Contents

List of illustrations ............................ page ix
List of contributors ........................... x
Acknowledgments ............................. xi

Introduction: The fin-de-siècle mood in Russian literature ............................. 1
Ani Kokobobo and Katherine Bowers

Part I: Anxieties of Disintegration

1 The Russian Rougon-Macquart: Degeneration and biological determinism in The Golovlev Family
Kate Holland
............................. 15

2 The hiding places of the self in Dostoevsky’s Adolescent
Yuri Corrigan
............................. 33

3 A childhood’s garden of despair: Dostoevsky and “A Boy at Christ’s Christmas Party”
Robin Feuer Miller
............................. 52

4 The railway and the elemental force: Slavophilism, Pan-Slavism, and apocalyptic anxieties in Anna Karenina
A. Alexander Burry and S. Ceilidh Orr
............................. 69

Part II: Destabilizing Gender and Sexuality

5 “Mister Russian Beast”: Civilization’s discontents in Turgenev
Emma Lieber
............................. 89

6 Masculine degeneration in Dostoevsky’s Demons
Connor Doak
............................. 107
Contents

7  The burden of superfluity: Reconsidering female heroism in Chekhov’s The Seagull
Jenny Kaminer
126

PART III: GENERIC EXPERIMENTATION AND HYBRIDITY

8  The fall of the house: Gothic narrative and the decline of the Russian family
Katherine Bowers
145

9  Corpses of desire and convention: Tolstoy’s and Artsybashev’s grotesque realism
Ani Kokobobo
162

10  The little man in the overcoat: Gogol and Krzhizhanovsky
Muireann Maguire
180

11  Icons, eclipses, and stepping off the train: Vladimir Korolenko and the ocherk
Jane Costlow
197

PART IV: FACING DEATH AND DECAY

12  Decadent ecosystems in Uncle Vanya: A chorographic meditation
Thomas Newlin
215

13  The mute body: Leonid Andreev’s abject realism
Edith W. Clowes
233

14  The thinking oyster: Turgenev’s “drama of dying” as the decay of Russian realism
Ilya Vinitsky
249

Afterword: On the potential of ends
Caryl Emerson
267

Bibliography
280

Index
299