 423 10.4.1.			9.5.2.	Fechnological upgrading and learning	363
for resource rich economies 366 9.6. Criticisms of market-oriented policies and the re-emergence of industrial policy 368 9.7. Outcomes of industrialisation strategies 372 9.8. Conclusions, new challenges and new paradigms 378 Questions for review 379 Further reading 380 10. Agricultural development and rural development 382 10.1. Is there enough food to feed the world population? 383 10.2. What are the sources of growth of agricultural production? 390 10.2.1. How much land is still left for cultivation? 390 10.2.2. Intensification of land use 396 10.2.3. Increasing yields per harvest 401 10.2.4. Models of agricultural development 404 10.2.5. The green revolution: increase in yields per harvest 408 10.2.6. The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops 413 10.2.7. Summary and prospects 416 10.3. Food consumption and nutrition 417 10.4.1. Changes in rural societies 426 10.4.2. Three perspectives on rural development 427 10.4.3. The peasant economy and peasant households 430 10.4.4. Rationali			9.5.3.	Global value chains, FDI and the role of MNCs in development	364
9.6. Criticisms of market-oriented policies and the re-emergence of industrial policy 368 9.7. Outcomes of industrialisation strategies 372 9.8. Conclusions, new challenges and new paradigms 378 Questions for review 379 Further reading 380 10 Agricultural development and rural development 382 10.1. Is there enough food to feed the world population? 383 10.2.2. Untensification of land use 390 10.2.2. Intensification of land use 396 10.2.2. Intensification of land use 396 10.2.3. Increasing yields per harvest 401 10.2.4. Models of agricultural development 404 10.2.5. The green revolution: increase in yields per harvest 408 10.2.6. The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops 413 10.3.1. Concluding remarks on agricultural policy 422 10.4. Rural development versus agricultural development 423 10.4.1. Changes in rural societies 436 10.4.2. Three perspectives on rural development 423 10.4.1. Changes in rural societies 435 10.5.1. Varieties of land reform 439 10.5.1. Varieties of land reform <td></td> <td></td> <td>9.5.4. I</td> <td>Resource-based industrialisation as an alternative export strategy</td> <td></td>			9.5.4. I	Resource-based industrialisation as an alternative export strategy
policy3689.7.Outcomes of industrialisation strategies3729.8.Conclusions, new challenges and new paradigms378Questions for review379Further reading38010Agricultural development and rural development38210.1.Is there enough food to feed the world population?38310.2.What are the sources of growth of agricultural production?39010.2.1.How much land is still left for cultivation?39010.2.2.Intensification of land use39610.2.3.Increasing yields per harvest40110.2.4.Models of agricultural development40410.2.5.The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops41310.2.7.Summary and prospects41610.3.1.Concluding remarks on agricultural policy42210.4.1.Changes in rural societies42610.4.2.Three perspectives on rural development42310.4.1.Changes in rural societies43510.5.1.Varieties of land reform43910.5.1.Varieties of land reform43910.6.Policies for rural development448Further reading44911.1.Concepts45211.2.Markist and Weberian perspectives on the state45511.3.Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4.The importance of external penetration in processes of state452			f	for resource rich economies	366
9.7. Outcomes of industrialisation strategies 372 9.8. Conclusions, new challenges and new paradigms 378 Questions for review 379 Further reading 380 10 Agricultural development and rural development 382 10.1. Is there enough food to feed the world population? 383 10.2. What are the sources of growth of agricultural production? 390 10.2.1. How much land is still left for cultivation? 390 10.2.2. Intensification of land use 396 10.2.3. Increasing yields per harvest 401 10.2.4. Models of agricultural development 404 10.2.5. The green revolution: increase in yields per harvest 408 10.2.6. The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops 413 10.2.7. Summary and prospects 416 10.3.1. Concluding remarks on agricultural policy 422 10.4. Rural development versus agricultural development 423 10.4.1. Chaeges in rural societies 430 10.4.2. Thre perspectives on rural development 427 </td <td></td> <td>9.6.</td> <td>Criticisms</td> <td>s of market-oriented policies and the re-emergence of industrial</td> <td></td>		9.6.	Criticisms	s of market-oriented policies and the re-emergence of industrial
9.8. Conclusions, new challenges and new paradigms 378 Questions for review 379 Further reading 380 10 Agricultural development and rural development 382 10.1. Is there enough food to feed the world population? 383 10.2. What are the sources of growth of agricultural production? 390 10.2.1. How much land is still left for cultivation? 390 10.2.2. Intensification of land use 396 10.2.3. Increasing yields per harvest 401 10.2.4. Models of agricultural development 404 10.2.5. The green revolution: increase in yields per harvest 408 10.2.6. The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops 413 10.2.7. Summary and prospects 416 10.3. Food consumption and nutrition 417 10.3.1. Concluding remarks on agricultural policy 422 10.4. Rural development versus agricultural development 423 10.4.1. Changes in rural societies 430 10.4.2. Three perspectives on rural development 427 10.4.3. The peasant economy and peasant households 430 10.4.4. Rationality, risk and survival strategies in peasant societies 435 1			policy		368
Questions for review379Further reading38010 Agricultural development and rural development38210.1. Is there enough food to feed the world population?38310.2. What are the sources of growth of agricultural production?39010.2.1. How much land is still left for cultivation?39010.2.2. Intensification of land use39610.2.3. Increasing yields per harvest40110.2.4. Models of agricultural development40410.2.5. The green revolution: increase in yields per harvest40810.2.6. The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops41310.2.7. Summary and prospects41610.3. Food consumption and nutrition41710.3.1. Concluding remarks on agricultural policy42210.4.2. Three perspectives on rural development42610.4.2. Three perspectives on rural development42710.4.3. The peasant economy and peasant households43010.5.1. Varieties of land reform43910.5.1. Varieties of land reform43910.5.1. Varieties of land reform43910.5.1. Varieties of land reform447Questions for review448Further reading44911State formation and political aspects of development45111.1. Concepts45211.2. Marxist and Weberian perspectives on the state45511.3. Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4.1. The importance of external penetration in processes of state		9.7.	Outcomes	s of industrialisation strategies	372
Further reading38010Agricultural development and rural development38210.1.Is there enough food to feed the world population?38310.2.What are the sources of growth of agricultural production?39010.2.1.How much land is still left for cultivation?39010.2.2.Intensification of land use39610.2.3.Increasing yields per harvest40110.2.4.Models of agricultural development40410.2.5.The green revolution: increase in yields per harvest40810.2.6.The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops41310.2.7.Summary and prospects41610.3.Food consumption and nutrition41710.3.1.Concluding remarks on agricultural policy42210.4.Rural development versus agricultural development42310.4.1.Changes in rural societies42610.4.2.Three perspectives on rural development42710.4.3.The peasant economy and peasant households43010.5.1.Varieties of land reform43910.5.1.Varieties of land reform43910.6.Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911State formation and political aspects of development45111.1.Concepts45211.2.Marxist and Weberian perspectives on the state45511.3.Processes of state formation in Euro		9.8.	Conclusio	ons, new challenges and new paradigms	378
10 Agricultural development and rural development 382 10.1. Is there enough food to feed the world population? 383 10.2. What are the sources of growth of agricultural production? 390 10.2.1. How much land is still left for cultivation? 390 10.2.2. Intensification of land use 396 10.2.3. Increasing yields per harvest 401 10.2.4. Models of agricultural development 404 10.2.5. The green revolution: continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops 413 10.2.6. The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops 413 10.2.7. Summary and prospects 416 10.3. Concluding remarks on agricultural policy 422 10.4. Rural development versus agricultural development 423 10.4.1. Changes in rural societies 426 10.4.2. Three perspectives on rural development 427 10.4.3. The peasant economy and peasant households 430 10.4.4. Rationality, risk and survival strategies in peasant societies 435 10.5. Land reform 439 439		Questi	ions for rev	riew	379
10.1. Is there enough food to feed the world population? 383 10.2. What are the sources of growth of agricultural production? 390 10.2.1. How much land is still left for cultivation? 390 10.2.2. Intensification of land use 396 10.2.3. Increasing yields per harvest 401 10.2.4. Models of agricultural development 404 10.2.5. The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops 413 10.2.6. The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops 413 10.2.7. Summary and prospects 416 10.3. Food consumption and nutrition 417 10.3.1. Concluding remarks on agricultural policy 422 10.4. Rural development versus agricultural development 426 10.4.1. Changes in rural societies 430 10.4.2. Three perspectives on rural development 427 10.4.3. The peasant economy and peasant households 430 10.4.4. Rationality, risk and survival strategies in peasant societies 435 10.5.1. Varieties of land reform 439 10.6. Policies for rural development 447 Questions for review 448 Further reading 449 11.1. Co		Furthe	er reading		380
10.2. What are the sources of growth of agricultural production? 390 10.2.1. How much land is still left for cultivation? 390 10.2.2. Intensification of land use 396 10.2.3. Increasing yields per harvest 401 10.2.4. Models of agricultural development 404 10.2.5. The green revolution: increase in yields per harvest 408 10.2.6. The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops 413 10.2.7. Summary and prospects 416 10.3. Food consumption and nutrition 417 10.3.1. Concluding remarks on agricultural policy 422 10.4. Rural development versus agricultural development 423 10.4.1. Changes in rural societies 426 10.4.2. Three perspectives on rural development 427 10.4.3. The peasant economy and peasant households 439 10.5. Land reform 439 10.6. Policies for rural development 447 Questions for review 448 Further reading 449 11.1. Concepts	10	Agric	ultural d	evelopment and rural development	382
10.2. What are the sources of growth of agricultural production? 390 10.2.1. How much land is still left for cultivation? 390 10.2.2. Intensification of land use 396 10.2.3. Increasing yields per harvest 401 10.2.4. Models of agricultural development 404 10.2.5. The green revolution: increase in yields per harvest 408 10.2.6. The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops 413 10.2.7. Summary and prospects 416 10.3. Food consumption and nutrition 417 10.3.1. Concluding remarks on agricultural policy 422 10.4. Rural development versus agricultural development 423 10.4.1. Changes in rural societies 426 10.4.2. Three perspectives on rural development 427 10.4.3. The peasant economy and peasant households 439 10.4.4. Rationality, risk and survival strategies in peasant societies 435 10.5. Land reform 439 10.6. Policies for rural development 447 Questions for review 448		10.1.	Is there	enough food to feed the world population?	383
10.2.1.How much land is still left for cultivation?39010.2.2.Intensification of land use39610.2.3.Increasing yields per harvest40110.2.4.Models of agricultural development40410.2.5.The green revolution: increase in yields per harvest40810.2.6.The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops41310.2.7.Summary and prospects41610.3.Food consumption and nutrition41710.3.1.Concluding remarks on agricultural policy42210.4.Rural development versus agricultural development42310.4.1.Changes in rural societies42610.4.2.Three perspectives on rural development42710.4.3.The peasant economy and peasant households43010.5.1.Varieties of land reform43910.6.Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911.1.Concepts45211.2.Marxist and Weberian perspectives on the state45511.3.Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4.State formation in developing countries46211.4.1.The importance of external penetration in processes of state452		10.2.		•	390
10.2.3.Increasing yields per harvest40110.2.4.Models of agricultural development40410.2.5.The green revolution: increase in yields per harvest40810.2.6.The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops41310.2.7.Summary and prospects41610.3.Food consumption and nutrition41710.3.1.Concluding remarks on agricultural policy42210.4.Rural development versus agricultural development42310.4.1.Changes in rural societies42610.4.2.Three perspectives on rural development42710.4.3.The peasant economy and peasant households43010.4.4.Rationality, risk and survival strategies in peasant societies43510.5.Land reform43910.6.Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911State formation and political aspects of development45111.1.Concepts45211.3.Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4.State formation in developing countries45211.4.1.The importance of external penetration in processes of state452					390
10.2.3.Increasing yields per harvest40110.2.4.Models of agricultural development40410.2.5.The green revolution: increase in yields per harvest40810.2.6.The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops41310.2.7.Summary and prospects41610.3.Food consumption and nutrition41710.3.1.Concluding remarks on agricultural policy42210.4.Rural development versus agricultural development42310.4.1.Changes in rural societies42610.4.2.Three perspectives on rural development42710.4.3.The peasant economy and peasant households43010.4.4.Rationality, risk and survival strategies in peasant societies43510.5.Land reform43910.6.Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911State formation and political aspects of development45111.1.Concepts45211.3.Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4.State formation in developing countries45211.4.1.The importance of external penetration in processes of state452
10.2.4.Models of agricultural development40410.2.5.The green revolution: increase in yields per harvest40810.2.6.The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops41310.2.7.Summary and prospects41610.3.Food consumption and nutrition41710.3.1.Concluding remarks on agricultural policy42210.4.Rural development versus agricultural development42310.4.1.Changes in rural societies42610.4.2.Three perspectives on rural development42710.4.3.The peasant economy and peasant households43010.4.4.Rationality, risk and survival strategies in peasant societies43910.5.Land reform43910.6.Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911.Concepts45211.3.Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4.State formation in developing countries46211.4.1.The importance of external penetration in processes of state462
10.2.5. The green revolution: increase in yields per harvest40810.2.6. The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops41310.2.7. Summary and prospects41610.3. Food consumption and nutrition41710.3.1. Concluding remarks on agricultural policy42210.4. Rural development versus agricultural development42310.4.2. Three perspectives on rural development42710.4.3. The peasant economy and peasant households43010.4.4. Rationality, risk and survival strategies in peasant societies43510.5. Land reform43910.6. Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911State formation and political aspects of development45111.1. Concepts45211.2. Marxist and Weberian perspectives on the state45511.3. Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4. State formation in developing countries46211.4.1. The importance of external penetration in processes of state462
10.2.6. The green revolution continued: biotechnology and genetically modified crops41310.2.7. Summary and prospects41610.3. Food consumption and nutrition41710.3.1. Concluding remarks on agricultural policy42210.4. Rural development versus agricultural development42310.4.1. Changes in rural societies42610.4.2. Three perspectives on rural development42710.4.3. The peasant economy and peasant households43010.4.4. Rationality, risk and survival strategies in peasant societies43510.5. Land reform43910.6. Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911 State formation and political aspects of development45211.2. Marxist and Weberian perspectives on the state45211.3. Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4. State formation in developing countries46211.4.1. The importance of external penetration in processes of state462 modified crops41310.2.7.Summary and prospects41610.3.Food consumption and nutrition41710.3.1.Concluding remarks on agricultural policy42210.4.Rural development versus agricultural development42310.4.1.Changes in rural societies42610.4.2.Three perspectives on rural development42710.4.3.The peasant economy and peasant households43010.4.4.Rationality, risk and survival strategies in peasant societies43510.5.Land reform43910.6.Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911State formation and political aspects of development45211.2.Marxist and Weberian perspectives on the state45511.3.Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4.State formation in developing countries46211.4.1.The importance of external penetration in processes of state462
10.2.7.Summary and prospects41610.3.Food consumption and nutrition41710.3.1.Concluding remarks on agricultural policy42210.4.Rural development versus agricultural development42310.4.1.Changes in rural societies42610.4.2.Three perspectives on rural development42710.4.3.The peasant economy and peasant households43010.4.4.Rationality, risk and survival strategies in peasant societies43510.5.Land reform43910.6.Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911State formation and political aspects of development45111.1.Concepts45211.3.Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4.State formation in developing countries45211.4.1.The importance of external penetration in processes of state452					413
10.3.Food consumption and nutrition41710.3.1.Concluding remarks on agricultural policy42210.4.Rural development versus agricultural development42310.4.1.Changes in rural societies42610.4.2.Three perspectives on rural development42710.4.3.The peasant economy and peasant households43010.4.4.Rationality, risk and survival strategies in peasant societies43510.5.Land reform43910.6.Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911State formation and political aspects of development45111.1.Concepts45211.3.Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4.State formation in developing countries45211.4.1.The importance of external penetration in processes of state462			10.2.7.	÷
10.3.1. Concluding remarks on agricultural policy42210.4. Rural development versus agricultural development42310.4.1. Changes in rural societies42610.4.2. Three perspectives on rural development42710.4.3. The peasant economy and peasant households43010.4.4. Rationality, risk and survival strategies in peasant societies43510.5. Land reform43910.6. Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911 State formation and political aspects of development45211.2. Marxist and Weberian perspectives on the state45511.3. Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4. State formation in developing countries45211.4. The importance of external penetration in processes of state462		10.3.		• • •
10.4.Rural development versus agricultural development42310.4.1.Changes in rural societies42610.4.2.Three perspectives on rural development42710.4.3.The peasant economy and peasant households43010.4.4.Rationality, risk and survival strategies in peasant societies43510.5.Land reform43910.6.Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911State formation and political aspects of development45111.1.Concepts45211.3.Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4.State formation in developing countries45211.4.1.The importance of external penetration in processes of state462				•
10.4.1.Changes in rural societies42610.4.2.Three perspectives on rural development42710.4.3.The peasant economy and peasant households43010.4.4.Rationality, risk and survival strategies in peasant societies43510.5.Land reform43910.5.1.Varieties of land reform43910.6.Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911State formation and political aspects of development45111.1.Concepts45211.3.Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4.State formation in developing countries45211.4.1.The importance of external penetration in processes of state462		10.4.
10.4.2.Three perspectives on rural development42710.4.3.The peasant economy and peasant households43010.4.4.Rationality, risk and survival strategies in peasant societies43510.5.Land reform43910.5.1.Varieties of land reform43910.6.Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911State formation and political aspects of development45111.1.Concepts45211.2.Marxist and Weberian perspectives on the state45511.3.Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4.State formation in developing countries46211.4.1.The importance of external penetration in processes of state462				· · · ·
10.4.3. The peasant economy and peasant households43010.4.4. Rationality, risk and survival strategies in peasant societies43510.5. Land reform43910.5.1. Varieties of land reform43910.6. Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911 State formation and political aspects of development45111.1. Concepts45211.2. Marxist and Weberian perspectives on the state45511.3. Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4. State formation in developing countries46211.4.1. The importance of external penetration in processes of state462				•
10.4.4. Rationality, risk and survival strategies in peasant societies43510.5. Land reform43910.5.1. Varieties of land reform43910.6. Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911 State formation and political aspects of development45111.1. Concepts45211.2. Marxist and Weberian perspectives on the state45511.3. Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4. State formation in developing countries46211.4.1. The importance of external penetration in processes of state462
10.5.Land reform43910.5.1.Varieties of land reform43910.6.Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911State formation and political aspects of development45111.1.Concepts45211.2.Marxist and Weberian perspectives on the state45511.3.Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4.State formation in developing countries46211.4.1.The importance of external penetration in processes of state462
10.5.1.Varieties of land reform43910.6.Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911State formation and political aspects of development45111.1.Concepts45211.2.Marxist and Weberian perspectives on the state45511.3.Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4.State formation in developing countries46211.4.1.The importance of external penetration in processes of state		10.5.		•
10.6. Policies for rural development447Questions for review448Further reading44911 State formation and political aspects of development45111.1. Concepts45211.2. Marxist and Weberian perspectives on the state45511.3. Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4. State formation in developing countries46211.4.1. The importance of external penetration in processes of state
Questions for review448Further reading44911 State formation and political aspects of development45111.1. Concepts45211.2. Marxist and Weberian perspectives on the state45511.3. Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4. State formation in developing countries46211.4.1. The importance of external penetration in processes of state		10.6.
Further reading44911 State formation and political aspects of development45111.1. Concepts45211.2. Marxist and Weberian perspectives on the state45511.3. Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4. State formation in developing countries46211.4.1. The importance of external penetration in processes of state462
11.1.Concepts45211.2.Marxist and Weberian perspectives on the state45511.3.Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4.State formation in developing countries46211.4.1.The importance of external penetration in processes of state		_
11.2.Marxist and Weberian perspectives on the state45511.3.Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4.State formation in developing countries46211.4.1.The importance of external penetration in processes of state	11	State	formatio	on and political aspects of development	451
11.2.Marxist and Weberian perspectives on the state45511.3.Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4.State formation in developing countries46211.4.1.The importance of external penetration in processes of state		11.1.	Concepts	S	452
11.3.Processes of state formation in Europe45811.4.State formation in developing countries46211.4.1.The importance of external penetration in processes of state			-
11.4.State formation in developing countries46211.4.1.The importance of external penetration in processes of state
11.4.1. The importance of external penetration in processes of state
101111411011 403				formation	463

11.4.2. Internal political instability

Cambridge University Press 978-1-107-04595-8 - Socio-Economic Development: Second Edition Adam Szirmai Table of Contents More information

Contents

/
		11.4.3.	External political interference as a destabilising factor	468
		11.4.4.	The role of the military in politics	476
		11.4.5.	One-party states	480
		11.4.6.	Is there a resurgence of democracy in developing countries?	482
		11.4.7.	Rapid expansion of the public sector since 1945	484
		11.4.8.	'Soft states' and the political economy of rent seeking	485
	11.5.	The role	of government in economic development	487
		11.5.1.	The role of the state in economic development: five examples	488
	11.6.	Interaction	ons between political and economic developments	496
		11.6.1.	Political instability as a source of economic stagnation	496
		11.6.2.	Economic development and political stability	497
		11.6.3.	Is there a relationship between democracy and economic development?	499
		11.6.4.	Good governance and economic development	501
	11.7.	The prec	latory state as an obstacle to economic development in
		Sub-Sah	aran Africa	503
	11.8.	Conclud	ing remarks	506
	Questie	ons for rev	view	507
	Furthe	r reading		507
12	Cultu	ral and i	nstitutional dimensions of development	510
	12.1.	Introduc	tion	511
	12.1.	12.1.1.		511
		12.1.1.	1	512
		12.1.2.	How important is culture: How important are institutions?	512
	12.2.		and development	515
	12.2.	12.2.1.	The Protestant Ethic and the rise of capitalism	515
		12.2.1.	Traditional versus modern cultures	517
		12.2.2.	Are there cultural obstacles to economic development?	521
	12.3.		ons as one of the key sources of development	529
	12.3.	12.3.1.	Rediscovery of institutions	530
		12.3.1.	•	530
		12.3.2.		531
		12.3.3.	Reversal of fortunes	532
		12.3.4.		533
	12.4.	Conclusi	•	534
		ons for rev		534
			new
	Furthe	r reading		535
13	The ir	nternatio	nal economic and political order since 1945	537
	13.1.	Characte	eristics of international relations since 1945	538
		13.1.1.	Economic aspects	538
		13.1.2.	Political aspects	544

13.2. International institutions and institutional change since 1945

xiii

Contents

13.2.2.The evolution of the post-war international order55013.3.The liberal international economic order, 1944–7355513.4.The New International Order, 1960–8255813.4.1.Institutional responses to the New International Economic Order56013.4.2.Criticisms of the New International Economic Order56313.5.Debt and how to deal with it56413.5.1.The 1982 debt crisis56413.5.2.Is there anything wrong with debt?56413.5.3.What caused the 1982 debt crisis?56513.5.4.Trends in debt and financial flows in developing countries, 1982–201256713.6.Structural adjustment and the Washington consensus57813.6.1.The debt crisis and the rise of the Washington consensus57813.6.3.Stabilisation and structural adjustment58113.6.4.The Cotonou Agreements between the European Union and ACP countries583
13.3.The liberal international economic order, 1944–7355513.4.The New International Order, 1960–8255813.4.1.Institutional responses to the New International Economic Order56013.4.2.Criticisms of the New International Economic Order56313.5.Debt and how to deal with it56413.5.1.The 1982 debt crisis56413.5.2.Is there anything wrong with debt?56413.5.3.What caused the 1982 debt crisis?56513.5.4.Trends in debt and financial flows in developing countries, 1982–201256713.6.Structural adjustment and the Washington consensus57813.6.1.The debt crisis and the rise of the Washington consensus57813.6.3.Stabilisation and structural adjustment58113.6.4.The Cotonou Agreements between the European Union and ACP countries583			-	549
13.4.The New International Order, 1960–8255813.4.1.Institutional responses to the New International Economic Order56013.4.2.Criticisms of the New International Economic Order56313.5.Debt and how to deal with it56413.5.1.The 1982 debt crisis56413.5.2.Is there anything wrong with debt?56413.5.3.What caused the 1982 debt crisis?56513.5.4.Trends in debt and financial flows in developing countries, 1982–201256713.6.3.Structural adjustment and the Washington consensus57813.6.1.The debt crisis and the rise of the Washington consensus57813.6.3.Stabilisation and structural adjustment58113.6.4.The Cotonou Agreements between the European Union and ACP countries583			*	550
13.4.1.Institutional responses to the New International Economic Order56013.4.2.Criticisms of the New International Economic Order56313.5.Debt and how to deal with it56413.5.1.The 1982 debt crisis56413.5.2.Is there anything wrong with debt?56413.5.3.What caused the 1982 debt crisis?56513.5.4.Trends in debt and financial flows in developing countries, 1982–201256713.6.Structural adjustment and the Washington consensus57813.6.1.The debt crisis and the rise of the Washington consensus57813.6.2.Neo-liberalism versus structuralism57913.6.3.Stabilisation and structural adjustment58113.6.4.The Cotonou Agreements between the European Union and ACP countries583			·	555
13.4.2.Criticisms of the New International Economic Order56313.5.Debt and how to deal with it56413.5.1.The 1982 debt crisis56413.5.2.Is there anything wrong with debt?56413.5.3.What caused the 1982 debt crisis?56513.5.4.Trends in debt and financial flows in developing countries, 1982–201256713.6.Structural adjustment and the Washington consensus57813.6.1.The debt crisis and the rise of the Washington consensus57813.6.2.Neo-liberalism versus structuralism57913.6.3.Stabilisation and structural adjustment58113.6.4.The Cotonou Agreements between the European Union and ACP countries583	13.4.			558
13.5.Debt and how to deal with it56413.5.1.The 1982 debt crisis56413.5.2.Is there anything wrong with debt?56413.5.3.What caused the 1982 debt crisis?56513.5.4.Trends in debt and financial flows in developing countries, 1982–201256713.5.5.How to deal with debt?57313.6.Structural adjustment and the Washington consensus57813.6.1.The debt crisis and the rise of the Washington consensus57813.6.2.Neo-liberalism versus structuralism57913.6.3.Stabilisation and structural adjustment58113.6.4.The Cotonou Agreements between the European Union and ACP countries583
13.5.1.The 1982 debt crisis56413.5.2.Is there anything wrong with debt?56413.5.3.What caused the 1982 debt crisis?56513.5.4.Trends in debt and financial flows in developing countries, 1982–201256713.5.5.How to deal with debt?57313.6.Structural adjustment and the Washington consensus57813.6.1.The debt crisis and the rise of the Washington consensus57813.6.2.Neo-liberalism versus structuralism57913.6.3.Stabilisation and structural adjustment58113.6.4.The Cotonou Agreements between the European Union and ACP countries583
13.5.2.Is there anything wrong with debt?56413.5.3.What caused the 1982 debt crisis?56513.5.4.Trends in debt and financial flows in developing countries, 1982–201256713.5.5.How to deal with debt?57313.6.Structural adjustment and the Washington consensus57813.6.1.The debt crisis and the rise of the Washington consensus57813.6.2.Neo-liberalism versus structuralism57913.6.3.Stabilisation and structural adjustment58113.6.4.The Cotonou Agreements between the European Union and ACP countries583	13.5.
13.5.3.What caused the 1982 debt crisis?56513.5.4.Trends in debt and financial flows in developing countries, 1982–201256713.5.5.How to deal with debt?57313.6.Structural adjustment and the Washington consensus57813.6.1.The debt crisis and the rise of the Washington consensus57813.6.2.Neo-liberalism versus structuralism57913.6.3.Stabilisation and structural adjustment58113.6.4.The Cotonou Agreements between the European Union and ACP countries583				564
13.5.4.Trends in debt and financial flows in developing countries, 1982–201256713.5.5.How to deal with debt?57313.6.Structural adjustment and the Washington consensus57813.6.1.The debt crisis and the rise of the Washington consensus57813.6.2.Neo-liberalism versus structuralism57913.6.3.Stabilisation and structural adjustment58113.6.4.The Cotonou Agreements between the European Union and ACP countries583				564
1982–201256713.5.5.How to deal with debt?57313.6.Structural adjustment and the Washington consensus57813.6.1.The debt crisis and the rise of the Washington consensus57813.6.2.Neo-liberalism versus structuralism57913.6.3.Stabilisation and structural adjustment58113.6.4.The Cotonou Agreements between the European Union and ACP countries583				565
13.5.5.How to deal with debt?57313.6.Structural adjustment and the Washington consensus57813.6.1.The debt crisis and the rise of the Washington consensus57813.6.2.Neo-liberalism versus structuralism57913.6.3.Stabilisation and structural adjustment58113.6.4.The Cotonou Agreements between the European Union and ACP countries583		13.5.4.		567
13.6.Structural adjustment and the Washington consensus57813.6.1.The debt crisis and the rise of the Washington consensus57813.6.2.Neo-liberalism versus structuralism57913.6.3.Stabilisation and structural adjustment58113.6.4.The Cotonou Agreements between the European Union and ACP countries583		13 5 5
13.6.1.The debt crisis and the rise of the Washington consensus57813.6.2.Neo-liberalism versus structuralism57913.6.3.Stabilisation and structural adjustment58113.6.4.The Cotonou Agreements between the European Union and ACP countries583	13.6
13.6.2.Neo-liberalism versus structuralism57913.6.3.Stabilisation and structural adjustment58113.6.4.The Cotonou Agreements between the European Union and ACP countries583	15.0.
13.6.3.Stabilisation and structural adjustment58113.6.4.The Cotonou Agreements between the European Union and ACP countries583			-
13.6.4.The Cotonou Agreements between the European Union and ACP countries583
ACP countries 583			•	501
		15.0.4.		583
		13.6.5.	Foreign direct investment	584
-			-	586
5 1 0				590
	13.7.		· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·	591
				591
				595
-				599
-	Ouestie		-	600
	-			601
Foreign aid and development 603	Foreic	n aid ai	nd development	603
	i oreig	gir ala ai		005
14.1. Why foreign aid? 604	14.1.	Why for	eign aid?	604
14.2. The emergence and evolution of foreign aid 608	14.2.	The eme	ergence and evolution of foreign aid	608
14.3.Development aid: sources and categories611	14.3.	Develop	ment aid: sources and categories	611
14.4.Quantitative data on aid flows614	14.4.	Quantita	tive data on aid flows	614
14.4.1. Long-term trends in the magnitude and geographical distribution of aid flows 615		14.4.1.		615
		14.4.2.		618
				621
				624
				624
				626

14.5.3. Aid, growth and poverty reduction

14

Cambridge University Press 978-1-107-04595-8 - Socio-Economic Development: Second Edition Adam Szirmai Table of Contents More information

Contents

	14.5.4.	Technical assistance, human capital theory and growth	630
	14.5.5.	Policy dialogue and programme aid: policy reform and improvements in governance and institutions	632
	14.5.6.	Building institutions and capabilities	633
14.6.	Does aid work? Different perspectives on the effectiveness of developm	nent aid	634
	14.6.1.	Does aid contribute to socio-economic dynamism and poverty reduction?	634
	14.6.2.	Radical criticisms of development aid	636
	14.6.3.	Neoliberal criticism of development aid	638
	14.6.4.	Criticism of development projects	641
	14.6.5.	Empirical debates about aid effectiveness and proposals
		for reform	642
	14.6.6.	Making aid work better	652
	14.6.7.	Epilogue: an attempt at evaluation	654
Questions for review			655
Further	reading		656
Referen	ces		658
Author index			735
Subject index			748