

INDEX

- abandoned land disputes emergence and resolution of,
 262n.47, 262–264
 Land Management Law provisions concerning, 237n.37
- Able, Richard, 9–10
- academia, debate on discrediting of state reforms within, 138–144
- accommodation, government shift to, in Wukan dispute, 185–190
- Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act 1919 (Hong Kong), 368–370
- administrative litigation. See also civil litigation
- ancestral worship property disputes, Taiwanese, 333n.5, 333–335, 336–343, 344–346
- constitutional review procedures in China and, 217
- court systems in China and,
 229–230, 249–253
- demolition orders in China, absence of enforcement following, 134–136
- government agency hypothesis in
 China and, 106–108
- Grand mediation policy in China
 and, 257–258
- Hong Kong small house policy and, 377–387
- land governance in Taiwan and history of, 318–325
- land-taking disputes in China and, 264–268
- plaintiff success rate in China for, 96t
- pure law enforcement authority
 hypothesis in China and, 105–106
- rule of law in China as basis for, 197–202
- secondary authority hypothesis in China and, 108–111
- state-initiated mediation in China
 and, 252
- statism, collectivism, and majoritarianism in China and,
 96–97
- substantive review and procedural limits in China for, 97–100
- Taiwanese contemporary framework for, 325–329
- Administrative Litigation Law (China) court invocation in land expropriations and, 134–136
- judicial powers under, 204–206
- pure law enforcement authority hypothesis and, 105–106
- Administrative Procedure Act
 (Taiwan), 325–326
- adoption–reception cycles, Vietnamese land laws and, 31
- African Americans, procedural justice disparities for, 52–53
- agricultural productivity
 expropriation regulations in China, fair compensation in, 79–80
- historical perspective on, 39
- in New Territories (Hong Kong), 374–376
- Kuomintang policies in Taiwan for,
 321–323
- pre-colonial Vietnam land regulation and, 276–278

- agricultural productivity (cont.)
 profitability in China of, 248–249 property rights recycling in China
 and, 15
 rural land collectivization in China
 and, 62–66, 100–101, 159
 rural land subcontracting disputes in China and, 237–239
 in Vietnam, 15–16, 281–289
- Agriculture Land Reform Law (Vietnam), 281–283
- Ai Weiwei, 168–170
- Allee, Mark A., 319–320
- Amery, Leo, 379
- ancestral worship property
 actors' strategies in litigation of, 343–354
 case studies in, 338–343 contemporary Taiwanese property
 and, 331–332
 Hong Kong colonial governance
 and, 361–362
 Hong Kong land systems and, 33–34 in Đông Dương (Vietnam) land dispute, 294–301, 311–314 land use for, 32–33 legal history in Taiwan of, 332–336, 333n.5
 lot-allocated vs. contract-charter property, 332n.2 research methodology and theory concerning, 335–338
 state law and customary rule interaction in Taiwan concerning, 347–348
 Taiwanese Jisigongye (ancestor worship) land disputes and,
 331–342t
 Tso and Tong case studies in Hong Kong and, 387–391
 typology of, 341n.17, 332n.4, 341–343
- Ancestral Worship Property
 Ordinance 2007 (Taiwan), 32–33, 332–336 actors' strategies concerning, 343–354 data and research methods concerning, 336–338
 government viewpoints in, 345–346 internal agreements and, 338–343
 legal legacy of, 354–355 predecessors to, 333n.5
 reflexive laws and legal hybrids in,
 349–352
- Anderson, Benedict, 23–24
- Arab Spring, Wukan protest compared with, 184–185
- Asia Development Bank, Vietnamese
 land disputes and, 291–293
- audience size restrictions, protest-supported demolition litigation
 and, 202–203
- authoritarian state
 chaos and instability in China and, 177 court systems in China, 194–197 land expropriation and, 27–28, 34–36
 mass events in China and limits of, 175–180, 192–193
 rule of law and democratic governance in China and, 190–192
 rule of law and mediation in China
 and, 249–253, 268–271
 Taiwanese land governance and,
 317–318
 Vietnamese land disputes and role of, 311–314
 Wukan model and role of, 173–174
- balance of powers institutional vetoes and, 175–180 local governments in China, role of, 175–180, 249–253
- Balbus, Isaac, 52–53
- Barnett, Kenneth, 379–380
- “bell jar” metaphor
 neo-liberal property rights and, 16–18
 Taiwanese ancestral worship property and, 335–336, 347–348
- Berman v. Parker*, 45
- Bill of Rights Ordinance (Hong Kong), 382–383
- Billion Star Development Limited, 404–408

- Binh Minh Import Export Company (Bitexco), 306–311
- Blake, Henry, 361–362
- block crown leases (Hong Kong) colonial land governance and, 361–362
in New Territories, 374–376
small house policy and, 377–382
- blogging. See also social media Chinese land disputes and, 24–25
networking and association-building in China through, 168–170
Vietnamese land disputes and, 24–25, 291–293
- Bray, Denis, 380–381, 385–386
- Britain. See United Kingdom
- British colonial law, Hong Kong land governance under, 359–362
- building and landownership certificate (fangdichan suoyouzheng) (China), 152–153
- business networks, neo-liberal property rights and, 16–18
- Cadastral Clean-Up Regulation, 336–338
- cadastral planning technology
codification in China and Vietnam of, 10–13 Taiwanese ancestor worship
property and, 336–338
Taiwanese disjunction over land expropriation and, 326–329
- cadre management systems
land lease dispute mediation in China and, 259–261
land-taking disputes in China and, 264–268
legal institutions in China and, 255–257 social stability indicators in China linked to, 257–258 socialist Vietnamese land regulations and, 281–283
- capitalism ancestral worship property and, 335–336 Chinese urban landownership linked to, 151–152
property rights and, 20
Taiwanese ancestral worship property disputes and, 354–355 Vietnamese colonial statutory rights-based property rights and title regime and, 279–281
- Catholic Church, demand for return of land in Vietnam, 7–8
- CCP. See Chinese Communist Party
- Central Committee for Politics and Law (CCPL) (China), secondary authority hypothesis and, 108–111
Grand mediation policy and, 257–258
state-initiated mediation and, 255–257
- Central Registration System (Hong Kong), 361–362
- Certificates of Compliance (CCs), Hong Kong small house policy and, 383n.17, 383–385
- Changdong Zhang, 30–31, 248–271
- Chen-Hwai (Taiwan) ancestral worship property case study, 338–343
- Chen Lei, 28–29, 59–85
- Cheng Jie, 7, 10–13, 29, 86–112
- Cheng Xiaonong, 159
- China. See People's Republic of China
- Chinalawinfo database, 92–95
- Chinese Academy of Social Science, 7
- Chinese Communist Party (CCP) courts as organ of, 243–246 Kuomintang retreat to Taiwan and, 321–323 land rights advocacy of, 88–92 legal institutions and, 255–257 mediation policy of, 224–229 monopolization of power by, 175–180 rule of law and reforms of, 268–271 rural land dispute policies of, 86–88 secondary authority hypothesis and role of, 108–111 shift from repression to accommodation by officials in, 185–190 social order goals of, 257–258
state-initiated mediation and, 252–253
support of court system by, 215–219
“Three Supremes” policy of, 229–230

- Chinese Constitution 1954, 13–16 land-use amendments to, 69–71 property rights amendments to, 88–92
- Chinese Nationalist Government (Taiwan), land disputes and, 32–33
- Chinese Property Law, planned land communities and, 25–26
- Chow, Sir Shou-son, 378–379
- “Circular Regarding Cases Courts Should Not Accept” (China), 105–106
- “Citizen Broadcasts” protest group, 157–158
- “city beautiful” movement, land planning codification and, 10–13
- civil litigation. See also administrative litigation ancestral worship property in Taiwan and, 336–343, 345–346
 in contemporary Taiwan, 325–326 court-mediated outcomes in, 228 growth of, in land expropriation cases, 197–202 in Hong Kong private land disputes, 371, 405n.39 land governance in Taiwan and history of, 318–325 non-governmental actors in Taiwanese ancestral worship property disputes and, 344–345 non-legal discourse during, 206–207 plaintiff success rate in China for, 96t statism, collectivism, and majoritarianism in China and, 96–97 tension in Taiwan over, 326–329
- Civil Procedural Law (China), judicial powers under, 204–206
- civil society organizations
 Chinese state suppression of, 144–171
 Hong Kong reclamation and resumption projects and, 366–367 illegal structures in Hong Kong and, 404–408
 Wukan dispute and assumptions about, 187–190
- Civil Society Research Center, 173–174
- clan-based society
 in Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 295–297
 Taiwanese ancestral worship property and, 332–336
 in Wukan, China, democracy and, 189–190
- Clarke, Donald, 16–18
- class structure
 Chinese land expropriation regulations and, 84 land planning codification and, 10–13
 socialist Vietnamese land regulations and, 281–283
 Wukan dispute and assumptions about, 187–190
- “cleared land” concept
 Chinese land expropriation and, 127
 Chinese protests based on rule violations involving, 146–150
- Clementi, Sir Cecil, 379
- collective action. See also public protests Chinese authoritarian decisiveness and, 175–180 court embarrassment in China as result of, 210–211 demolition litigation and social change in China through, 194–221 dispute resolution politics in Hong Kong and, 408–410
 Dongzhou (China) local government case and, 103n.38 in Đông Dương (Vietnam) land dispute, 294–301
 growth in China of, 197–202 human rights arguments in strategies of, 167–168 illegal structures in Hong Kong and, 404–408
 litigation-based trajectory in China for, 177–178 mobilization-based trajectory in China for, 178–180 networking and association-building in China and, 168–170 organized protests during litigation in China and, 208–209

- in planned community case study in Vietnam, 309–311
- post-reunification reforms in Vietnam and, 285–289
- protest-supported litigation in China as, 202–209
- reclamation and resumption projects in Hong Kong and, 366–367
- self-centered property ideology in China challenged by, 144–171
- small house policy dispute in Hong Kong and, 377–382
- in Wukan land dispute, 29–30, 173–174, 180–182
- collective actions
 - property rights in China and, 100–101
 - in Vietnamese planned community case study, 308–309
- collective landownership
 - bifurcated land use in China and, 60–61
 - Chinese property rights and, 96–97, 100–101
 - pure law enforcement authority hypothesis in China and, 105–106
 - rural and suburban land rights in China and, 158–165
 - rural land in China, past and current trends in, 62–66, 88–92
 - Taiwanese ancestral worship property and, 333–335
 - transferability of property in China and, 69–71
 - Vietnamese socialist land regulations and, 281–289
- colonialism
 - ancestral worship property in Taiwan and, 332–336
 - Đông Dương (Vietnam) land dispute and role of, 295–297
 - fuzzy property rights and, 20
 - Heung Yee Kuk (Hong Kong village society) and, 376–377
 - Hong Kong government-related land disputes and, 368–370
 - Hong Kong land laws under, 33–34, 359–362
 - Japanese land governance in Taiwan and, 32–33, 317–318
 - property rights recycling and, 13–16
 - in New Territories (Hong Kong), 374–376
 - Vietnamese statutory rights-based property rights and title regime under, 279–281
- color revolutions, Wukan protest as, 184–185
- Columbia University, eminent domain abuse and, 49–51
- commodification of property rights in Đông Dương (Vietnam) land dispute, 299–301
- land disputes and, 37–56
- in Vietnamese spontaneous community land case, 311–314
- common property, Vietnamese planned community case study and definition of, 306–311
- communal land tenure
 - historical perspective on, 39
 - in pre-colonial Vietnam land, 276–278
 - traditional community governance and, 23–24
 - Vietnamese spontaneous communities land dispute and, 301–306
- communicative hybridization, Taiwanese ancestor worship property disputes, 348–354
- community governance. See also local governments
 - defined, 22
 - Hong Kong tolerance for illegal structures and, 394–403
 - intersecting land communities, 27
 - land disputes and, 21–27
 - planned land communities, 25–26
 - spontaneous land communities, 24–25
 - state land communities, 26–27
 - in Taiwan, 348–354, 408n.49
 - traditional land communities, 23–24
 - Vietnamese land disputes and, 31–32, 298–299
 - in virtual communities, 22–23

- compensation policies
 - Chinese standards for, 55–56, 71–73, 122–124, 129–130, 197–202
 - Chinese statism, collectivism, and majoritarianism and, 96–97
 - collective landownership vs. property rights in China and, 88–92, 100–101
 - in colonial Hong Kong, 359–362
 - in Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 295–298
 - eminent domain in China vs., 240–243
 - fairness principle in Chinese regulations, 79–80, 103n.38
 - Hong Kong government-related disputes, 368–370
 - Hunan rural land dispute case study, 231–235
 - Land Management Law (China) provisions, 102–103
 - land-taking disputes in China and, 264–268
 - multidimensional issues in, 51–55
 - protest-supported demolition litigation in China and, 146–150, 202–203
 - pure law enforcement authority hypothesis in China and, 105–106
 - rural land dispute mediation in China and, 239–240
 - Taiwanese disjunction and disparity over, 326–329
 - Tso and Tong ancestor worship properties and, 389–391
 - urban land regulation in China and, 66–69
 - Vietnamese post-reunification reforms and, 285–289
 - in Vietnamese spontaneous communities case study, 302–303
- comprehensive mediation (China)
 - court concept of, 228–229, 237–239
 - political function of, 239–240
 - role play and role conflict in, 243–246
- compulsory leases (China), for urban living space, 150–158
- compulsory resumption policy
 - Hong Kong government-related disputes over, 368–370
 - Hong Kong private land development and, 366–367
- Tso and Tong ancestor worship properties and, 389–391
- Concern Group against the Construction of Screen Buildings (Hong Kong), 404–408
- Confucian values and judicial mediation, 228
- construction industry
 - Chinese rural land-use rights and, 59–62, 136–138
 - Vietnamese planned community case study and, 306–311
- Convention of Chuenpi, 359–362
- Convention of Peking, 359–362
- Council for Compensating Damage for Ground Clearance (Hoi Dong Den Bu), Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 297–298
- court systems
 - abandoned land dispute mediation in China and, 262–264
 - administration litigation in China through, 197–202, 229–230
 - ancestor worship land disputes and, 32–33
 - authoritarian regime in China vs., 131–133, 177–178, 194–197, 222–223, 248–253, 255–257
 - Chinese trust in, 235n.34–235n.35
 - colonial establishment in Hong Kong of, 361–362
 - comprehensive mediation in China and, 228–229, 237–239
 - current role in Hong Kong, 33–34, 371–372
 - democratization of land management and, 13
 - demolition litigation in China and, 30, 194–221
 - disjunction and disparity in Taiwan, 326–329
 - dispute resolution politics in Hong Kong and, 408–410
 - eminent domain issues in China and, 240–243
 - expropriation regulations in China and, 81–84
 - fuzzy property rights and, 20

- government agency hypothesis in China and, 106–108
- Grand mediation policy in China
and, 257–258
- historical perspective on property rights and, 40–41
- intersecting land communities and, 27
- lack of access in China to, 255–257
- land disputes in China and, 29, 92–95, 104–111, 248–249
- land disputes in Hong Kong and,
33–34, 371
- land disputes in Taiwan and, 32–33, 317–318
- land lease disputes in China and, 259–261
- Land Management Law in China
and, 91
- Land-taking disputes in China and, 264–268
- limitations of, 34–36
- “Ma Xiwu trial model” of mediation
in, 224–229
- mediation and, 30–31
- non-legal discourse in China and, 206–207
- political pressures in China, 246–247, 256n.31
- protest-supported litigation process
in, 202–215, 219–221
- pure law enforcement authority
hypothesis in China and, 105–106
- reform proposals in China and role of, 129–130, 131–133
- role play and role conflict patterns in China and, 243–246
- rural land dispute mediation in
China and, 219–221, 222–247
- secondary authority hypothesis in
China and, 108–111
- social stability perspective in China
and, 212–213
- subcontracting disputes in China
and, 237–239
- Tso and Tong ancestor worship properties and, 389–391
- Cox, Gary W., 175–180
- crowd-aggregating market price, stock shares and, 51–55
- Crown Lands Resumption Ordinance (Hong Kong), 366–367, 376–382
- Crown Leases Ordinance (Hong Kong), 362–363
- Cultural Revolution in China
rural land collectivization and, 62–66
- urban landownership revisions following, 151
- cultural traditions
- Đông Dương (Vietnam) land dispute and role of, 295–297, 311–314
- Hong Kong colonial land governance and, 361–362
- Hong Kong tolerance for illegal structures and, 394–401
- land planning codification and, 10–13
- customary law
- Hong Kong colonial land governance and, 361–362
- Hong Kong government-related
land disputes and, 368–370
- Hong Kong small house policy and,
364–365, 377–382, 385–386
- in post-colonial Hong Kong, 371–372
- Taiwanese Jisigongye (ancestor
worship) land disputes and,
331–342, 347–348
- Tso and Tong case studies in Hong Kong and, 387–391
- Da Nang Communist Party, Vietnamese spontaneous communities dispute
and, 303–306
- Dang Tan Do, 303–306
- de facto* land distribution (China)
- abandoned land disputes and, 262–264
- local government role in, 162
- rural collectivization and, 62–66, 158–159
- urban land expropriation and,
66–69, 122–124
- de Soto, Hernando, 16–18, 335–336
- decentralization of land use
- Chinese rural land collectivization
and, 62–66

- decentralization of land use (cont.)
 Vietnamese land disputes and,
 291–293
- Deed of Mutual Covenants (Hong Kong), 371–372
- democracy
 Hong Kong land regulations and, 33–34
 limits in Wukan, China of, 190–192
 property rights and, 20
 Taiwanese post-democratization land governance, 317–318, 323–324, 329–330
 Wukan dispute and concessions to, 187–190
- Democratic Progressive Party (DPP) (Taiwan), post-democratization land governance and, 323–325
- Democratic Republic of Vietnam, establishment of, 281–283
- “demolition nabob,” 115–120
- demolition orders. See also land expropriation compensation standards in China
 and, 122–124, 129–130
 court approval in China for, 125–126, 131–133
 discrediting of Chinese court system
 and, 209–215
 for Hong Kong illegal structures, 365–366
 judicial arbitration in China of, 30, 86–88
 Land Management Law (China) provisions on, 102–103
 legal framework in China for, 71–73, 74t–75t, 146–150
 local government involvement in China, 97–100, 142–143 media coverage in China of, 60–61 negotiation procedures in China over, 124–125
 procedural justice in China and, 81–84
 protest-supported litigation in China and, 194–221
 public interest in Chinese policy as basis for, 131
 public protests in China against, 115–120, 144–171, 194–221 rural–urban bifurcation in China
 and, 122
 social change as result of, 27–28, 215–219
 statistics in China on, 122 urban land in China and, 66–69, 111–112, 156–157
- Demsetz, Harold, 16–18, 43, 289–290
- Deng Xiaoping, 62–66, 152–153
- Dery, Wilhelmina, 44–51, 46n.24
- developer hegemony, 392–394, 393n.2
- Dick, Anthony, 385–386
- Differential Compensation Case court embarrassment in litigation of, 210–211
 court order during procedures of, 204–206
 non-legal public discourse during, 206–207
- Ding Right, Hong Kong small house policy and, 380–381, 383–385
- diplomatic cases (suat ngoai giao) principle, relational land market in Vietnamese planned community case study, 308–309
- direct confrontation in Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 298–299 public protest of land expropriation through, 197–202
- displaced populations, urbanization in China and, 4–7
- dispute resolution abandoned land, Chinese disputes over, 262–264
 contemporary Taiwanese framework for, 325–326
 court limitations in China and, 194–197, 209–215, 239–240
 disjunction and disparity in Taiwan
 over, 326–329
 Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 298–299
 eminent domain issues in China
 and, 240–243

- Grand mediation policy (China), 257–258 history of, in Taiwan, 318–325
 in Hong Kong, 359–372
 Hunan rural land dispute case study, 231–235 increase in land disputes and, 3–4
 limitations of, 34–36
 litigation-base trajectory for, Chinese authoritarian limitations on, 177–178 local government role in China, 249–253 Party policy in China concerning, 224–229 pattern of Chinese approaches to, 233t, 234t, 254–271n.69 repression vs. accommodation in China and, 185–190 role play and role conflict patterns in China and, 243–246 rule of law vs. mediation in China and, 268–271 rural land disputes in China, 222–247 societal norms in China and, 251 unmediated exchanges and, 34–36
 in Vietnam, overview of, 275–290
 Wukan, China model for, 173–174
 “distribution decisions” (Vietnam), land transfers and, 285–289 Doan Van Vuon land dispute, Vietnamese land laws and, 285–289 doi moi (renovation) reforms, Vietnamese property rights recycling and, 15
 Đông Dương (Vietnam) land dispute community land governance and, 31–32, 294–301, 311–314 foundational history of village and, 295–297 negotiation procedures in, 299–301 social organization in, 23–24
 Dowdle, Michael W., 219–221
 DPP. See Democratic Progressive Party (Taiwan)
 Draft Property Law. See Property Rights Law of 2007 (China)
 Duan Lin, 32–33, 60–61, 317–330, 331–342 due process, in Chinese land expropriation regulations, 81–84. See also procedural justice economic development
 ancestral worship property in Taiwan and, 333–335
 authoritarian legitimacy in China linked to, 141–142, 177
 bifurcated land use in China and, 59–62
 colonial statutory rights-based property rights in Vietnam and, 279–281 disjunction and disparity in Taiwan over, 326–329
 in Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 295–297
 eminent domain in China and, 44–51
 geographical comparisons in China of, 197–202 historical and comparative perspectives on, 39–43 judicial arbitration in China and role of, 91 land expropriation in China and, 182–185, 197–202
 land governance in Taiwan and, 317–318, 323–324
 legal modernization and, 354–355 local government role in China for, 254 post-reunification land law reforms in Vietnam and, 285–289 property rights secondary in China to, 13–20, 69–71 rule of law violations in China on basis of, 255–257 social costs of, 27–28, 39n.3, 185–190 economic disparities
 land disputes and, 7
 property rights recycling and, 13–16
 Eliot, Charles, 359–362 elites property rights recycling and role of, 13–16 stability perspective of, 224–229

- embedded property rights
 - community governance and, 23
 - in planned land communities, 25–26
 - in spontaneous land communities, 24–25
 - in state land communities, 26–27
 - Vietnamese state land communities and, 293
- Emergency Shelter* (film), 156–157
- eminent domain in China
 - abuse of, 45n.21, 49–51
 - land law transformation and, 44–51
 - rural land-use rights and, 240–243
- Engels, Friedrich, 13–16
- England. See United Kingdom
- environmental issues in land disputes
 - mobilization-based trajectory in China for, 178–180
 - Taiwanese disjunction over governance of, 326–329
 - in Vietnamese spontaneous communities case study, 302–303
- epistemic communities
 - legal legacy of, 354–355
 - Taiwanese ancestor worship property disputes, 348–354
- Epp, Charles, 208–209
- ethnic politics and Qing Dynasty land governance in Taiwan, 319–320, 324–325
- Expropriation Measure for the Construction of National Projects (China), 63n.16
- fairness principles, in Chinese property regulations, 91
- family networks
 - ancestral worship property disputes in Taiwan and, 332–336, 344–345
 - eminent domain cases and, 240–243
 - Jisigongye (ancestor worship) in Taiwan and, 331–332
 - land dispute case studies in Vietnam involving, 291–293
 - neo-liberal property rights and, 16–18
 - pre-colonial Vietnam land tenure and, 276–278
 - rural land collectivization in China and, 62–66, 63n.20
 - small house policy in Hong Kong and, 377–382
 - socialist land regulations in Vietnam and, 281–289
 - tolerance for illegal structures in Hong Kong and, 394–401
 - Tong ancestor worship properties in Hong Kong and, 387–391
- Family Responsibility Contracting System, 88–92
- Fan Yu, 227
- farmers land-use rights
 - abandoned land disputes and, 262–264
 - Chinese rural land expropriation and, 64–65
 - in Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 295–297
 - Kuomintang policies in Taiwan for, 321–323
 - open letters in support of, 162
- Faure, David, 374–376
- Felstiner, William, 9–10
- feng shui*, Hong Kong
 - colonial land governance and, 361–362
- fire risk, illegal structures in Hong Kong and, 365–366
- fiscalization of land, Hong Kong system for, 362–363
- Five-Year Reform Outlines, Chinese People's Court, 92
- Fok Ying-Tung, 152–153
- “Foo Yau Tong” case study, illegal structures in Hong Kong and, 404–408
- forced evictions
 - court approval required for, 125–126, 131–133, 197–202
 - government malfeasance in China and, 142–143
 - judicial arbitration of, 124–125, 138
 - land expropriation in China and, 59–62, 60n.5, 158–165
 - protests against, 115–120, 146–150, 165–170

- reinterpretation of Chinese rural and suburban land rights and, 158–165
- rural–urban bifurcation in China and, 122, 156–157
- social management perspectives in China on, 133–134
- Vietnamese spontaneous communities land dispute and, 301–306
- foreign investment, bifurcated land use in China and, 60–61
- fragmented land regulation
 - land disputes in Vietnam and, 275–276
 - post-reunification reforms in Vietnam and, 285–289
- France
 - Vietnamese colonial property rights under, 279–281
 - Vietnamese independence from, 281–283
- free elections, Wukan dispute and demands for, 187–190
- fuzzy property rights, 18–20
 - state land communities and, 26–27
 - Vietnamese land laws and, 285–289
- GDP. See gross domestic product
- Geneva Conference 1954, 281–283
- Germany, public interest land-use requirement in, 78n.74–78n.75
- Gillespie, John, 19–20, 31–32, 289–290, 291–314
- Ginsburg, Tom, 194–197, 249–253, 268–271
- Golden Hills case study (Vietnam), 301–306
- Gong Xiantian, 138–140, 151–152, 162
- Goo, Say H., 33–34, 359–372, 374–391
- government agency hypothesis, Chinese land arbitration and, 106–108
- Government Law Resumption Ordinance (Hong Kong), 389–391
- Government Procurement Act (Taiwan), 325–326
- Grand mediation (China)
 - abandoned land disputes and, 262–264
 - future issues in, 268–271
 - fuzzy property rights and, 20
 - land dispute resolution and, 34–36
 - in land lease disputes, 259–261
 - land-taking disputes, 264–268
 - legal institutions and, 257–258
 - legitimacy issues with, 54
- Great Britain. See United Kingdom
- Great Leap Forward (1958–1961) (China), 62–66
- gross domestic product (GDP) (China)
 - authoritarian legitimacy linked to growth of, 177
 - discreditation of focus on, 141–142, 197–202
 - geographical comparisons of, 197–202
- Guangdong Land Resources Department (China), Hong Kong government-related land disputes and, 368–370
- Hallifax, Edwin R., 378–379
- Han Chinese culture
 - Jisigongye (ancestor worship) (Taiwan) and, 331–332
 - New Territories land governance and, 374–376
- hard-nail households, 204–206
 - compensation for, 206–207
 - demolition of, 202–203
 - protest litigation process and, 209–215
- Hart, H. L. A., 401–403
- Hau Shao, 30–31
- Hawai'i Housing Authority v. Midkiff*, 45n.21, 45
- He Xin, 4–7, 30, 54, 194–221
- “Heavenly Mandate” (Vietnam), pre-colonial land tenure and, 276–278
- Heilongjiang Open Letter, 162–163

- Heung Yee Kuk (Hong Kong village society)
- abuses and failure of safeguards in small house policy and, 383–385
 - government-related land disputes and, 368–370
 - historical background of, 374–376
 - illegal structures policies and, 365–366
 - in New Territories, 376–377
 - reform of small house policy and, 385–386
 - small house policy and, 364–365, 377–382
 - structure and functions of, 376
 - Tso and Tong ancestor worship properties and, 389–391
- Heung Yee Kuk Ordinance, 376, 380
- Heurlin, Christopher, 30–31, 248–271
- HIDP. See Homeland Integrated Development Planning (Taiwan)
- Ho Chi Minh, 281–283
- Ho Mei Ling, 405n.37
- Ho, Peter, 60–61
- Hòa Lien Commune (Vietnam) case study, 301–306, 302n.32
- homeowners associations (HOAs)
- planned land communities and, 25–26
 - public protests involving, 168–170
- Home Ownership Scheme (Hong Kong), 364
- Homeland Integrated Development Planning (HIDP) (Taiwan), 323–324
- Hong Duc Code (Luat Hong Duc), pre-colonial Vietnam landownership and, 276–278
- Hong Kong
- colonial land laws in, 359–362
 - community land systems in, 21
 - customary land practices in, 361–362
 - dispute resolution in, 359–372, 408–410
 - fiscalization of land in, 362–363
 - fuzzy property rights in, 20
 - government-related land disputes in, 368–370
 - historical evolution of land disputes in, 363–368
 - illegal structures in, 365–366, 392–410
 - increase in land disputes in, 3–4
 - intersecting land communities in, 27
 - judicialization and democratization of land management in, 13
 - land dispute responses in, 368–371
 - land laws in, 33–34, 359–372
 - politicization of illegal buildings in, 401–403
 - private land disputes in, 371, 404–408
 - reclamation and resumption projects in, 366–367
 - small house policy in, 364–365, 374–391
 - squatter resettlement in, 364
 - state–customary law interface in land laws of, 374–391
 - state land communities in, 26–27
 - Tso and Tong ancestor worship property in, 387–391
 - urban property ownership in, 152–153
 - urbanization in, 4–7, 368
- Hong Kong Housing Authority, 364
- household contracts
- Chinese property rights and, 15
 - compensation issues and, 239–240
- Hunan rural land dispute case study, 231–235
- rural land rights and, 159
- second-hand contracting, rural land disputes, 237–239
- in Vietnamese spontaneous communities case study, 303–306
- Household Responsibility System (HRS) (China), 62–66
- housing policies
- of Hong Kong government, 368–370
 - illegal structures in Hong Kong, changing official attitudes toward, 365–366, 398–401
 - “minor property rights” in China and, 160–161
 - planned community case study in Vietnam, 306–311

- post-reunification land laws in Vietnam, 285–289
- protest-supported demolition litigation in China and, 194–221
- regulatory flexibility over illegal structures in Hong Kong and, 392–410
- small house policy (Hong Kong), 364–365
- spontaneous communities land dispute in Vietnam and, 301–306
- squatter resettlement in Hong Kong, 364
- state-land communities in Vietnam and, 293
- urban land expropriation in China and, 66–69, 71–73, 150–158
- HRS. See Household Responsibility System (China)
- Hu Jintao, 228–230
- Hu-Wen, 246–247
- Hua Shao, 222–247
- Hua Xinmin, 119, 151–152, 154–157
- Hualing Fu, 29–30, 173–193, 251–252
- Huang, Philip, 228–229
- Huang Songyou, 109–110
- human rights violations, Chinese protests of expropriation framed as, 146–150, 165–170
- human sentiment perspective, judicial mediation and, 228
- Hunan rural land dispute case study land reallocation case, 236–237 research methodology overview, 231–235
- hybrid regulators
 - in Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 299–301
 - in Taiwanese ancestor worship property disputes, 336–338, 349–352
 - in Vietnamese planned community dispute, 309–311
 - in Vietnamese spontaneous communities dispute, 303–306
- illegal structures (Hong Kong) government policies concerning, 368–370
 - history of tolerance for, 394–401
 - lack of legitimacy in state institutions and, 394–403
 - politicization of, 401–403
 - public–private issues in, 404–408
 - regulatory flexibility in Hong Kong concerning, 392–410
 - small house policy and problem of, 382–383
 - urbanization and, 365–366
- immigration, squatter resettlement in Hong Kong and, 364
- imperial land governance. See also colonialism
 - in pre-colonial Hong Kong, 359–362, 374–376
 - in pre-colonial Vietnam, 276–278
 - in Taiwan, 32–33, 319–320, 324–325
- improvements to land, Taiwanese disjunction and disparity over, 326–329
- indigenous groups, land tenure practices of, 23–24, 24n.77
- industrialization and land expropriation
 - in Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 295–297
 - historical perspective on, 39–43
 - in Taiwan, 323–324
 - Taiwanese disjunction and disparity over, 326–329
- inheritance laws, eminent domain cases and, 240–243
- institutional vetoes
 - authoritarian regimes and, 175–180
 - mobilization-based trajectory and, 178–180
- institutionalized resolution, public protest of land expropriation through, 197–202
- internal agreements
 - strategies in Taiwanese ancestral worship property involving, 344–345
 - in Taiwanese ancestral worship property case studies, 338–343
- International Finance Corporation, 21
- international trespass, property rights and concept of, 40–41

- Internet, public protest in land disputes and use of, 7–8, 115–120, 144–171, 197–202. See also social media
- intersecting land communities, governance in, 27
- involuntary land transfer, Chinese rural land policies and, 64–65
- Jacque v. Steenberg Homes, Inc.*, 40–41, 51–55
- Japan
colonial land governance in Taiwan, 32–33, 317–318, 320–321, 324–325, 332–336 land law reform in, 42n.10, 42–43, 54n.37
- Jasmin Revolution (China), Wukan protest and, 184–185
- Jiang Ming, 134–136, 146–150
- Jiang Ping, 138–140
- Jiang Tianyong, 156–157
- Jisigongye (ancestor worship) (Taiwan) actors' strategies in litigation of, 343–354 communicative hybridization and epistemic communities and, 348–354 contemporary Taiwanese land governance and, 331–332 customary law in land disputes concerning, 331–342t legacy of, 354–355
legal history of, 332–336
lot-allocated vs. contract-charter property, 332n.2 research methodology concerning, 336–338 state law and customary rule interaction concerning, 347–348 typology of, 341n.17, 332n.4, 341–343
- Joint Declaration between the People's Republic of China and Great Britain, 362–363
- judge-made laws, Chinese land arbitration and, 104–105
- judicial arbitration in land disputes. See also court systems absence of enforcement in China and, 134–136 ancestral worship property case studies in Taiwan, 338–354 audience size restrictions in China during, 202–203
in contemporary Taiwan, 325–326 court status in China and, 204–206, 229–230 current and future role in China of, 219–221 data and research methodology for Chinese cases, 92–95 demolition litigation and social change in China and, 194–221 discouragement of, in China, 54–55 discrediting in China of, 209–215 disjunction and disparity in Taiwan concerning, 326–329 dispute resolution politics in Hong Kong and, 408–410 government agency hypothesis in China and, 106–108 government-related challenges in Hong Kong, 368–370 illegal structures in Hong Kong and, 404–408
land expropriation in China and, 86–112, 93t land governance in Taiwan and, 317–318 land property laws in China and, 44–51, 86–112
land-taking disputes, 264–268
local government immunity in China and, 175–180 “Ma Xiwu trial model” of mediation and, 224–229 mediation vs., 224–229, 243–246
non-legal discourse during, 206–207 political motivations in China for, 104–111 procedural due process in Chinese law and, 81–84 protest-supported litigation in China and, 202–209

- pure law enforcement authority
 - hypothesis in China concerning, 105–106
- role play and role conflict in, 243–246
- rural land dispute mediation in
 - China, 222–247
- secondary authority hypothesis in
 - China and, 108–111
- social change in China and, 215–219
- statism, collectivism, and
 - majoritarianism in China and, 96–97
- judicialization of politics, in
 - authoritarian states, 249–253
- Ka Chih-Ming, 319–320
- Kan Fat-tat v. Kan Yin-tat*, 389–391
- Keliher, Macabe, 189–190, 191
- Kelo v. City of New London*, 44–51, 45n.21, 51–55
- Kim, Annette, 6–7
- Kim Ngoc, 283–284
- knowledge distribution, land disputes and, 9–10
- Kotewall, Sir Robert, 378–379
- Kuomingtang Party (China)
 - land rights advocacy by, 88–92
 - Taiwanese land governance and, 317–318, 321–325
- “Land Act” (Taiwan), contemporary
 - framework for, 325–326
- Land Administration Law (LAL) (China)
 - compensation mechanisms in, 79–80
 - property rights and review of, 84–85, 85n.88
 - revisions in, 115–120
 - rural land-use rights and reform of, 136–138
 - state monopolistic land
 - appropriation under, 66
- land disputes. See also abandoned land disputes; environmental issues in land disputes; judicial arbitration in land disputes; legal framework for land disputes; social dimensions of land disputes
 - in China, data and research
 - methodology for, 92–95
 - Chinese land property laws and, 86–88
 - community conceptualizations of, 21–27
 - country case studies overview, 28–36
 - developmental logic in China and, 182–185
 - Hong Kong responses to, 363–371
 - Hunan rural land boundaries case study, 231–235
 - increase in, 3–4, 8
 - intersecting land communities, 27
 - judicial arbitration in China,
 - overview, 86–112
 - legal perspectives on, 3–4
 - multidimensional process in China
 - for, 51–55
 - political economy and, 4–7
 - research methodology concerning, 9–10
 - social dimensions of, 7–8, 27–28
 - Taiwanese land and law and
 - dispute resolution overview, 317–330
 - in Vietnam, overview of, 31–32, 275–290
 - Vietnamese post-reunification
 - reforms and growth of, 285–289
- land expropriation. See also eminent domain; industrialization and land expropriation
 - compensation patterns in China for, 79–80, 100t, 122–124
 - contested relationships and, 34–36
 - democratic governance limits in
 - China and, 190–192
 - developmental logic for, in China, 182–185
 - economic growth and, 27–28
 - historic and current trends in China
 - of, 62–71
 - human rights arguments in Chinese
 - protests against, 165–170
 - Hunan rural land dispute case study, 231–235
 - judicial role in Chinese cases of, 86–112

- land expropriation (cont.)
- Land Management Law provisions in China, 102–103
 - legal and institutional analysis in China of, 59–85
 - majority rule and minority contractors in China and, 102
 - negotiations procedures in China over, 124–125
 - post-democratization land governance in Taiwan and, 323–324
 - privatization of Chinese urban land and, 66–69
 - procedural due process in China and, 81–84
 - property rights in context of, 29
 - protests based on rule violations by Chinese local governments, 146–150
 - public interest requirement in China and, 73–79, 131
 - public protests in China against, 115–120, 144–171
 - pure law enforcement authority hypothesis in China and, 105–106
 - regulations in 2011 China concerning, 71–73
 - rule of law in China and, 190–192, 197–202
 - rural land-use rights and, 158–165
 - rural–urban bifurcation in China and, 59–62, 122
 - scope in China of, 122
 - strengths and limitations of Chinese regulations for, 84
 - structures and standing crops and, 79–80
 - substantive review in China and, 97–100
 - urban property in China, 150–158
 - Wukan protest against, 29–30, 173–174, 180–182
- Land Expropriation Ordinance (Taiwan), 326–329
- land holder's identity, Chinese land property laws and, 86–88
- “land hunger,” bifurcated land use in China and, 60–61
- Land Law (Vietnam)
- Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study and, 23–24, 294, 297–298
 - historical overview of, 275–290
 - land disputes and, 15–16, 291–293
 - Vietnamese post-reunification revisions in, 285–289
- land lease disputes
- in colonial Hong Kong, 359–362
 - Hong Kong fiscalization of land and, 362–363
 - Hong Kong small house policy and, 377–382
 - Kuomintang land governance in Taiwan and, 321–323
 - state-initiated mediation and, 259–261
- Land Management Law (China)
- abandoned land provisions in, 237n.37
 - Article 46 cases, 94t
 - Article 47 cases, 94t
 - Article 48 cases, 95t
 - Article 49 cases, 95t
 - court cases related to, 29, 91
 - data and research methodology concerning, 92–95
 - historical framework for, 88–92
 - judicial arbitration and, 111–112
 - land expropriation under, 197–202
 - property entrenchment and, 86–88
 - statism, collectivism, and majoritarianism and, 96–97
 - substantive review and procedural limits in, 97–100
 - summary of property rights in, 15, 102–103
 - text of Articles 46–49, 113–114
- Land (Compulsory Sale for Redevelopment) Ordinance (Hong Kong), 368, 371
- land reallocation. See also reclamation and resumption projects
- of abandoned land in China, 237n.37
 - Hunan rural land dispute case study, 231–235, 236–237
 - in socialist Vietnam, 281–283

- in Taiwan, Kuomintang policies for, 321–323
- Taiwanese disjunction over coordination of, 326–329
- Land Reform Law (China), 88–92
- land register (dia bo), pre-colonial Vietnam land regulation and, 276–278
- Land Resources Bureau, 248–249
- land-taking disputes
 - case studies in Vietnam, 291–293
 - Hunan rural land dispute case study, 231–235
 - in land property laws in China, 88–92
 - local government mediation in China of, 249–253, 264–268
 - post-reunification reforms in Vietnam and growth of, 285–289
 - role play and role conflict in China and, 243–246
 - rural land dispute mediation in China and, 239–240
 - state-initiated mediation in China, 264–268
- Land Tax Reform Law (Japan), 42–43
- land tenure systems
 - historical evolution in China of, 28–29
 - Hong Kong land fiscalization and, 362–363
 - Hong Kong small house policy and, 377–382
 - in pre-colonial Vietnam, 276–278
 - Vietnamese land disputes and, 291–293
- “land-to-the-tiller” reform (Taiwan), 321–323
- Landesa, 8, 15
- Landry, Pierre, 251–252
- Lands Tribunal (Hong Kong), 368–370
- Lau Wang Fat, 365–366
- Law and Regulations Retrieving System of the Judicial Yuan of the Republic of China, ancestral worship property and, 336–338
- Law on Residential Housing (Vietnam), 306–311
- Le Dynasty (Vietnam), 276–278
- Le Thai To (emperor), pre-colonial Vietnam land regulation and, 276–278
- “lease of public farm lands” reform (Taiwan), 321–323
- Lee, Alice, 33–34, 268–271, 392–410
- Legal Committee of the National People’s Congress, 246–247
- legal framework for land disputes, 3–4. See also judicial arbitration in land disputes
 - ancestral worship property case studies in Taiwan, 338–343
 - authoritarian decisiveness in China and limitations of, 175–180
 - bifurcated land use in China and, 59–62, 122
 - Chinese housing regulations concerning expropriation and compensation, 71–73
 - colonial statutory rights-based property rights in Vietnam and, 279–281
 - contemporary Taiwanese legislation, 325–326
 - customary law in Hong Kong and, 371–372
 - customary law in Jisigongye (ancestor worship) (Taiwan) and, 331–342t
 - demolition litigation and social change in China and, 194–221
 - dispute resolution in Taiwan and, 317–330
 - in Đông Dương (Vietnam) land dispute, 294, 299–301
 - due process in land disputes and, 51–55
 - illegal building regulations in Hong Kong, flexibility in, 392–410
 - Japanese land law reform and, 42–43
 - land law history and, 44–51
 - property rights in China and takings provisions, 29, 88–92
 - Property Rights Law of 2007, Chinese institutional debate concerning, 138–140

- legal–framework (cont.)
- protest arguments in China based on violations of state rules, 146–150
 - protest-related demolition litigation in China and, 219–221
 - pure law enforcement authority hypothesis in China and, 105–106
 - reflexive laws and legal hybrids in Taiwanese ancestor worship property disputes, 349–352
 - repression vs. accommodation in Wukan dispute and, 187
 - rule of law and democratic governance in Wukan dispute and, 190–192
 - special over ordinary laws, precedence of, 317n.1
 - state law limitations, 30–31
 - state power in China and, 255–257
 - state property regime in China and urban development policies, 121–127
 - state vs. customary law in Hong Kong and, 374–391
 - in Taiwan, 32–33
 - tensions in Taiwan concerning, 326–329
 - Wukan model and, 173–174, 187, 190–192
- legitimacy of institutions
- court systems in China, 246–247
 - discrediting of in China, 138–144
 - Hong Kong illegal building regulations flexibility and role of, 394–403
 - litigation process and, 52–53
 - of public protest in China, 175–180, 185–190
 - urban landownership in China and issue of, 151–152
 - “Letter and Visits Days” (xiaofang), 259n.41–260n.43, 259–261
- Leung, C. Y., 399–403
- Li, Lianjiang, 212–213
- Liberation Daily* newspaper, 226
- Lief, Michael, 12–13
- limited use rights, Chinese rural land expropriation and, 64–65, 65n.30
- Lin Zhulan, 164–165, 180–182, 184
- Linton, Ralph, 244
- litigation process. See also civil litigation; protest-supported litigation; specific types of litigation, e.g., administrative litigation
- Chinese land property laws, 86–88
 - Chinese statism, collectivism, and majoritarianism and, 96–97
 - local government barriers in China to, 249–253
 - mediation in China and, 224–229, 259–261
 - multidimensionality of property rights and, 51–55
 - substantive review and procedural limits in China and, 97–100
- local governments
- abandoned land dispute mediation in China and, 262n.47, 262–264
 - ancestral worship property case studies in Taiwan, 343–354
 - balance of power in China and role of, 175–180, 249–253
 - court dependency in China on, 131–133, 209–215, 215–219
 - data collection in China on, 254
 - developmental logic in China and, 182–185
 - disjunction over coordination in Taiwan, 326–329
 - in Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 294, 297–298
 - eminent domain in China and role of, 240–243
 - fair compensation principle in China and, 79–80
 - government agency hypothesis in China and role of, 106–108
 - Hunan rural land dispute case study, 231–235
 - institutionalization of mediation by, 259–261
 - land lease dispute mediation and, 259–261

- land reallocation in China and, 236–237
- land-taking disputes in China and, 264–268
- legal institutions and power of, 255–257
- legitimacy crises in China for, 138–144, 268–271, 270n.65
- mediation in China and role of, 257–258, 268–271
- post-democratization land governance in Taiwan and, 323–324
- post-reunification reforms in Vietnam and autonomy of, 285–289
- pre-colonial land regulations in Vietnam and, 276–278
- procedural justice in China and, 97–100, 99n.28
- revenues from land expropriation in China and, 59–62, 60n.5, 73–79, 77n.72, 88–92, 197–202, 270n.66
- rule of law in China undermined by, 249–253
- rural land use disputes and, 158–165, 224–229
- social stability perspective of, 257n.36
- socialist regulations in Vietnam and, 283–284
- urban land expropriation in China and, 66–69
- in Wukan, China dispute, 180–182, 185–192
- local residents with contracted land (LRC), property rights in China and, 100–101
- local residents with no contracted land (LRNC), property rights in China and, 100–101
- long-term land occupation, in Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 295–297
- Longquan land-taking case, 264–268
- Lubman, Stanley, 191, 228–229
- “Ma Xiwu trial model” of mediation, 224–229, 243–246
- MacLehose, Sir Murray, 364, 381–382
- Mao Zedong
- judicial mediation and ideology of, 228–229
- reinterpretation of rural and suburban land rights and, 158–159
- urban landownership under, 157–158
- market opening, Chinese property rights recycling and, 15
- market-value based mechanisms
- Chinese compensation standards and, 122–124, 148n.85–148n.86
- fair compensation in Chinese expropriation regulations and, 79–80
- Marxist criticism in China of, 138–140
- relational land market in Vietnamese planned community case study, 308–309
- rural land use rights in China and, 136–138
- Taiwanese ancestral worship property and, 333–335
- Taiwanese disjunction and disparity over compensation and, 326–329
- Vietnamese post-reunification land laws and, 285–289
- in Vietnamese spontaneous communities compensation, 302n.32, 302–303
- Marx, Karl, 10–16
- Marxist-Leninism
- Property Rights Law in China and, 138–140
- property rights recycling and, 13–16
- mass incarceration, in United States, 52–53
- “mass incidents.” See public protests
- “mass line” ideology, judicial mediation and, 228–229
- mass litigation, Chinese authoritarian limitations on, 177–178
- McGubbins, Mathew, 175–180
- media coverage. See also social media of administrative litigation in China, 197–202
- discrediting of state in China and, 138–144

- media coverage (cont.)
 of illegal structures policies in Hong Kong, 394n.4, 398–401 of land disputes in Vietnam, 291–293 of land expropriation in China, 59–62 land taking disputes in China, 264–268 organized protesting in China and, 208–209 of planned community dispute in Vietnam, 309–311 of spontaneous communities dispute in Vietnam, 303–306 of Wukan protest, 180–182
- mediation. See also dispute resolution authoritarian regime in China and, 224–229, 249–253
 eminent domain in China and, 240–243 future trends in China for, 246–247
 Grand mediation policy, 257–258
 Hunan empirical case study, 231–235 judges' incentives in China for, 255–257 in land lease disputes in China, 259–261 land reallocation in China and, 236–237
 land taking disputes in China and, 264–268
 local governments in China and, 249–253 in private land disputes in Hong Kong, 371 quotas in China for, 246–247
 role play and role conflict in China and, 243–246
 rule of law in China and, 243–246
 in rural land disputes, 30–31, 222–247
 state-initiated mediation in China and, 248–271
 in Vietnamese spontaneous communities dispute, 303–306
- Mei Foo Sun Chuen estate (Hong Kong) government land regulations and, 33–34 illegal structures dispute and, 404–408 private land dispute over, 371 urban redevelopment and, 368
- Merrill, Thomas, 60–61
- Michelson, Ethan, 251–252
- middle class
 Chinese land expropriation regulations and emergence of, 84 mobilization-based trajectory in China and, 178–180
- Ming Dynasty (China)
 New Territories land governance and, 374–376
 pre-colonial Vietnam land regulation and, 276–278
- minority contractors and Chinese land arbitration, 102
- minority property rights resistance to rural land use restrictions and, 160–161
 Wukan village protest and, 164–165
- Mobil Oil, 404–408
- mobilization-based trajectory, Chinese authoritarian regime as catalyst for, 178–180
- modernist land management codification and abstraction in, 10–13 economic development in China and, 354–355
 in Taiwan, 329–330
 Taiwanese Jisigongye (ancestor worship) land disputes and, 331–342
- More, Sir Thomas, 39
- Moustafa, Tamir, 194–197, 249–253, 268–271
- multidimensional property rights, 51–55
- The Mystery of Capital* (de Soto), 335–336
- Nanking, Treaty of, 359–362
- National People's Congress Standing Committee (NPCSC), 108n.50, 108–111
- negotiations procedures demolition orders in China and, 124–125

- in Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 299–301
- Hunan rural land dispute case study, 231–235
- land lease dispute mediation in China and, 259–261
- in Vietnamese spontaneous communities case study, 303–306
- neo-liberal property rights, Chinese–Vietnamese comparisons, 16–18
- Neo-Neon, Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 294–301
- New Institutional Economic (NIE) theory, neo-liberal property rights and, 16–18
- New Territories (Hong Kong)
- colonial land governance in, 359–362
 - customary law in, 385–386
 - government-related land disputes in, 368–370
 - Heung Yee Kuk role in, 376–377
 - history of, 374–376
 - illegal structures in, 365–366
 - land fiscalization in, 362–363
 - pre-colonial land governance in, 374–376
 - problems with small house policy in, 382–383, 383n.17
 - reclamation and resumption projects in, 366–367
 - small house policy and, 377–382
 - Tso and Tong case studies in, 387–391
- New Territories Administration (Hong Kong), 379–380
- New Territories Crown Lease Resumption Ordinance, 376–377
- New Territories Land Ordinance, 368–370, 387–391
- New Territories Regulation Ordinance 1902, 377–382
- Ngo Dinh Diem, 281–283
- Ni Yulan, 149
- NIE. See New Institutional Economic theory
- Noc-Nan affair (Vietnam), 279–281
- non-conformity, illegal structures in Hong Kong and tolerance for, 394–401
- non-governmental actors
- customary law in Taiwanese ancestor worship property disputes and, 347–348
 - Taiwanese ancestral worship property disputes, 343–354
- non-legal public discourse, protest-supported litigation and, 206–207
- non-residents with contracted land (NRC), property rights in China and, 100–101
- non-residents without contracted land (NRNC), property rights in China and, 100–101
- non-transferability of land. See also transferable land-use rights
- involuntary land transfers in China and, 64–65
 - post-reunification reforms in Vietnam and, 285–289
 - rural land laws in China and, 59–62, 84, 158–165
- North, Douglass, 16–18, 39n.3, 39
- Northeast New Territories Development Plan (Hong Kong), 368–370
- NPCSC. See National People's Congress Standing Committee
- O'Brien, Kevin J., 212–213
- O'Conner, Sandra Day, 45n.21
- ordinance-based land governance, Tso and Tong case studies in Hong Kong and, 387–391
- Ordinance on Residential Housing, Vietnamese post-reunification land laws and, 285–289
- Organic Law of Villagers' Committees, 239–240
- organized protesting. See also collective action; public protests
- Chinese court embarrassment as result of, 210–211

- organized protesting (cont.)
 demolition litigation in China and, 208–209
 in Vietnamese planned community dispute, 309–311
- orthodox property theory, Vietnamese land disputes and, 291–293
- Osin blog (Vietnam), 24–25
- Outdated Standard Case (China) court procedures in, 202–203, 204–206 embarrassment of court in, 213–214 organized protesting during, 208–209
- “owned-in-common” property, ancestral land in Taiwan as, 332–336
- “parchment division of power”
 in China, 176
 mobilization-based trajectory and, 178–180
- Partition Management System (United States), Taiwanese post-democratization land governance incorporation of, 323–324
- Party Disciplinary Department, judicial arbitration in land disputes and, 215–219
- Party intervention, fuzzy property rights and, 20
- Pennsylvania Coal Company v. Sanderson and Wife*, 40–41
- People Commune system (China), rural land collectivization and, 62–66
- People’s Court News*, 227
- People’s Daily* newspaper, 185–190, 191
- People’s Republic of China (PRC) administrative litigation in, 54 case study of land dispute in, 28–31 community land systems in, 21, 23–24 constitutional changes in land use rights in, 69–71 data and research methodology for land dispute arbitration in, 92–95 developmental logic and land disputes in, 182–185 discreditation of self-centered property ideology in, 138–144 economic growth in, 37–38 ethnic minority land rights in, 23–24, 24n.77 fuzzy property rights in, 18–20 government agency hypothesis in land disputes in, 106–108 historical and current issues in land expropriation in, 62–71
 Hong King land fiscalization and, 362–363
 Hong Kong dispute resolution and influence of, 408–410 intersecting land communities in, 27 judiciary influence on property rights in, 95–103 land dispute increase in, 3–4, 8 land expropriation regulations in, 59–85 land management codification in, 10–13
 land tenure history in, 28–29 land-use rights in, 37n.2–38n.2
 legal property rights and takings provisions in, 88–92 legal system for land disputes in, 29 majority rule and minority contractors in, 102 neo-liberal property rights in, 16–18
 politicization of illegal buildings in Hong Kong and, 401–403 post-Mao agricultural de-collectivization and market opening in, 15 procedural due process in expropriation regulations, 81–84 property ownership and urbanization in, 69–71, 115–172 property rights recycling in, 13–16
 pure law enforcement authority hypothesis in land disputes, 105–106 rural–urban land bifurcation in, 59–62, 69–71 secondary authority hypothesis and land arbitration in, 108–111 social dimensions of land disputes in, 27–28 spontaneous land communities in, 24–25

- state land communities in, 26–27
- state-owned landownership in, 59n.1
- statism, collectivism, and majoritarianism and property rights in, 96–97
- structural analysis of land expropriation in, 73–84
- substantive review and procedural wrongs in land disputes in, 97–100
- urbanization in, 4–7, 66–69
- Wukan land-taking protest in, 29–30
- performance art, public protest using, 168–170
- Perry, Elizabeth, 7–8
- Perry, Robert, 376–377
- personhood, multidimensionality of property rights and, 51–55
- petitioning procedures
- Chinese land lease dispute mediation and, 259n.41–260n.43, 259–261
 - Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 298–299
 - Hong Kong small house policy disputes, 377–382
 - Hunan rural land dispute case study, 231–235
 - impact on Chinese court system of, 224–229
- Phap Thu, 309–311
- Phung Minh, 12
- Pils, Eva, 29, 115–172
- planned land communities
- epistemic and normative assumptions in Vietnam, 311–314
 - governance in, 25–26
 - Vietnamese Manor case study and, 306–311
- “Planning Permission System” (United Kingdom), Taiwanese post-democratization land governance incorporation of, 323–324
- plot ratios, Hong Kong urban redevelopment and, 368
- plurality in land regulation
- in Hong Kong, 33–34
 - Vietnamese case study in, 31–32
- Po-Fang Tsai, 32–33, 317–330, 331–342
- Poletown Neighborhood Council v. City of Detroit*, 49–51
- political economy, land disputes and, 4–7
- politics
- comprehensive mediation in China and role of, 239–240
 - dispute resolution in Hong Kong and, 408–410
 - government-related land disputes in Hong Kong and, 368–370
 - illegal structures issue in Hong Kong and, 401–403
 - judicial mediation in China and role of, 228–229, 249–253
 - land expropriation in China and, 29
 - land systems in Hong Kong and, 33–34
 - mediation policy in China as tool of, 224–229
 - in planned community dispute, Vietnam, 309–314
 - role play and role conflict in Chinese rural land disputes and, 243–246
 - secondary authority hypothesis and role in China of, 108–111
 - Wukan model and role of, 173–174
- population growth
- Chinese land-use policies and, 66–69
 - Vietnamese spontaneous communities case study and, 301–306
- power distribution. See also balance of powers; separation of powers
- CCP monopolization of power, 175–180
 - in Chinese court system, 204–206
 - generation of disputes in China and, 268–271
 - “parchment division of power” in China and, 176, 178–180
 - pre-colonial Vietnam land regulation and, 276–278
 - state-based land dispute mediation in China and, 248–271

- PRC. See People's Republic of China
- private property rights
- ancestral worship property in
 - Taiwan and, 333–335, 338–343
 - Chinese constitutional amendments
 - allowing for, 66–69, 105–106
 - colonial regime in Vietnam and, 279–281
 - eminent domain abuse in China, 49–51
 - government-related land disputes in Hong Kong and, 368–370
 - history in China of, 88–92, 155–156
 - illegal structures in Hong Kong and, 404–408
 - judicial arbitration in China of, 86–88
 - land disputes in Vietnam and, 291–293
 - local government expropriation in China of, 73–79
 - nationalization in China and, 13–16, 66–69, 88–92
 - neo-liberal advocacy for, 16–18
 - non-economic meanings of, 45–48
 - post-reunification abolition in Vietnam, 285–289
 - in pre-colonial Vietnam, 276–278
 - private land disputes in Hong Kong and, 371
 - Property Rights Law in China and, 138–140
 - public interest requirement for Chinese expropriation of, 69–71
 - real estate law in China and, 121–127
 - socialist land nationalization in Vietnam and, 281–289
 - state-managed markets for, 12
 - urbanization in China and entrenchment of, 66–69, 115–172
- private treaty grant (PTG) (Hong Kong), small house policy and, 380–386
- privatization
- judicial land arbitration in China and, 111–112
 - neo-liberal property rights and, 16–18
 - public interest requirement in Chinese land expropriation policies and, 73–79
- procedural justice
- ancestor worship property disputes in Taiwan and, 347–348, 352–354
 - in Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 299–301, 310n.55
 - housing regulations concerning expropriation and compensation in China, 71–73
 - land expropriation and limits on, in China, 197–202
 - land expropriation regulations in China and, 81–84
 - Land Management Law (China) and, 102–103
 - multidimensionality of Chinese property rights, 51–55
 - property rights law in China and limits on, 97–100
- Property Law of the People's Republic of China (2007)
- court arbitration related to, 91
 - data and research methodology concerning, 92–95
 - enforcement of, 86–88
 - historical framework for, 88–92
 - public interest requirement and, 73–79
 - urban land rights and, 66–69
- property managers, Taiwanese
- ancestral worship property disputes and, 344–345
- property rights. See also private property rights
- absence in China of, 59n.1, 86–88, 111–112
 - authoritarian court systems in China and, 249–253
 - bifurcated land use in China and, 59–62
 - citizen mobilization for protection of, 29–30
 - collective landownership in China vs., 100–101
 - colonial property statutes and title regime in Vietnam, 279–281

- commodification of, 37–56 economic development and, 13–20, 37–38 fair compensation in Chinese expropriation regulations and, 79–80
 fuzzy property rights, 18–20
 historical and comparative perspectives on, 39–43
 illegal building regulations in Hong Kong, flexibility in, 392–410 judiciary influence in China on, 95–103, 104–111 land dispute increase and, 3–4 land disputes in Vietnam and, 291–293
 Land Management Law (China) features concerning, 102–103 land use rights vs., 37n.2–38n.2
 legal framework in China for, 84–85, 88–92, 136–138
 majority rule and minority contractors in China and, 102 multidimensional characteristics of, 51–55 neo-liberal concepts of, 16–18 planned community dispute in Vietnam and, 311 planned land communities and, 25–26
 Property Rights Law (China) limits concerning, 138–140
 public interest requirement in China and, 73–79
 pure law enforcement authority hypothesis in China and, 105–106 recycling of, 13–16 social change and, 41–42, 44–51
 in spontaneous land communities, 24–25 state-directed reforms in China concerning, 127–138
 in state land communities, 26–27
 statism, collectivism, and majoritarianism in China and, 96–97 traditional community governance and, 23–24
 trends in Vietnam concerning, 311–314 urban land policies in China and, 66–69, 150–158
 Vietnamese Land Law and transferability of, 285–289 Property Rights Law of 2007 (China), 120 institutional debate over, 138–140 land expropriation reform proposals and, 127–138 public protests in wake of, 162–163 Protection of the Harbour Ordinance (Hong Kong), 366–367 protest-supported litigation in China audience size restrictions, 202–203 court procedures for, 202–209 current and future outcomes in, 219–221 discrediting of court system and, 209–215 housing demolition and, 194–221 maintenance of court order during, 204–206 mediation policy as limit on, 224–229
 non-legal discourse during, 206–207
 organized protesting during, 208–209
 social change as result of, 215–219
 social stability perspective and, 212–213 PTG. See private treaty grant (Hong Kong) public housing
 Hong Kong government-related land disputes, 368–370
 Hong Kong small house policy and shortages of, 382–383 public interest requirement
 Chinese land expropriation and, 73–79, 131
 Chinese land reform and, 127–138
 Chinese non-commercial definitions of, 130
 Chinese property rights and introduction of, 88–92
 Chinese protests based on violations of, 146–150 in Chinese real estate law, 121–127

- public interest requirement (cont.)
 Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 294
 in Germany, 78n.74–78n.75
 Taiwanese ancestral worship property and, 333–335
 in Vietnamese land law, 285–289
- public justice (cong ly), Vietnamese planned community dispute and role of, 309–311, 310n.55
- public landownership
 Hong Kong tolerance for illegal structures and, 394–401
 in pre-colonial Vietnam, 276–278
- public protests. See also collective action authoritarian regime in China and, 175–180
 changing arguments and strategies
 in China, 165–170
 of colonial land governance in Hong Kong, 359–362
 contagion in China of, 192–193 courts as forum in China for, 30, 125–126, 131–133 demolition litigation and social change in China and, 131–133, 194–221 developmental logic in China and, 182–185
 discreditation of state institutions in China and, 141–142, 163 dispute resolution in Hong Kong and influence of, 408–410
 in Đông Dương (Vietnam) land dispute, 294–301
 future issues in China involving, 171–172
 growing effectiveness of, 127–138, 163, 197–202 human rights arguments in strategies of, 167–168 illegal structures in Hong Kong and role of, 399–401, 404–408 institutional support in China for, 175–180
 land dispute case studies in Vietnam involving, 291–293
 land lease dispute mediation and, 259–261
 land regulations in Hong Kong and, 33–34
 land-taking disputes, 264–268 limits of rule of law and democratic governance in China and, 190–192 during litigation procedures, 208–209
 mediation policy as limit on, 224–229 networking and association building in, 168–170
 planned community case study in Vietnam and, 306–311 post-reunification reforms in Vietnam and, 285–289
 repression of, 163, 184 rural land subcontracting dispute mediation and, 237–239
 small house policy dispute in Hong Kong and, 377–382
 spontaneous communities land dispute in Vietnam and, 301–306 in spontaneous land communities, 24–25
 of urban land expropriation in China, 156–157
 urbanization and land disputes in China and, 115–120
 violations of Chinese state rules as basis for, 146–150
 Wukan model and role of, 173–174
- public purpose principle, Chinese urban land regulation and, 66–69, 69n.48
- public use principle eminent domain in China and,
 44–51
 Taiwanese disjunction over land expropriation and, 326–329
- pure law enforcement authority hypothesis, Chinese judicial land arbitration and, 105–106
- Qing Dynasty
 ancestral worship property in Taiwan and, 332–336
 Hong Kong land laws and, 359–362, 374–376

- Hong Kong small house policy and laws of, 385–386
- Taiwanese land governance and, 32–33, 319–320
- Quang Hung Nguyen, 31, 275–290
- real estate development
- illegal building regulations flexibility in Hong Kong and, 392–394
 - Land Law in Vietnam and protection of, 285–289
 - real estate law in China and, 121–127
 - reclamation and resumption projects in Hong Kong and, 366–367
 - rural land to urban land conversion in China and, 59–62, 64n.25, 66
 - spontaneous communities land dispute in Vietnam and, 301–306
 - urban landownership in China and, 150–158
 - urban redevelopment in Hong Kong and, 368
- real estate market
- Chinese land expropriation based on, 197–202
 - Hong Kong dispute resolution and influence of, 408n.52–409n.52, 408–410
 - Hong Kong illegal building regulations flexibility and, 392–394
 - Hong Kong private land disputes and, 371
 - rural land-use rights and, 136–138
 - in Vietnamese planned community land dispute, 308n.49, 308–309
- reallocation of land. See land reallocation
- “reason and sentiment” principle in Vietnamese land disputes, 300n.27
- reclamation and resumption projects
- Hong Kong disputes over, 366–367
 - Tso and Tong ancestor worship properties and, 389–391
- reflexive legislation, ancestral worship property and, 336–338
- “Reform and Opening” initiatives (China), urban landownership linked to, 151–152
- refugees from PRC, squatter resettlement in Hong Kong and, 364
- registered property rights, neo-liberal concept of, 16–18
- Regulation for Expropriation and Compensation for Houses on State-owned Land (China), 71–73
- compensation standards in, 122–124
 - court approval for demolition required under, 125–126
 - court arbitration related to, 91
 - fair compensation principle in, 79–80
 - limitations of, 134–136
 - procedural due process in, 81–84
 - protest-supported demolition litigation and, 218–219
 - protests based on violations of, 146–150
 - public interest requirement and, 73–79
 - reform proposals in, 129–130
 - revisions of, 115–120
 - statutory changes (2001–2011) to, 74t–75t
 - strengths and limitations of, 84
- Regulation on Rural Expropriation (China), proposals for, 79–80
- Regulations on Demolition of Houses in Urban Areas (“Demolition Regulations”) (2001) (China)
- abolishment of, 86–88
 - land expropriation and, 71–73
 - procedural due process in, 81–84
 - statutory changes (2001–2011) to, 74–75
 - urban land regulation and, 66–69
- Regulations on Requisition and Compensation of Real Property on State-owned Land in Urban Areas (2011), 86–88
- relational land market, in Vietnamese planned community case study, 308–309
- Ren Zhiqiang, 131

- repression of land protests
 - developmental logic in China as basis for, 182–185
 - growing effectiveness of Chinese protests and, 163
 - resistance in China to, 192–193
 - shift to accommodation in Wukan dispute, 185–190
 - in Vietnamese land disputes, 285–289
- Republic of Vietnam (RVN)
 - establishment of, 281–283
 - rights-based land regulations in, 283–284
- resettlement subsidies
 - in Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 295–297
 - fair compensation in Chinese expropriation regulations and, 79–80
 - Hong Kong government-related land disputes, 368–370
 - Vietnamese spontaneous communities dispute and absence of, 303–306
- resident cluster (To Truong), in Vietnamese planned community dispute, 309–311
- Residential Properties (First-Hand Sales) Ordinance (Hong Kong), 368–370
- “resumption of ownership”
 - Chinese land expropriation on basis of, 122
 - property development under mechanism of, 130
- RLCL. See Rural Land Contracting Law
- Robertson, Michael, 22
- role play and role conflict, judicial resolution of rural land disputes and, 243–246
- Roman Catholic Church, demand for return of land in Vietnam, 7–8
- rule circumvention, resistance to rural land-use restrictions through, 160–161
- rule of law
 - authoritarianism and mediation in China and, 249–253
 - demolition litigation and social change in China and, 194–197
 - dispute resolution in China and, 235n.33
 - government-related land disputes in Hong Kong and, 368–370
 - in Hunan rural land dispute case study, 231–235
 - illegal building regulations in Hong Kong, flexibility in, 392–410
 - Japanese colonial land governance in Taiwan and, 320–321
 - judicial resolution vs. mediation in China and, 243–246
 - in land dispute case studies in Vietnam, 311–314
 - land expropriation in China based on, 197–202
 - land governance in Taiwan and, 317–318
 - limits in Wukan, China of, 190–192
 - modern Taiwanese land governance and, 329–330
 - power distribution and legal institutions in China and, 255–257
 - protest-supported litigation in China and, 219–221
 - in rural land disputes, 222–223
 - state-initiated mediation in China and, 248–271
- “Rules for Land Value Assessments” (Taiwan), 326–329
- Rural Land Contracting Law (RLCL) (2002) (China)
 - eminent domain cases and role of, 240–243
 - land reallocation cases and, 236–237
 - property rights and, 15
 - rural land collectivization and, 64–65
 - village autonomy limitations in, 239–240
- rural land-use rights
 - abandoned land, Chinese disputes over, 262–264
 - collectivization program in China and, 62–66, 63n.16, 96–97, 100–101

- compensation mediation in China and, 239–240
- conversion to urban land in China, 64n.25, 66
- court mediation in China of, 222–247
- disjunction over governance in Taiwan, 326–329
- Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 294–301
- eminent domain in China and, 240–243
- fair compensation in Chinese expropriation regulations and, 79–80
- Hong Kong government policies concerning, 368–370
- Hunan empirical case study, 231–235
- increased land values in China and, 248–249
- judicial arbitration in China of, 111–112
- Kuomintang land governance in Taiwan and, 321–323
- land lease regulations in China and, 259–261
- liberalization in China of, 69–71, 70n.59, 136–138, 158–165
- limits on state regulations concerning, 30–31
- “Ma Xiwu trial model” of mediation, 224–229
- majority rule and minority contractors and, 102
- mediation policy in China for, 224–229, 249–253
- multidimensionality of, 51–55
- in New Territories (Hong Kong), 374–376
- non-agricultural uses in China and, 64–65
- non-transferability in China of, 59–62
- open letters in China supporting, 162–163
- patterns of, in China and Vietnam, 4–7
- post-reunification land laws in Vietnam and, 285–289
- in pre-colonial Vietnam, 276–278
- property rights vs. collectivization in China and, 100–101, 161–162
- public activism in China over, 115–120, 144–171
- pure law enforcement authority hypothesis in China and, 105–106
- reallocation mediations in China, 231–235, 236–237, 237n.37
- recent disputes in China, table of, 231t
- reclamation and resumption projects in Hong Kong and, 366–367
- self-centered ideology in China concerning, 84, 96–97, 140–141
- small house policy (Hong Kong) and, 364–365
- small house policy disputes in Hong Kong and, 377–382
- in socialist Vietnam, 281–289
- subcontracting dispute mediation in China and, 237–239
- Wukan dispute and assumptions about, 187–190
- RVN. See Republic of Vietnam
- Sarat, Austin, 9–10
- scientific development perspective, in Chinese social management, 133–134
- Scott, James, 10–13, 335–336, 348n.20
- secondary authority hypothesis, Chinese land arbitration and, 108–111
- Seddon, Mark, 7–8
- “seeing like a state” principle
- land disputes and, 10–13, 42–43
- Taiwanese ancestral worship property and, 335–336, 347–348, 348n.20
- Vietnamese land disputes and, 299–301
- Seeking Truth*, 228–229
- self-centered property ideology
- ancestor worship property disputes in Taiwan and, 32–33, 343–354
- developmental logic in China and, 182–185

- Seeking Truth* (cont.)
- discreditation in China of, 138–144
 - disjunction in Taiwan over, 326–329
 - in Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 295–297, 298–299
 - expropriation and compensation regulations in China and, 29, 71–73
 - future in China of, 171–172
 - fuzzy property rights and, 18–20
 - illegal structures in Hong Kong, changing official attitudes toward, 398–401
 - land disputes in Hong Kong and, 368–370
 - land disputes in Vietnam and, 291–293
 - land regulatory technology and, 10–13, 42–43
 - nationalization of property in China and, 88–92
 - neo-liberal property rights vs., 16–18
 - popular challenges in China to, 115–120, 144–171
 - post-reunification reforms in Vietnam and, 285–289
 - privatization of Chinese urban land and, 66–69
 - Property Rights Law of PRC and entrenchment of, 138–140
 - public protests in China based on violations of, 146–150
 - reform of, in China, 127–138
 - rural land use rights in China and, 136–138, 140–141, 158–165
 - rural–urban bifurcation in China of, 59n.1, 59–62
 - small house policy in Hong Kong and, 374–391
 - social management ideology in PRC and, 133–134
 - socialist regulations in Vietnam and, 281–289
 - Tso and Tong case studies in Hong Kong and, 387–391
 - urban landownership in China and, 121–144, 150–158
 - self-interest in land disputes, 16–18, 43, 289–290
 - self-regulation
 - Hong Kong government-related land disputes and, 368–370
 - Hong Kong illegal building regulations flexibility and, 392–410
 - neo-liberal property rights and, 16–18
 - in Taiwanese ancestral worship property disputes, 352–354
 - in Vietnamese planned community case study, 308–309
 - Vietnamese post-reunification land laws and, 285–289
 - Sen, Amartya, 52
 - separation of powers
 - institutional vetoes and, 175–180
 - rural land dispute resolution and, 244
 - Sex Discrimination Ordinance (Hong Kong), 364–365, 374–376, 382–383
 - sheng chan dui* (production team), rural land collectivization and, 62–66
 - Shepherd, John R., 319–320
 - situational validity (thoa dang), in Đông Dương (Vietnam) land dispute, 299–301
 - small house policy (Hong Kong)
 - abuses and failure of safeguards in, 383–385
 - administrative customary rights and, 377–387
 - case study of, 33–34, 364–365
 - customary law and, 371–372
 - future of, 386–387
 - government-related land disputes over, 368–370
 - historical background to, 374–376
 - problems with, 382–383
 - reform proposals for, 385–386
 - state vs. customary law and, 374–391
 - Smith, Adam, 16–18
 - Smith, Henry, 60–61
 - social dimensions of land disputes, 7–8, 27–28, 34–36
 - in ancestor worship property disputes in Taiwan, 348–354

- current and future trends in China for, 219–221
- developmental logic of Chinese state and, 182–185
- dispute resolution norms in China and, 251
- dispute resolution politics in Hong Kong and, 408–410
- in Đông Dương (Vietnam) case study, 299–301
- economic development in China and, 39n.3, 182–190
- eminent domain in China and, 44–51
- government-related land disputes in Hong Kong, 368–370
- illegal structures, Hong Kong tolerance for, 394–401
- Jisigongye (ancestor worship) land disputes in Taiwan and, 331–342
- land governance in Taiwan and, 317–318
- land lease disputes in China and, 259–261
- landownership ideology in China and, 115–120, 133–134
- landscape engineering and alteration of, 10–13
- multidimensionality of Chinese property rights and, 51–55
- post-democratization land governance in Taiwan and, 323–324
- procedural due process in Chinese expropriation and, 81–84
- property rights in China, changes in, 41–42
- protest-supported demolition litigation in China and, 215–219
- role play and role conflict in China and, 243–246
- state-initiated mediation in China and, 268–271
- traditional land communities and, 23–24
- in Vietnam, 275–290
- social media
 - community governance and, 22–23
 - illegal structures in Hong Kong in, 399–401
 - networking and association-building using, 168–170
- public protest in land disputes and use of, 7–8, 115–120, 144–171
- public protest in land disputes and use of Internet, 7–8, 115–120, 144–171, 197–202
- spontaneous land communities and, 24–25
- urban protests over land expropriation and, 157–158
- Vietnamese land disputes and, 291–293
- social mobilization. See also collective action; public protests
 - Chinese authoritarian regime as catalyst for, 178–180
 - developmental logic in China and, 182–185
 - growth in China of, 197–202
 - property rights protection and, 29–30
 - in Wukan land dispute, 173–174, 180–182
- social networks
 - collective action and building of, 168–170
 - land lease dispute mediation, 259–261
 - legal mobilization and, 251–252
 - Vietnamese spontaneous communities dispute and absence of, 303–306
- social stability preservation perspective in China
 - court system in China and, 229–230
 - demolition litigation and social change and, 194–197, 215–219
 - Grand mediation policy and, 257–258
 - judicial arbitration and, 212–213
 - land lease dispute mediation and, 259–261
 - mediation as limit on public protest, 224–229
 - rural land dispute mediation and, 222–247
 - rural land subcontracting dispute mediation and, 237–239
 - social management policies and, 133–134
 - state-initiated mediation and, 268–271

- socialism
- Chinese property laws and ideology of, 88–92, 115–120, 133–134
 - collectivized rural landownership in China and, 159
 - commodification of property rights and, 37–56
 - fuzzy property rights and, 18–20
 - judicial land arbitration in China and ideology of, 111–112
 - land disputes and, 6–7
 - Taiwanese ancestral worship property disputes and, 354–355
 - urban landownership in China and, 157–158
 - Vietnamese land regulations under, 281–289
- “socialist public ownership” principle, in Chinese real estate law, 121–127
- Socialist Republic of Vietnam, establishment of, 283–284
- Society for Harbour Protection, 368–370
- Song Dahan, 79–80, 85n.90
- Song Dynasty, Jisigongye (ancestor worship) (Taiwan) and, 331–332
- Southern Weekend* magazine, 140–141
- Soviet land planning
- in China and Vietnam, 10–13
 - property rights recycling and, 13–16
- SPC. See Supreme People’s Court
- spontaneous land communities
- epistemic and normative assumptions in Vietnam and, 311–314
 - governance in, 24–25
 - Vietnamese case study involving, 301–306
- squatter resettlement, in Hong Kong, 364
- State Council Regulation on Demolition and Relocation (China), 115–120
- state-initiated mediation in China
- abandoned land disputes, 262–264
 - future issues in, 268–271
 - Grand mediation policy and, 257–258
 - land lease disputes, 259–261
 - land-taking disputes, 264–268
 - legal institutions for, 255–257
 - rule of law and authoritarianism and, 249–253
- state land communities
- governance in, 26–27
 - in Vietnam, 26–27, 293
- statism, Chinese property rights and, 96–97
- statistics on land disputes, 8
- Statute Governing Housing Demolition in Urban Areas (China), land expropriation under, 197–202
- statutory enforcement
- of Chinese land policies, 86–88
 - Vietnamese colonial statutory rights-based property regime, 279–281
- stock shares, property rights concerning, 51–55
- Strict Implementation Notice (China), procedural due process in land expropriation and, 81–84
- Stubbs, Sir Reginald Edward, 378–379
- student movement in China, 185
- substantive review, Chinese
- property rights law and limits on, 97–100. See also judicial arbitration in land disputes
- suburban land use in China, reinterpretation of, 158–165
- suicide
- as Chinese expropriation protest, 115–120, 116n.4, 126, 157–158
 - visual images of, 117n.5–118n.5
- Supreme Court Interpretation Regarding Laws Applied in Adjudication of Rural Land Contract Disputes, 108–111
- Supreme People’s Court (SPC) (China)
- administrative litigation promoted by, 197–202
 - land reform proposals and role of, 129–130
 - political pressures on, 246–247
 - procedural due process in Chinese expropriation regulations and, 81–84, 126

- urban landownership arbitration, 154–157
- Urgent Notice by, 134–136, 146–150, 218–219, 224–229
- women's rural land rights and, 239–240
- Work Report of 2010 by, 243–246
- Work Report of 2013 by, 222–223
- Supreme People's Court Bulletin*, 227
- tacit agreements, Hong Kong tolerance for illegal structures and, 394–401
- Taiwan
 - ancestor worship properties litigation in, 331–342t, 336–354
 - communicative hybridization and epistemic communities in, 348–354
 - community land systems in, 21, 408n.49
 - contemporary land governance legislation in, 325–326
 - fuzzy property rights in, 20
 - history of land governance in, 318–325
 - intersecting land communities in, 27
 - Jisigongye (ancestor worship) land disputes in, 331–342
 - judicialization and democratization of land management in, 13
 - land dispute increase in, 3–4, 317–330
 - modernity and land governance in, 329–330
 - post-democratization land governance in, 323–324
 - Qing dynasty land governance in, 32–33, 319–320
 - reflexive laws and legal hybrids in, 349–352
 - state land communities in, 26–27
 - state law and customary rule interaction in, 347–348
 - tension, disjunction and disparities in land governance in, 326–329
 - urbanization in, 4–7
- Taiwan Ancestor Property Worship Property Association (TAWPA), 336–338, 350n.25–351n.26, 350–352
- Taiwan Ancestor Property Worship Property Research Association (TAWPRA), 336–338, 350n.25–351n.26, 350–352
- takings provisions. See also land-taking disputes
 - in Chinese land property laws, 88–92
 - Hunan rural land dispute case study, 231–235
 - local government role in mediation of, 249–253
 - role play and role conflict in rural land disputes and, 243–246
 - rural land dispute mediation, 239–240
- Tang Che Tai v. Tang On Kwai*, 389–391
- Tang Dynasty, land regulation in, 3–4
- Tang Fuzhen, 115–120, 168–169
- Tang, Henry, 394n.6, 401–403
- TAWPA. See Taiwan Ancestor Property Worship Property Association
- TAWPRA. See Taiwan Ancestor Property Worship Property Research Association
- tax revenue
 - abandoned land dispute mediation and, 262–264
 - abolition of agricultural taxes, 248–249, 262n.47, 262–264
 - central government tax reforms and, 270n.66
 - Chinese local government participation in, 88–92
 - Chinese social management for generation of, 133–134
 - history in New Territories (Hong Kong) of, 374–376
 - Japanese land reform and, 42–43
 - land disputes and, 7
 - pre-colonial Vietnam land regulation and, 276–278
 - Taiwanese ancestral worship property and, 333–335, 334n.6
- Teesdale, Edmund, 379–380
- Tehconvina, Đông Dương (Vietnam) land dispute and, 297–298
- tenure. See land tenure systems

- Teubner, Gunther, 348–354
- Thain Binh Provincial People's Committee, Đông Dương (Vietnam) land dispute and, 297–298
- Thanh, Nguyễn Bá, 303–306, 309–314
- Thanh Nien* (Youth) newspaper, 303–306
- Thatcher, Margaret, 376–377
- “The Emergence and Transformation of Disputes: Naming, Blaming and Claiming” (Felstiner, Able, and Sarat), 9–10
- third-party contracts, rural land subcontracting dispute resolution, 237–239
- “thirty-five point five rent reduction” reform (Taiwan), 321–323
- “three mediations working together” (santiao liandong), Grand mediation policy and, 257–258, 258n.37, 258n.38
- “Three Supremes” policy, 229–230, 246–247
- “tiller owns land” policy (China), 62–66
- title security
- Chinese urban land rights and, 66–69
 - codification in China and Vietnam of, 10–13
 - Hong Kong colonial land governance and, 361–362
 - in Republic of Vietnam, 283–284
 - Vietnamese colonial statutory rights-based property rights and, 279–281
 - Vietnamese post-reunification reforms and, 285–289
- Toan Le, 31, 275–290
- Tong ancestor worship properties (Hong Kong), customary law concerning, 374–391
- Torrens title registration system, Vietnamese colonial regime of, 279–281
- Township and Village Enterprises (TVEs) (China), rural land collectivization and, 64–65
- traditional land communities
- Đông Dương (Vietnam) land dispute case study, 294–301
 - epistemic and normative assumptions in Vietnam, 311–314
 - governance in, 23–24
- “tragedy of the commons,” judicial land arbitration in China and, 111–112
- transferable land use rights. See also non-transferability of land
- Chinese abolition of, 88–92
 - Chinese urban land policies and, 66–69, 84
 - Hong Kong colonial land governance and, 361–362
 - Hunan rural land dispute case study, 231–235
 - “minor property rights” circumvention and, 160–161
 - for rural land, proposals for, 136n.61, 136–138
 - in Taiwanese ancestral worship property case studies, 338–343
 - Taiwanese ancestral worship property, strategies involving, 344–345
 - Vietnamese post-reunification reforms and, 285–289
- transnational networking, public protest using, 170
- Trong Le, 285–289
- Truong Chinh, 283–284
- Tsang, Donald, 399–401
- Tsing Dynasty, 374–376
- Tso ancestor worship properties (Hong Kong), customary law concerning, 387–391
- tu tap* (crowd gathering), Vietnamese post-reunification reforms and, 285–289
- Tuoi Tre* (Young) newspaper, 303–306
- TVEs. See Township and Village Enterprises (China)
- Tyler, Tom, 52–53

- Ultra Vires* case, organized protesting during, 208–209
- “unauthorized building works” (UBW) in Hong Kong, illegal structures designated as, 394n.7, 394–401, 396n.11
- “uncertain land” concept
Taiwanese disjunction concerning, 326–329 Taiwanese post-democratization and, 323–324
- United Kingdom
Enclosure movement, 38, 39–43 historical perspective on English land laws, 39
Hong Kong land disputes and English land laws, 33–34, 359–362
Joint Declaration between the People’s Republic of China and Great Britain, 362–363
“Planning Permission System” (United Kingdom), Taiwanese post-democratization land governance incorporation of, 323–324
- United States
eminent domain abuse in, 49–51 history of property rights in, 40–41 mass incarceration in, 52–53
Partition Management System in, Taiwanese incorporation of, 323–324
- United States Supreme Court, eminent domain rulings by, 44–51
- Universal Declaration of Human Rights, Chinese urban landownership laws and, 154–157, 155n.106
- unregistered property rights, neo-liberal concept of, 16–18
- Upham, Frank, 18–19, 27–28, 37–56, 291–293, 311–314
- Urban Housing Demolition Statute (1991) (China), 218–219
- urban land ancestral worship property in Taiwan as, 333–335 constitutional amendments in China concerning, 151 fair compensation in Chinese expropriation regulations and, 79–80 illegal structures in Hong Kong on, 365–366 Kuomintang policies in Taiwan for, 322–323
land disputes in Vietnam involving, 291–293 land use policies in China for, 66–69 mediation of disputes in China over, 252 nationalization of, in China, 88–92 ownership reinterpretations in China concerning, 150–158 planned community case study in Vietnam and, 306–311
post-reunification land laws in Vietnam and, 285–289
public interest requirement in China and, 73–79 redevelopment of, in Hong Kong, 368 socialist Vietnamese land regulations and, 281–283
spontaneous communities land dispute in Vietnam and, 301–306
state land communities in Vietnam and, 293
- Urban Real Estate Management Law (UREML) (China)
historical framework for, 88–92
state monopolistic land appropriation under, 66 urban housing land expropriation and, 66–69
- urban renewal projects
Chinese land disputes and, 4–7 eminent domain abuse and, 49–51
- urbanization
ancestral worship property in Taiwan and, 333–335
bifurcated land use in China and, 60–61
historical framework for Chinese property rights and, 88–92
land disputes and, 4–7, 34–36

- urbanization (cont.)
 land-use policies in China and,
 66–69, 121–144
 “preserving the red line” concept in China and, 134n.49
 property ownership disputes in China over, 115–172 public interest requirement in Chinese land expropriation regulations and, 73–79 reclamation and resumption projects in Hong Kong and, 366–367 small house policy in Hong Kong
 and, 377–382
 social management ideology in China concerning, 133–134 spontaneous communities case study in Vietnam and, 301–306 traditional land communities and, 23–24
- urbanisme* (France), Soviet land planning and, 10–13
- usufruct concept in Chinese property law, 65n.30, 121–127
 comparisons in Vietnam and China of, 37n.2–38n.2
- Verdery, Katherine, on fuzzy property rights, 18–20
- veto, in authoritarian regimes, 175–180
- Viet Minh revolutionary group, 279–281, 295–297
- Vietnam. See also Đông Dương land dispute; Republic of Vietnam case studies of land disputes in, 31–32, 291–314
 Catholic Church demand for return of land in, 7–8 colonial statutory rights-based property rights and title regime in, 279–281
 communal land tenure in, 23–24 community land systems in, 21–27
 Democratic Republic of Vietnam,
 establishment of, 281–283
doi moi (renovation) reforms in, 15
 economic growth in, 37–38 ethnic minority land rights in, 23–24, 24n.77
 fuzzy property rights in, 18–20
 intersecting land communities in, 27
 land dispute increase in, 3–4, 8
 land management codification in, 10–13
 land reforms in, 15–16 land-use rights in, 37n.2–38n.2
 neo-liberal property rights in, 16–18 planned communities case study in, 306–311
 post-reunification land law reforms in, 285–289
 pre-colonial land regulation in, 276–278
 property rights recycling in, 13–16 “reason and sentiment” principle in land disputes involving, 300n.27 social dimensions of land disputes
 in, 27–28
 socialist land regulations in, 281–289 Socialist Republic of Vietnam,
 establishment of, 283–284
 spontaneous land communities in, 24–25, 301–306
 state land communities in, 26–27, 293 statistics on land disputes in, 291n.1
 urbanization in, 4–7
- Village’s Provisional Village
 Representatives Committee
 (Wukan, China), 180–182
- von Benda-Beckmann, Franz, 23–24
- von Benda-Beckmann, Keebet, 23–24
- Wang, Qinhua, 210–211
- Wang Shengjun, 228, 246–247
- Wang Yang, 186–187, 191
- Weibo blog (China), 24–25
- weiquan* (rights-defending) principle, public challenges to expropriation and demolition and, 144–171
- Wen Jiabao, 52, 55–56, 141–142, 228–229
- Whiting, Susan, 30–31, 222–247
- Wigmore, John Henry, 42n.10
- Winfat Enterprises (HK) Co Ltd v. AG*, 385–386

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-06682-3 - Resolving Land Disputes in East Asia: Exploring the Limits of Law

Edited by Hualing Fu and John Gillespie

Index

More information

INDEX

447

- women
- challenges to Chinese expropriation and demolition and, 144–171
 - Hong Kong property laws and, 364–365, 374–376
 - Hong Kong small house policy and discrimination against, 382–383
 - rural land rights in China of, 239–240
- Women's Representatives Association (Wukan, China), 180–182
- World Bank
- neo-liberal property rights and, 16–18
 - Vietnamese land disputes and, 291–293
 - Vietnamese land regulations and, 289–290
- World Habitat Day, 167–170
- Wu, Hsin-Chao, 189–190, 191
- Wukan, China
- Chinese developmental logic and dispute in, 182–185
 - collective action in protests, 144–171
 - dispute resolution in case of, 173–193
 - government developmental logic in response to protest, 182–185
 - limits of rule of law and democratic governance in, 190–192
 - protest against land-taking in, 3–4, 29–30, 115–120, 125–126, 180–182
 - as protest model, 192–193
 - public attention to protest in, 164–165
 - reforms following protests in, 34–36
 - shift from repression to accommodation in protest, 185–190
- Xiao Yang, 244
- Xiong Wei, 164–165
- Xu Wang, 268–271
- Yan Chunlin, 119
- Yin, Xin, 210–211
- Yu Jianrong, 129, 141–142, 224–229, 248–249
- Zhang Aixiang, 157–158
- Zhang Guoqi and others v. Zhejiang Provincial Government*, substantive review limits in, 97–100
- Zhang Jing, 243–246
- Zhang Minshan, 228
- Zhou Qiang, 246–247
- Zhou Qiren, 151
- Zhou Yongkang, 224–225