Index

ABC (television network), 11
accuracy: of Catalyst’s commercial predictions, 171–6; of professional survey firms compared to volunteer canvassers, 239n2
ACLU, 68
AFL-CIO, 68
African-Americans: and Catalist, 127–8; Democratic campaigns and mobilization of, 126; and geographic-level strategies based on neighborhoods, 94; names and identification of, 128, 204, 227, 237n6; and political role of churches, 127, 237n5; and voter turnout, 132–9, 227–30. See also race and racial identity age: identification of for registered voters in public records, 5–6; Obama election and reelection campaigns and young voters, 5–7; and Perceived Voter Model, 29; and use of matching technique to assess effect of racial identity on voter turnout, 227; and voter registration system, 52; and voting behavior of young voters, 240n1
Alabama: and racial identity in public records, 123, 124, 125; and voter registration, 47–8, 61–62, 100, 103, 109, 118, 225–6, 237n1
Alter, Jonathan, 11, 188
Alton Telegraph (Illinois), 48
Amazon.com, 207
Ansolabehere, Stephen, 67, 69, 75, 76, 136, 143
Arkansas, and white-only primaries, 125
Barths, Larry M., 32–3
Beckett, Lois, 208
Blaemire, Bob, 61, 62
block-group level neighborhood data, and Catalist, 70
Bush, George W., and 2004 reelection campaign, 59
California: and effectiveness of 2012 Obama campaign in persuading voters, 152; and proposed law restricting opinion polls, 240n8; and voter registration, 51 “campaign,” meanings of term in research on elections, 25 campaign databases: and conflicts of interest, 197–205; impact of on targeting strategies, 2. See also Catalyst; public records campaign strategies: author’s contribution to literature on, 9; and comparison of persuadable voters and perceived voters, 166–7; critique of mass survey-based studies on, 31–3; impact of data policies on, 2, 198–200; individual-level versus mass-level, 19; and information fallacy in academic research, 12; and perceptions of partisanship, 103–22; and perceptions of race, 129–32; and reemergence of direct targeting, 60–4; campaign strategies (cont.)
summary of arguments and conclusions on, 213–19. See also elite perceptions campaign targeting: and consequences for democratic representation, 205–13; and
limits on leveraging social networks, 184–8; mass-media appeals and reemergence of, 60–4; as normative problem, 13–14; and persuading frequent voters, 147; and persuasion in non-party registration states, 107, 111;
concatration targeting and geography, 93.
See also microtargeting; segmentation strategies
campaign workers: and accidental conversations with voters, 111; and Ground Campaign Project, 77–85, 104–22, 130–1; and social network-based strategies, 189–90, 191; and whistle-blowing, 199
canvassing, Kramer’s model of, 221–4 Catalist: academic subscriptions to, 70, 71; and analytics samples, 69–70, 71; and investigation of voter identification requirement in Texas, 23,312; and methods for building microtargeting scores, 171, 172; and prediction of racial identity of voters, 127–8, 133, 134, 138;
and prediction of voter partisanship, 95–6, 97–100, 101, 107, 178–9, 180, 181; and records of formerly registered voters, 23, 607; research on database maintained by, 15, 16, 17, 69–76; and simulated persuasion targets, 153, 155–65; and sporadic voters, 147–8; and technologies for maintenance of database, 68–76; types of data collected by, 70, 169; and use of data by Congress, 200; use of public records by,
34–5; and voter turnout, 133, 134, 137
Census: commercial value of, 56; and comparison of persuadable and perceived voters, 164; and reemergence of direct targeting, 60; as source of public data, 45–6; and non-registration
based public data, 56–7
child care workers, and non-registration
based public data, 55
churches, and black political mobilization, 127, 237–8

Index
class. See socioeconomic status
Clay, Kirk, 126
CNN (television network), 11, 19
coarsened exact matching, 138
commercial aggregators: and information on consumer preferences, 38–9; and prediction of voter racial identity, 127–8. See also Catalist; NGP VAN “community sentiment,” and voter partisanship, 100
conflicts of interest, in political repurposing
of public records as campaign data, 46, 197–205, 239–40
Congress, and use of campaign data for official purposes, 200–204. See also Cooperative Congressional Election Study; National Committee for an Effective Congress
conservatism, and ideological positions of persuadable and perceived voters, 160, 161
courts, and Congress, 201–205
cost of: broadcast advertising, 60, 61; of perceiving electorate through consumer preferences, 39
covered jurisdictions, and Voting Rights Act, 124, 125
Creative Commons, 212
Croker, Richard, 49
cross-pressure: measurement of, 230–1; and persuadability of partisans and independents, 157–65
Current Population Survey (CPS 2008), 76, 137
Daily Herald, The (Utah), 52
data-cleaning, and voter databases, 67
democracy, positive and negative impacts of campaign targeting on, 205–13
Democratic Congressional Campaign
Committee (DCCC), 68
Democratic National Committee
(DNC), and maintenance of national
Index

voter databases, 67–68, 85–7. See also Obama reelection campaign; political parties Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee (DSCC), 68 demography: and direct use of commercial microtargeting data, 170; and information gathered by Catalist, 70; and measurement of cosmopolitanism, 239n2; and perceptions of partisanship, 120; and racially distinct names, 227 direct contact: and impact of new forms of campaign databases, 2; Perceived Voter Model and strategy of, 25–7 direct mail: and computers, 62; and cost of broadcast advertising, 61; and mail responsiveness and voter turnout, 229 direct mobilization, 32 direct primaries, historical analysis of, 234n4 dog permits, and non-registration based public data, 55 domestic violence, and personal information in voter registration system, 53 "Do Not Call” restrictions, exemption of political solicitations from, 54 Downs, Anthony, 10, 29–30, 38 ecological fallacy, and precinct-level targeting, 58 education. See demography Edwards, Becky, 52 elite perceptions: distinction between first-order and second-order effects on, 17–18; future political science research on, 219; and influence of partisanship on campaign strategies, 103–22; and influence of race on campaign strategies, 129–32; and Kramer’s model of canvassing, 221–4; microtargeting and distortion of, 207; opportunities and challenges in study of, 14–16; public records as essential for understanding of, 3–4. See also campaign strategies e-mail: and data collected by websites of members of Congress, 201; and ProPublica’s Message Machine project, 170. See also Facebook; Web-based political discourse Emily’s List, 68 encyclopedic knowledge, and information shortcuts in Perceived Voter Model, 33–40 Enos, Ryan D., 16, 21, 66, 77, 79, 80, 83 environmental issues, and microtargeting, 206 Ethics Manuel, of U.S. House of Representatives, 202–203 Facebook, 18, 182, 185, 186, 188 Fair Credit Reporting Act, 212 Federal Aviation Administration, 54 Fenno, Richard F., 1, 8, 14, 28 field IDs, and proprietary data of Catalist, 71, 178–9, 181 field plan, and scripts for volunteer-based voter contact, 26, 27 Fireside21, 200, 201 fishing licenses, and non-registration based public data, 55, 206 Florida: as party registration state, 105; and racial identity in public records, 123, 124, 125; racial perceptions and campaign strategies in, 129, 130 form-filler-outer tendency, and voter turnout, 117, 228–9 Franking Commission (Congress), 203, 204, 211 fraud, and history of voter registration system, 48–9 Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), 54, 91, 194 full-population dataset, and Catalist, 70 Gallup polls, 143 de la Garza, Rodolfo O., 31 Geer, John G., 35 geography: author’s contribution to study of political impact of, 4; and campaign targets as percent of population, 149; perceptions of partisanship without public identifiers, 93–5; and perceptions of race without public identifiers, 126–7; and persuasion targets, 158; public data and targeting based on past election returns, 57–9. See also demography; precincts Georgia, and racial identity in public records, 123, 124 Get-Out-The-Vote (GOTV) strategies, 92, 107, 109, 111, 141, 146-51, 238n6. See also campaign strategies; campaign targeting

Glaser, James M., 126

Gordon, Bart, 104

Gore, Al, 62, 104

Gray, Vincent, 199

ground campaign: focus of empirical analysis on strategies of, 19; impact of new databases on, 4

Ground Campaign Project (GCP): and cross-state differences in campaign strategies, 104-22; and racial perceptions, 130-1; and voter databases, 76-85

gun owners, and Republican campaign strategies, 130

Hansen, John Mark, 12, 31-32, 33, 128

Harris, Joseph P., 47, 49-50, 62, 235n7

Harvard University, 69

Hawaii, and partisanship of perceived voters, 100, 118

health care workers, and non-registration based public data, 55

Help America Vote Act of 2002 (HAVA), 63, 66

Hendler, Josh, 187

heuristics. See information shortcuts

Hillygus, D. Sunshine, 9, 31, 143, 156, 157, 176-8

Hispanics, and effectiveness of targeted appeals, 173. See also race and racial identity housing. See public housing; Section 8 housing

Huckfeldt, Robert, 31

hunting licenses, and non-registration based public data, 55, 130, 206

iConstituent, 200

Idaho, as party registration state, 89

ideology, and comparison of persuadable and perceived voters, 160, 161 income. See demography; socioeconomic status independent voters: and definition of pure independents, 155; methods of perceiving partisanship of, 92; and primaries, 91

information fallacy, 11-12

information flows, and microtargeting, 208-209

information shortcuts: economic analogy for campaign’s use of, 234n7; and Perceived Voter Model, 33-40; selection of, 38-40; as theme of book, 10-11

information theories, and strategic interaction among multiple players, 234n3 interest groups, and Catalist, 71-2

interviews, and Ground Campaign Project survey respondents, 83-5

Iowa, as party registration state, 103, 105

issue-specific messages, and precision targeting, 177

Issenberg, Sasha, 11, 151, 235n18

Japanese-Americans, internment of during World War II. See also race and racial identity

Jewish voters, and Catalist’s model of religion, 173

Karabian, Walter, 240n8

Keyssar, Alexander, 48

Kramer, Gerald H., 32, 41, 221-4

labor unions, and Catalist, 68 laws: on collection of party registration and party primary data by states, 89; political motivations for on public records, 4, 41, 198-200; political parties and voter registration system, 50-3. See also open-records laws

League of Conservation Voters, 68

liberalism, and ideological positions of persuadable and perceived voters, 160, 161

licensing data, and non-registration based public information, 55, 56

lifestyle choices, question of political relevance of, 176

Lockheed Martin, 200

“long tail,” and consumer preferences, 206-207

Los Angeles Times, 11, 38

Louisiana, and racial identity in public records, 123, 124, 125

Lowi, Theodore J., 62
Index

low-information voters, literature in public opinion research about, 142–3 magazine subscribers, and voter turnout, 176 Malchow, Hal, 86, 107, 147, 148, 171, 239n1
marital status, Catalyst’s model of, 172
marketing firms, and reemergence of direct targeting, 60 Massachusetts: influence of perceptions of partisanship on campaign strategies in, 104; network-based targeting in, 184–8; and participation of independent voters in primaries, 91; as party registration state, 103
matching technique, and influence of racial identity on voter turnout, 137–9, 227–30, 237n8
McCain, John, 92, 114
media: and cost of broadcast advertising, 60, 61; and impact of microtargeting databases on perceptions of voters, 3. See also television; advertising medical professionals, and non-registration based public data, 55
membership lists, and proprietary data of Catalyst, 71–2 Message Machine (ProPublica), 170
metis, and concept of encyclopedic knowledge, 35
Michigan: and precinct strategy, 93, 94; and public reporting of primary data, 89, 91, 236n5 microtargeting: commercial models of, 95–6; and direct use of commercial databases, 170–6; impact of on democratic representation, 203–13; and indirect use of commercial databases, 178–82; influence of on campaign strategies, 2–3; and proposed California law restricting opinion polls, 240n8; and surgical approaches to targeting racial identities, 126. See also segmentation strategies
Milbank, Dana, 34
Minnesota: as non-party registration state, 109; and precinct strategy, 93, 94
Mississippi, and racial identity in public records, 123, 124, 134
Missouri, and data on public precinct returns, 58 mobilization: and interaction between voter turnout and partisanship, 236n5; of partisan supporters by Obama reelection campaign, 104–22
motor vehicle registries, and voter registration, 63
Mutz, Diana C., 193
NAACP, 51, 68
names, and racial profiling, 128, 204, 227, 237n6
National Board of Trade, 56
National Committee for an Effective Congress (NCEC), 58, 70–1
National Conference of State Legislatures, 198
National Election Study (NES) survey, 33
National Voter Registration Act (NVRA), 63 neighbor-to-neighbor programs, and Democratic Party, 187 neighborhoods. See geography; precincts network-based targeting, case studies in limits of, 184–8. See also social networks Nevada, as party registration state, 105
New Hampshire: and Ground Campaign Project, 85; as party registration state, 105; and voter registration, 51–3
New Organizing Institute, 148
new-voter targets, and persuasion, 148, 149–51, 155–65
New Yorker (magazine), 55
New York Times, 11, 12, 46–7
NGP VAN: and Catalyst, 69; as continuation of Voter Activation Network, 67–8; as data source for research, 16, 17; and Democratic National Committee, 67, 68; and maintenance of voter database, 77–85; and Obama reelection campaign, 16, 18; and social networking strategies, 188–92; and Web-based interfaces for voters, 211
Nielsen Company, 56
North Carolina: as party registration state, 105; and racial identity in public records, 123, 124, 125; racial perceptions and campaign strategies in, 130, 131; turnout of black voters in, 132–4
Obama election campaign (2008): compared to 2012 reelection campaign, 18; as example of attempt to mobilize young voters, 5–7; and network-based approaches, 187; and precinct data, 238–917; swing voters and targeting scheme of, 151; use of Catalist database
by, 15; and voters registered as Democrats, 92

Obama reelection campaign (2012): compared to 2008 election campaign, 18; and direct use of commercial microtargeting data, 170; as example of attempt to mobilize young voters, 5–7; and Facebook strategy, 188; Ground Campaign Project and use of NGP VAN data, 77–85; and information fallacy, 12; and mobilization of partisan supporters, 104–22; and NGP VAN website, 16, 18; numbers of volunteers recruited by, 25–6; and persuasion targeting, 151–2; and racial perceptions, 150–1; and registered Democrats, 91;
smart phone application and microtargeting by, 208

Ohio: and Catalist’s partisanship and turnout likelihood scales, 73, 74, 75; as non-party registration state, 105;
racial perceptions and campaign
strategies in, 131; and voter registration, 50–1

open-record laws, and public policy, 46, 54–7

partisanship. See political parties partisanship scale, and Catalist, 73, 74, 75

Patrick, Deval, 104, 184–8

Pennsylvania, and influence of perceptions of partisanship on campaign strategies, 116–22

perceived voter(s): commercial data and proprietary party records on, 169–84;
compared to persuadable voters, 142, 145–67; definition of, 7–8, 24, 28;
different population of in absence of party registration data, 93, 100; and racial identity in North Carolina and Virginia, 133; summary of arguments and conclusions on, 213–19; and voter debería 25–9; and voters in past research, 31–3

Perceived Voter Model: and campaign perceptions of voters, 28–33, 142;
characterization of as single-player
game, 234n3; and Ground Campaign Project, 79; and hypotheses on strategies of mobilizing supporters and persuading undecided voters, 40–3;
informal shortcuts or encyclopedic knowledge and, 33–40; introduction to concept of, 7–8; and Kramer’s model of canvassing, 222; and positive or negative impact of campaign targeting on democratic representation, 205; and
predictions about campaign strategies,
213–19; and strategy of direct contact,
25–7

personal information, and voter registration system, 46–8

personality traits, and voter turnout, 136–7

persuadability: in literature on political psychology, 141; Obama reelection campaign and experiment-informed model of, 131; as psychological disposition, 42

persuadable voters: attitudinal and behavioral comparisons of with persuadable perceived voters, 145–67;
concept of perceived voters and, 142;
views of in political science, 143–5

Pew Research Center, 143

Planned Parenthood, 68

polarization, of voters in party registration states, 103

Polimetrix, 75–6

political awareness, as essential moderator of opinion change, 156

political parties: and history of voter registration system, 48–50; and influence of elite perceptions of partisanship on strategies, 103–12; issue positions highly correlated with specific, 230–1; and laws regulating voter registration, 50–3; and methods of perceiving partisanship without public identifiers, 92–103;
negative impact of microtargeting on,
208; and partisan information available
from public records in different states, 4, 89–92; and responsiveness to television advertising, 143. See also Democratic National Committee; independent
Index

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Page</th>
<th>Entry</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>95</td>
<td>Repurposing of as campaign data, 89.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>96</td>
<td>First-order effect of on elite perceptions, 197.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>97</td>
<td>Understanding of elite perceptions, 198.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>98</td>
<td>Changes in, 162.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>99</td>
<td>Supply and demand for public data and changes in policy on, 57–64; as theme of book, 9. See also voter registration.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>100</td>
<td>Pure independents, and comparison of persuadable and perceived voters, 155–65.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>101</td>
<td>Purging regulations, and voter registration, 63.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>102</td>
<td>Q Tool, 68, 71.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>103</td>
<td>Race and racial identity: and data available from public records, 4, 42; downstream effects on of voters, 132–9; impact of on campaign strategies, 129–34; and laws on voter registration, 51; names and profiling by, 128, 204, 227, 237–9; perceptions of without public identifiers, 125–9; and predictions of partisanship, 120; public records of, 123–5; and voter turnout, 134–9, 227–30.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>104</td>
<td>Rather, Dan, 239–95.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>105</td>
<td>Regular-voter targets, and persuasion, 147, 148, 149, 153, 155–65.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>106</td>
<td>Religion, accuracy of Catalyst’s predictions of affiliation, 172–4. See also churches; Jewish voters.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>107</td>
<td>Republican National Committee (RNC); access to campaign work of for academic research, 85–7; and maintenance of national voter databases, 67, 68; racial perceptions and campaign strategies of, 129–30.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>108</td>
<td>Research partnerships, and maintenance of voter databases by Catalyst and NGP VAN, 69–83.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>109</td>
<td>Ridley-Thomas, Mark, 51.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>110</td>
<td>Roeder, Ethan, 12, 78, 107, 111, 112, 113, 147.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>111</td>
<td>Romney presidential campaign (2012); and direct voter contact, 26; microtargeting and distortion of elite perceptions, 207; and voters registered as Republicans, 91.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>112</td>
<td>Roosevelt, Franklin D., 24011.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>113</td>
<td>Rosenstone, Steven J., 12, 31–2, 33, 128.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Index

260

St. George, Jim, 77
scale, and concept of perceived voters, 35–6 Schaffner, Brian F., 83, 173, 174, 190, 192
scores, and predictive models of Catalist, 70, 72–5
Scott, James C., 1, 35
scripts, for volunteer-based contact efforts, 26, 27
second-round primaries, 89
segmentation strategies: and constituent communications of Congress, 201–202; and distortion of perceptions of politicians, campaign workers, and voters, 207. See also microtargeting Seitz, Bill, 51
self-reported information, provided by campaign supporters, 182, 183 “Share Alike” principle, of open-source license agreements, 212
Shields, Todd G., 9, 31, 143, 156, 157, 176–8
Sides, John, 25, 115, 151
Sierra Club, 68
smart phone application, and microtargeting, 208
Smith v. Allwright (1944), 125 social networks: leveraging of for transmission of messages, 36–7; mobilization value of, 32–3; and “silo” effect, 186; and targeting lists, 190–2; and theory of direct mobilization, 32; usefulness of for campaign perceptions of voter preferences, 184–93. See also network-based targeting socioeconomic status, and racial identity in public records, 136, 227. See also demography “sound trucks,” and black neighborhoods, 126
South: and racial identity in public records, 123–5; racial identity and voter turnout in, 134–9. See also specific states
South Carolina, and racial identity in public records, 123, 124 sporadic voters: and network-based approaches, 187; and persuasion, 147–8, 149–51
Sprague, John, 31
states: and centralization of voter registration records, 63–4; influence of elite perceptions of partisanship on campaign strategies in, 103–22; and public records of partisan support, 89–92; and use of matching technique to assess effect of racial identity on voter turnout, 227. See also South; specific states Sunstein, Cass, 208–209
surge targets, and persuasion, 147–51, 153–65
survey-based persuasion targets, prediction of, 164–5 swing voters, definition of, 143
Tammany Hall (New York), 49
teachers, and non-registration based public data, 55 technology: information fallacy and limitations of, 11–12; and voter databases, 66–9 television advertising: impact of on direct strategic mobilization, 59–60; responsiveness to as function of partisanship, 143. See also media Tennessee: and influence of perceptions of partisanship on campaign strategies, 104; and microtargeting, 3; and racial identity in public records, 123, 124, 125, 134
Texas: and investigation of voter identification requirements, 233n2; and white-only primaries, 125
Thomas, Clarence, 240n1
time, perceived voters and period of, 36
treatment responsiveness, and perceived voter, 28 Trillin, Calvin, 55, 60
turnout likelihood scale, and Catalist, 73, 74, 75 uncertainty, of politicians on questions of policy, 50 uninformed voters, and comparison of persuaded and perceived voters, 155–65
U.S. Department of Agriculture, 54
U.S. Department of Justice, 124, 233n2
Urban League, 51
user-generated proprietary data, 183
user interface (UI), and voter databases, 67
Utah, and voter registration, 51–2
Index

Vavreck, Lynn, 151, 239n2

Vermont, as non-party registration state, 109, 118

veterans, and use of public data by 2008 Obama campaign, 85

Virginia: as non-party registration state, 105, 230; and racial identity in public records, 125; racial perceptions and campaign strategies in, 130–1; turnout of black voters in, 132–4

volunteer recruitment, and self-reported data, 185

VoteBuilder, 67, 68, 86

voter(s): access of to political profiles maintained in databases, 211–13; as distinct from perceived voters, 7–8; and perceived voter in past research, 31–3. See also Catalist; Ground Campaign Project; independent voters; NGP VAN; perceived voters; persuadable voters; public records; sporadic voters; swing voters; uninformed voters; voter registration; voter turnout

Voter Activation Network (VAN). See NGP VAN

voter registration: and application from Alabama in 1964, 225–6; and databases in information age, 66–9; history of political use of, 46–50; and laws benefiting interests of political parties, 50–3; and racial identity, 123–5; and reemergence of direct targeting, 61–4; social pressure and public posting of registration lists, 235n7. See also public records voter turnout: campaign strategies and predictions of, 26, 236n4; and Catalist’s propensity scores, 73; effects of party registration data on, 113–22; effects of racial registration data on, 132–9; and perceptions of racial identity, 132–9, 227–30

Voter Vault, 67, 68, 86

Voting Rights Act (VRA), 124–5, 131

Walker, Scott, 194

Walsh, John, 60, 185, 186–7, 239n4

Ward, Ken, 201

Washington, DC: and federal investigation of Gray’s mayoral campaign, 199; and saturation GOTV targeting, 109

Washington Post, 11, 199

Web-based political discourse, and microtargeting, 208–209

whistle-blowing, by campaign workers, 199

white-only primaries, in southern states, 125

Wisconsin: and Gore presidential campaign, 104; as non-party registration state, 100, 103, 105, 107, 109, 116, 118; and petition calling for recall of governor, 194; and precinct strategy, 93, 94

women, and predictions of partisanship, 120

World, The (New York), 49

Yale University, 69

Zaller, John R., 143, 156