

Contents

Preface and acknowledgements	page ix
List of abbreviations	xii
Introduction	I
1 Unity and creation: why Plotinus introduced the hypostasis Soul	15
The unity of all souls	17
The Craftsman and the creation of a sensible world	25
2 The hypostasis Soul	37
The hypostasis Intellect and the Timaeon Living Being	38
Propositional and non-propositional thought	44
Theoretical and practical thought	51
Creation, contemplation and the Craftsman	61
3 The hypostasis Soul and its relation to individual souls	69
Being one and many	70
The hypostasis Intellect, individual intellects and their individuation	78
The hypostasis Soul, individual souls and their individuation	86
4 The individual soul in the intelligible and in the sensible world	91
The two lives of the individual soul	92
The priority of the life in the intelligible world	101
5 Divine individual souls	111
The World Soul	112
The souls of the stars	120
The soul of the earth	125
The blissfully unperturbed life of divine souls	128

viii	Contents
6	The human soul: its descent and its confusion in the sensible world	134
	Descent as experience	134
	Experience and the confusion of the human soul in the sensible world	146
7	The human soul: the higher and the lower soul	152
	The higher soul and its power in the sensible world	153
	The lower soul as faculty of presentation	163
	Does the lower soul stem from the World Soul?	171
8	The soul and the body	180
	Being in	180
	Nature, the trace of the soul and the qualified body	186
	Animals and plants	192
	Bibliography	198
	General index	211
	Index locorum	219