The Graph Music of Morton Feldman

Morton Feldman is widely regarded as one of America’s greatest composers. His music is famously idiosyncratic, but, in many cases, the way he presented it is also unusual: in the 1950s and 1960s, he often composed in non-standard musical notations, including a groundbreaking variety on graph paper that facilitated deliberately imprecise specifications of pitch and, at times, other musical parameters. Feldman used this notation, intermittently, over seventeen years, producing numerous graph works that invite analysis as an evolving series. Taking this approach, David Cline marshals a wide range of source materials – many previously unpublished – in clarifying the ideology, organisation and generative history of these graphs and their formative role in the chronicle of post-war music. This assists in pinpointing connections with Feldman’s compositions in other formats, with works by other composers, notably John Cage, and with contemporary currents in painting. Performance practice is examined through analysis of Feldman’s non-notated preferences and David Tudor’s celebrated interpretations.

David Cline completed his PhD in Music at Goldsmiths, University of London, in 2011 and was a fellow of the Institute of Musical Research at the School of Advanced Study, University of London in 2013–15. His research has appeared in Perspectives of New Music and Twentieth-Century Music.
Music Since 1900

GENERAL EDITOR Arnold Whittall

This series – formerly Music in the Twentieth Century – offers a wide perspective on music and musical life since the end of the nineteenth century. Books included range from historical and biographical studies, concentrating particularly on the context and circumstances in which composers were writing, to analytical and critical studies concerned with the nature of musical language and questions of compositional process. The importance given to context will also be reflected in studies dealing with, for example, the patronage, publishing, and promotion of new music, and in accounts of the musical life of particular countries.

Titles in the series

Jonathan Cross
The Stravinsky Legacy

Michael Nyman
Experimental Music: Cage and Beyond

Jennifer Doctor
The BBC and Ultra-Modern Music, 1922–1936

Robert Adlington
The Music of Harrison Birtwistle

Keith Potter
Four Musical Minimalists: La Monte Young, Terry Riley, Steve Reich, Philip Glass

Carlo Caballero
Fauré and French Musical Aesthetics

Peter Burt
The Music of Toru Takemitsu

David Clarke
The Music and Thought of Michael Tippett: Modern Times and Metaphysics

M. J. Grant
Serial Music, Serial Aesthetics: Compositional Theory in Post-War Europe

Philip Rupprecht
Britten’s Musical Language
Mark Carroll
Music and Ideology in Cold War Europe

Adrian Thomas
Polish Music since Szymanowski

J. P. E. Harper-Scott
Edward Elgar, Modernist

Yayoi Uno Everett
The Music of Louis Andriessen

Ethan Haimo
Schoenberg’s Transformation of Musical Language

Rachel Beckles Willson
Ligeti, Kurtág, and Hungarian Music during the Cold War

Michael Cherlin
Schoenberg’s Musical Imagination

Joseph N. Straus
Twelve-Tone Music in America

David Metzer
Musical Modernism at the Turn of the Twenty-First Century

Edward Campbell
Boulez, Music and Philosophy

Jonathan Goldman
The Musical Language of Pierre Boulez: Writings and Compositions

Pieter C. van den Toorn and John McGinness
Stravinsky and the Russian Period: Sound and Legacy of a Musical Idiom

David Beard
Harrison Birtwistle’s Operas and Music Theatre

Heather Wiebe
Britten’s Unquiet Pasts: Sound and Memory in Postwar Reconstruction

Beate Kutschke and Barley Norton
Music and Protest in 1968

Graham Griffiths
Stravinsky’s Piano: Genesis of a Musical Language

Martin Iddon
John Cage and David Tudor: Correspondence on Interpretation and Performance

Martin Iddon
New Music at Darmstadt: Nono, Stockhausen, Cage, and Boulez

Alastair Williams
Music in Germany Since 1968

Ben Earle
Luigi Dallapiccola and Musical Modernism in Fascist Italy
Thomas Schuttenhelm
The Orchestral Music of Michael Tippett: Creative Development and the Compositional Process

Marilyn Nonken
The Spectral Piano: From Liszt, Scriabin, and Debussy to the Digital Age

Jack Boss
Schoenberg’s Twelve-Tone Music: Symmetry and the Musical Idea

Deborah Mawer
French Music and Jazz in Conversation: From Debussy to Brubeck

Philip Rupprecht
British Musical Modernism: The Manchester Group and their Contemporaries

Amy Lynn Wlodarski
Musical Witness and Holocaust Representation

Carola Nielinger-Vakil
Luigi Nono: A Composer in Context

Erling E. Guldbrandsen and Julian Johnson
Transformations of Musical Modernism

David Cline
The Graph Music of Morton Feldman
The Graph Music of Morton Feldman

David Cline
For Helen, Ben, Hannah and Grace
You left us and you wrote this piece on graph, giving us this freedom of playing in those three ranges – high, middle, and low – and then we went in and played the piece, and it was then that the musical world changed.

John Cage in conversation with Morton Feldman, 9 July 1966
Contents

List of figures page x
Acknowledgements xi

Introduction 1
1. Early graphs, 1950–1953 9
3. Notation 73
4. Ideology 104
5. Holism 140
6. Compositional methods I 163
7. Compositional methods II 203
8. Non-notated preferences 243
9. Tudor’s performances 264
10. Connections with works in other notations 292
11. Moving on 317

Epilogue 331
Appendix 1: Two unpublished graphs 334
Appendix 2: Other perspectives on compositional methods 349
Bibliography 355
Index 378
Figures

1.1 Untitled sketch page 12
1.2 Projection 1, sketch, alternative presentation of the grid 17
2.1 Cunningham’s company with Rauschenberg’s costumes and backdrop for Summerspace, circa 1959–61 52
3.1 Projection 1, sketch, pages 1–2 74
6.1 Projection 5, sketch, page 2 168
7.1 Ixion for chamber ensemble, paperboard score 204
7.2 Ixion for chamber ensemble, paperboard score, excerpt 210
9.1 Ixion for two pianos, Tudor’s written-out version, page 1 279
9.2 Ixion for two pianos, explanatory notes with Tudor’s copy of the score 283
9.3 Atlantis, Tudor’s copy of the score with his annotations, first grid frame 284
10.1 Intersection 1, sketch in more conventional notation 301
10.2 Marginal Intersection, sketch in more conventional notation, end of part for woodwind instruments followed by start of part for brass instruments 302
10.3 “Some Future "Projection” for Piano, Two Players”, sketch 310
A1.1 Intersection for Magnetic Tape, sketch 335
A1.2 Intersection+, sketch 344
Acknowledgements

I would like to thank those who helped in compiling the source materials that underpin this analysis, especially Amy Beal, John Bewley, Jason Cady, Gene Caprioglio, Jeanette Casey, Ryan Dohoney, D. J. Hoek, John Holzaepfel, Patricia Lent, Felix Meyer, Raoul Mörchen, Keith Potter, David Vaughan and Chris Villars. I would also like to thank Robert Morris, for sharing unpublished research with me, and Frank Denyer, Jorge Mester, John Tilbury, Jan Williams, Christian Wolff and the late Gerd Zacher, for sharing their memories of Feldman and his music. I owe a special debt of gratitude to Keith Potter, not only for the reason given above, but also for his advice and encouragement during my doctoral research at Goldsmiths, University of London, which formed the basis of what follows. I am also grateful to Arnold Whittall, Vicki Cooper, Fleur Jones and Sarah Starkey, who provided helpful advice on preparing this version of the text for publication by Cambridge University Press.

The Paul Sacher Foundation has proved an invaluable resource. Additionally, I am very grateful to the Foundation for the award of a research grant, which facilitated the longest of my several trips to Basel, and for its hospitality during all my visits. My thanks also go to the Institute for Musical Research at the School of Advanced Study, University of London for supporting my postdoctoral research on Feldman’s graph music over several years.

I am very grateful to Barbara Monk Feldman for her permission to quote from Feldman’s unpublished letters, interviews and writings, to Arthur Antheil McTighe and Judith Doneher for their permission to quote from unpublished letters of George Antheil and to the Paul Sacher Foundation, Northwestern University and the J. Paul Getty Trust for giving me permission to reproduce sketches and other materials from their collections. The photograph of Merce Cunningham’s company with Robert Rauschenberg’s costumes and backdrop for Summerspace, by Richard Rutledge, appears courtesy of the Merce Cunningham Trust. Copyright clearance for musical examples was obtained from the following sources:

xii  Acknowledgements

Earlier versions of parts of Chapters 4, 5 and 7 were published in ‘Allover method and holism in Morton Feldman’s graphs’, Perspectives of New Music, vol.
Acknowledgements

51, no. 1 (Winter 2013), 56–98 © Copyright 2013 by Perspectives of New Music; and ‘Straightening the record: Morton Feldman’s return to graph music’, Twentieth-Century Music, vol. 10, no. 1 (March 2013), 59–90 © Copyright 2013 by Cambridge University Press. Elements that have been reused are reprinted by kind permission of their publishers.

My wife Helen provided detailed feedback on several drafts and much other invaluable advice over many years. I would especially like to thank her and Ben, Hannah and Grace – who have grown up with this project – for supporting my efforts in so many ways.