CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-12927-6 - Learning from Entrepreneurial Failure: Emotions, Cognitions, and Actions
Dean A. Shepherd, Trenton Williams, Marcus Wolfe and Holger Patzelt
Index
More information

Index

anticipatory grief, 94–96, 100, 102
attribution theory, 118–119
  social stigma and, 202
autonomy. See also need for autonomy
  defined, 12

bankruptcy laws
  European Commission on, 207–209
  social stigma as result of, 207–209 Behamon, Eric, 213–214
belongingness. See need for belongingness bias
  in evaluation of failure, 204–205
  persistence with poorly-performing firms and, 295–296 positive, against failed entrepreneurs, 202–203
bouncing back, from failure EO content and, 250–253
  narratives of failure and, 249–259
  negative emotions and, 253–257
  positive emotions and, 257–259
  in sports, 251–253
Breidenbach, Joana, 200
broad perceptions
  about common humanity, 46–47
  of individuals, 45–47
  learning from failure through, 45–51
  about mindfulness, 47
  about narratives of failure, 317–318
  in organizations, 47–51
  self-compassion through, 45–51
  about self-kindness, 46
Buddhism, self-compassion as facet of, 39–41
Burke, Arleigh, 17
business failure. See also termination of business
  cultural sensemaking of, 210–212
  visibility context for, 209–210
businesses. See also termination of business as separate from entrepreneurs, 1

change, emotions influenced by, 154 Cheong, Chong Lit, 197
coaches, in sports
  EO content in, 251–253
  negative emotions and, 256
  positive emotions and, 258–259
cognition
  entrepreneurship and, 145–146
  self-compassion and, 285–286
collective efficacy, 89, 297 collective negative emotions, 236–239
  in narrative failures, 245
common humanity
  broad perceptions about, 46–47
  failure and, 42
  learning from failure with, 287–288
  as learning resource, 52
  in organizations, 42–43, 49–50, 54
  positive emotions and, 55–56
  self-compassion and, 42–43
communication, after project failures, 232–233 competence. See need for competence conceptual slack, 47–48
connectedness, 39
consistency
  poorly-performing firms and, 89–90, 105, 295–296 self-efficacy and, 89–90
coping
  grief recovery and, 178
  through rituals, 178
  self-efficacy in, 174–175
  support groups for, 176–177
creeping death, delayed project termination as, 125–131, 142–143 curiosity, 39

delays in project termination. See project termination, delaying of desensitization, 159–161, 306–307

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-12927-6 - Learning from Entrepreneurial Failure: Emotions, Cognitions, and Actions
Dean A. Shepherd, Trenton Williams, Marcus Wolfe and Holger Patzelt
Index
More information

efficacy
collective, 89, 297
consistency and, 89–90
self, 89–90, 174–175
ego-defensive mechanisms, 285–289 emotional capability, 173–179 coping self-efficacy, 174–175 coping through rituals, 178 cross-level effects of, 178–179
grief recovery and, 305–306
learning from failure and, 179–181
negative emotions and, 174–175
organizational enhancement of, 183
of organizations, 173–175, 179–181, 305–306 positive outcomes with, 174
recovery from failure and, 4–5 emotional costs, 94–96, 101–103, 106–107 emotional intelligence
emotional regulation and, 170–171, 177–178
grief recovery and, 170–173, 304–305
learning from failure and, 179–181
organizational enhancement of, 183
recovery from failure and, 4–5
social context of, 171–173 social interaction influenced by, 172 emotional regulation. See also grief recovery education about, 183
emotional intelligence and, 170–171, 177–178
research implications for, 182–183
emotionally capable organizations, 156 emotions. See also grief; happiness; negative emotions; positive emotions change as influence, 154
management of, 155–156
normalization of failure and, 157–161
organization events as influence on, 154
project failures and, 274–283
self-compassion and, 286
social contexts for, 247
entrepreneurial action
contexts for, 273–274
success outcomes from, variability of, 273–274 entrepreneurial orientation (EO) content bouncing back from failure and, 250–253
high levels of, 319–320
low levels of, 319–320
in narratives of failure and, 250, 318–319
in sports coaches, 251–253
entrepreneurs
bankruptcy laws for, 207–209 businesses as separate entity from, 1 extrinsic motivation of, 90–92, 104–106 failure as experience for, 1
social stigma for, 196–203, 212–214, 222–225
values of, 92–93
entrepreneurship
cognition and, 145–146
portfolio management and, 143–147 environmental dynamism, 83–84, 104 environmental munificence, 84–86
EO content. See entrepreneurial orientation content eudaimonic approach to meaning, 36–37
to self-compassion, 37
to self-realization, 36–37
Europe, social stigma in, 196–199
European Commission, 207–209
evaluation, of failure
attribute of evaluators, 204–206 bias in, 204–205
perspective of evaluators as influence on, 205–206
social stigma and, 204–206
experience. See learning experiences failed entrepreneurs. See also narratives, of failure attributes of, 200–203

impression management by, 214–216 negative self-image in, 219 positive bias against, 202–203 positive self-image in, 219 self-blame in, 217–218
self-esteem of, 217–218 self-verification of, 216–222 sexual orientation of, as factor in failure, 202
social stigma for, 196–203, 212–214, 222–225
failed projects. See project failures failure. See also bouncing back, from failure; evaluation, of failure; firm failures; learning, from failure; narratives, of failure; normalization of failure; project failures

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-12927-6 - Learning from Entrepreneurial Failure: Emotions, Cognitions, and Actions
Dean A. Shepherd, Trenton Williams, Marcus Wolfe and Holger Patzelt
Index
More information

ability to learn from, 2–3 causes of, procrastination influenced by, 79
common humanity and, 42
concealment of, 309–310
cultural sensemaking of, 210–212
emotional capability for, 4–5
emotional intelligence and, 4–5
entrepreneurial experience from, 1
grief after, 274–283
as learning experience, 1–3, 118–120
learning resources for, 51–54
negative emotional response to, 2–4
normalization of, 155–161
self-compassion and, 39
self-kindness and, 41
self-worth influenced by, 37
social context for, 4–5
social stigma about, 5, 308
failure narratives. See narratives, of failure family support
after business failure, 4–5
in grief recovery, 177
feedback, positive, 242–244
firm failures
as badge of honor, 97
managers and, 30–31
motivational consequences of, 26–27
need for autonomy and, 23–24
need for belongingness and, 24–26
need for competence and, 21–23
negative emotional reactions to, 21–27
optimization of recovery after, 96–99
self-determination theory and, 27–28
firms, under-performing of, 75–76
founder's dilemma, 279–280

Germany, social stigma in, 211–212
grief
anticipatory, 94–96, 100
after failure, 274–283
at group-level, 180
learning from failure and, 161–170
motivation influenced by, 17–18
over project failures, 7, 274–283
preparation of, 96
during project termination delays, 301–302
regulation of, 161–170
grief recovery, 162–170
alternative opportunities as part of, 281–283 through coping rituals, 178
emotional capability and, 305–306
emotional intelligence and, 170–173, 304–305
family support in, 177
heterogeneity in, 179–180
interpreting information and, 166–167 learning at organizational level and, 169–170 loss orientation in, 162–167
need for autonomy in, 279–281
need for belongingness in, 277–278 need for competence in, 275–277 oscillation orientation in, 162–163, 165
project failure and, 167–169
regulation of, 303–307
restoration orientation in, 162–163, 168–169
ruminations and, 165
scanning and, 164–165
sensemaking activities and, 162–164, 169–170 social interactions in, 171–173
support groups for, 176–177
group-level grief, 180

habituation, 158–159, 306–307
happiness, self-compassion and, 39 Harris, Dana B., 17
hedonistic psychology perspective, 36, 284

impression management with jumping ship strategy, 215–216
need for autonomy and, 221
need for belongingness and, 220–221
need for competence and, 220
of social stigma, 214–216, 314–316 independent entrepreneurs
need for autonomy and, 29
negative emotions for, 31
individuals
broad perceptions of, 45–47
learning resources for, 51–53
need for autonomy in, 279–281
need for belongingness for, 277–278 need for competence for, 276–277 social stigmatization of, in project teams, 199–200 innovation. See also research & development need for autonomy for, 12–13 project failures as influence on, 231–232

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-12927-6 - Learning from Entrepreneurial Failure: Emotions, Cognitions, and Actions
Dean A. Shepherd, Trenton Williams, Marcus Wolfe and Holger Patzelt
Index
More information

interpretation, of information
  grief recovery and, 166–167
  about project failures, 166–167
  in sensemaking activities, 163–164

Japan, social stigma in, 209
Jensen, Bent A., 197
jumping ship strategy, 215–216

learning, from failure, 118–120
  attribution theory and, 118–119
  through broad perception, 45–51
  with common humanity, 287–288
  ego-defensive mechanisms and, 285–289
  emotional capability and, 179–181
  emotional intelligence and, 179–181
  for failed projects, 123–125
  grief recovery and, 167–169
  grief regulation and, 161–170 managerial implications, 62–64 mechanisms for, 134–139
  with mindfulness, 288–289
  negative emotions and, 119–120, 139–141
  positive emotions and, 57–58
  R&D and, 119, 139–141
  resources for, 51–54
  self-compassion model of, 37–55, 284–290
  with self-kindness, 287
  in sensemaking activities, 163–164
  in team environments, 141–143 termination timing and, 122–123, 141–143 learning experiences
  delaying of project termination as, 299–302 failure as, 1–3, 118–120
  before termination of business, 131–134 learning goal orientation, 21–22
learning resources
  common humanity as, 52, 54
  for failure, 51–54
  for individuals, 51–53
  mindfulness as, 52–54
  in organizations, 53–54
  for self-compassion, 51–54
  self-kindness as, 51–53 Liikanen, Erkki, 197
loss, termination of business as, 146–147 loss orientation
  in grief recovery, 162–167
  project failure and, 168–169

managers
  awareness of motivational consequences, after failure, 31–32 failed, attributes of, 200–203
  firm failure and, 30–31
  learning from failure for, 62–64
  need for autonomy and, 279–281
  need for belongingness and, 277–278
  need for competence and, 275–277
  negative emotional consequences for, 30–31
  persistence with poorly-performing firms and, 103–107
  positive emotions and, 63–64
  project failure and, 30–31
  self-compassion and, 63
  social stigma and, long-term implications of, 222–225 meaning, eudaimonic approach to, 36–37
mindfulness
  broad perceptions about, 47
  defined, 43
  learning from failure with, 288–289
  as learning resource, 52–54
  open-hearted, 43–44, 289
  in organizations, 44–45, 50–51, 54
  positive emotions and, 56
  research implications for, 58–59
  self-compassion and, 43–45
motivation
  for delay of business termination, 86–88 extrinsic, of entrepreneurs, 90–92, 104–106
  after firm failures, 26–27 grief as influence on, 17–18 managers' awareness of, 31–32 need for autonomy as, 23–24 negative emotional reactions and, 16–20 after project failures, 16–20
  self-determination theory and, 27–30

narratives, of failure, 5, 316–320 articulation of, 317
  bouncing back from failure, 249–259
  broad perceptions about, 317–318
  collective negative emotions and, 236–239, 245 communication through, 232–233
  EO content and, 250, 318–319
  long-term implications of, 260

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-12927-6 - Learning from Entrepreneurial Failure: Emotions, Cognitions, and Actions
Dean A. Shepherd, Trenton Williams, Marcus Wolfe and Holger Patzelt
Index
More information

negative emotional content in, 235–248, 318–319 positive emotional content in, 239–242, 246–248, 319–320 positive feedback to, 242–244 profitability role in, 248–249 for projects, 244–246
sensemaking through, 234–250, 261–262
need for autonomy
firm failures and, 23–24
in grief recovery, 279–281
independent entrepreneurs and, 29
for individuals, 279–281
in individuals, 279–281
for innovation, 12–13
management of, 279–281
as motivation, 23–24
negative self-image and, 221
project failure and, 12–14
R&D and, 13
well-being and, 14
need for belongingness
firm failure and, 24–26
in grief recovery, 277–278
for individuals, 277–278
management of, 277–278
negative self-image and, 220–221
need for competence
firm failures and, 21–23
in grief recovery, 275–277
for individuals, 276–277
learning goal orientation as part of, 21–22
management of, 275–277
negative self-image and, 220
project failures and, 8–12
self-image and, 10
well-being and, 11–12
need for relatedness
negative self-image and, 221
project failure and, 14–16
negative emotions. See also grief
bouncing back from failure and, 253–257
collective, 236–239, 245
contingent relationships and, 182 from creeping death, 142–143
from delaying project failure, 125–131
firm failures and, 21–27
for independent entrepreneurs, 31
learning from failure and, 119–120, 139–141
for managers, 30–31
motivational consequences of, 16–20
in narratives of failure, 235–248, 318–319
normalization of failure and, 160–161
over project failures, 7–8, 231–232, 244–246
personal growth from, 36–37
positive emotions as influence on, 246–248 positive feedback and, 242–244 procrastination influenced by, 78–79 as response to failure, 2–4 restoration orientation and, 166
in sports coaches, 256
negative self-image, 219
need for autonomy and, 221
need for belongingness and, 220–221
need for competence and, 220
need for relatedness and, 221
well-being and, 220
new product development (NPD), 231
normalization of failure advantages of, 158
defined, 157–158
through desensitization, 159–161, 306–307
emotional regulation and, 157–161
through habituation, 158–159, 306–307
negative emotions and, 160–161
by organizations, 155–156
in projects, 160
NPD. See new product development

open-hearted mindfulness, 43–44, 289 openness, as value, 93
optimism, self-compassion and, 39 organization events, 154
classification of, 159
organization theory, self-compassion and, 38–41 organizational mindfulness, 44–45, 50–51, 54 organizations
broad perception in, 47–51 collective negative emotions within, 236–239 common humanity in, 42–43, 49–50, 54 conceptual slack in, 47–48 coping self-efficacy in, 175–178 delaying project failure by, 116 emotional capability enhanced by, 183

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-12927-6 - Learning from Entrepreneurial Failure: Emotions, Cognitions, and Actions
Dean A. Shepherd, Trenton Williams, Marcus Wolfe and Holger Patzelt
Index
More information

organizations (cont.)
emotional capability of, 173–175, 179–181, 305–306 emotional intelligence enhanced by, 183 emotionally capable, 156 feelings of ownership in, 235–236 grief recovery and, learning through, 169–170 learning resources in, 53–54 mindfulness in, 44–45, 50–51, 54 normalization of failure by, 155–156 positive emotions within, 241–242 positive feedback within, 242–243 self-compassion in, 290
self-kindness in, 48–49, 53 support groups in, 176–177
oscillation orientation, in grief recovery, 162–163, 165

performance thresholds expectations of future performance as, 82–86
heterogeneity in, 82–92
persistence with poorly-performing firms and, 294–297
for termination of business, 80–92 performance-monitoring systems, 122 persistence, with poorly-performing firms, 290–297. See also procrastination, in termination of business academic implications of, 100–103 anticipatory grief and, 94–96, 100, 102 availability of alternative career options and, 296–297 collective efficacy and, 297
consistency norms and, 89–90, 105, 295–296 emotional costs of, 94–96, 101–103, 106–107
extrinsic motivation for, 90–92, 104–106
financial costs of, 79–80, 93–94, 101–102
individual biases as influence on, 295–296 managerial implications for, 103–107
performance threshold-setting to avoid, 294–297 uncertainty of future performances and, 294 personal growth
from negative emotions, 36–37
from self-compassion, 39
portfolio management, 143–147 positive bias, against failed entrepreneurs, 202–203 positive emotions
bouncing back from failure and, 257–259
common humanity and, 55–56
from feelings of ownership, 235–236
learning from failure and, 57–58
level of negative emotions influenced by, 246–248 managerial implications and, 63–64
mindfulness and, 56
in narratives of failure, 239–242, 246–248, 319–320
narratives of failure and, 239–242, 246–248
at organizational level, 241–242
research implications for, 61–62
self-compassion and, 55–58, 289–290
self-kindness and, 55
sports coaches and, 258–259
undo principle and, 57
undoing mechanisms of, 240 positive feedback, 242–244 positive self-image, 219
procrastination, in termination of business, 77–80, 292–293 anticipated negative emotions and, 78–79 availability of career opportunities and, 86–87 causes of failure and, 79
defined, 77
emotional costs as influence on, 94–96, 101–103, 106–107
extrinsic motivation for, 90–92, 104–106
financial costs of, 79–80, 93–94, 101–102
justification of previous entrepreneurial decisions and, 86–88
managerial implications for, 103–107
personal investment as factor in, 86–87 underlying mechanisms for, 78
profitability
in narratives of failure, 248–249
positive feedback from, 243
project failures. See also bouncing back, from failure academic implications for, 183–184 collective negative emotions from, 236–239 communication as result of, 232–233 emotional response to, 274–283
grief after, 7
grief recovery and, 167–169

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-12927-6 - Learning from Entrepreneurial Failure: Emotions, Cognitions, and Actions
Dean A. Shepherd, Trenton Williams, Marcus Wolfe and Holger Patzelt
Index
More information

innovation influenced by, 231–232 interpreting information about, 166–167
as loss, 146–147
loss orientation and, 168–169
managers and, 30–31
motivational consequences of, 16–20
narratives for, 244–246
need for autonomy and, 12–14
need for competence and, 8–12
need for relatedness and, 14–16
negative emotional reactions to, 7–8, 231–232, 244–246
normalization of, 160
NPD and, 231
performance spirals as result of, 231–232 physical consequences of, 20
R&D and, 138–139
restoration orientation and, 168–169
scanning and, 164–165
self-determination theory and, 7–8
social impacts of, 15–16 social stigma from, 199–200
well-being influenced by, 11–12 project termination, delaying of articulation opportunities as result of, 134–135 benefits from, 298–302
codification of information as result of, 135–136 as creeping death, 125–131, 142–143
by entrepreneurship organizations, 116 financial incentives for, 121 grief while, 301–302
as learning experience, 299–302
negative emotions from, 125–131 performance-monitoring systems for, 122 portfolio management implications from, 143–147 positive outcomes from, 132–133 redeployment of individuals during, 300–301 reflection during, 302
reflection opportunities as result of, 134 psychological needs, 274–283. See also specific needs

R&D. See research & development reflection, 134
social stigma and, 308–311
while delaying project termination, 302 relatedness. See need for belongingness research & development (R&D)
learning from failure and, 119, 139–141
need for autonomy and, 13
project failures and, 138–139
resources. See learning resources restoration orientation
in grief recovery, 162–163, 168–169
negative emotions and, 166
project failures and, 168–169
rituals, coping through, 178
ruminations, 165

scanning
grief recovery and, 164–165
in sensemaking activities, 163–164
Schramm, Stephan, 198
self-blame, 217–218
self-compassion
through broad perception, 45–51
from Buddhist philosophy, 39–41
as buffer against negative events, 39–40
cognition and, 285–286
common humanity as component of, 42–43
connectedness and, 39
constructs of, 37–38
curiosity and, 39
ego-defensive mechanisms and, 285–289
emotion and, 286
eudaimonic approach to, 37
failure and, 39
happiness and, 39
learning from failure and, 37–55, 284–290
as learning model, 37–55
managers and, 63
mindfulness and, 43–45
optimism and, 39
organization theory and, 38–41
organizational use of, 290
personal growth from, 39
positive emotions and, 55–58, 289–290
research implications for, 59–61
resources for, 51–54
self-kindness as component of, 41–42
self-concept, 37
self-criticism
as buffer against negative events, 39–40
self-kindness and, 41

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-12927-6 - Learning from Entrepreneurial Failure: Emotions, Cognitions, and Actions
Dean A. Shepherd, Trenton Williams, Marcus Wolfe and Holger Patzelt
Index
More information

self-determination theory
  firm failures and, 27–28
  motivation and, 27–30
  project failure and, 7–8
self-efficacy, 89–90
  coping, 174–175
self-enhancement values, 92–93
self-esteem, 217–218
self-image. See also negative self-image
  need for competence and, 10
  positive, 219
self-kindness, 41–42
  broad perception about, 46
  failure and, 41
  learning from failure with, 287
  as learning resource, 51–53
  in organizations, 48–49, 53
  positive emotions and, 55
  self-criticism and, 41
self-realization, eudaimonic approach to, 36–37
self-verification theory failed entrepreneurs and, 216–222 impression management and, 214–216
  negative self-image and, 219
  positive self-image and, 219 tenets of, 218–219
  well-being enhanced by, 310–311
self-worth, failure as influence on, 37
sensemaking activities
  grief recovery and, 162–164, 169–170
  interpreting in, 163–164
  learning in, 163–164
  through narratives of failure, 234–250, 261–262
  plausibility in, 235
  purpose of, 234–235
  scanning in, 163–164
Shepherd, Dean, 1–6
social contexts
  for emotional development, 247
  for emotional intelligence, 171–173
  for failure, 4–5
  for stigma, 313–314
social interactions
  emotional intelligence as influence on, 172
  in grief recovery, 171–173
social stigma
  attribution theory and, 202
  through bankruptcy laws, 207–209 from business failures, 196–199 concealment of failure and, 309–310
  cultural sensemaking of, 210–212
  distribution of, 195
  entrepreneurial ability and, 212–214
  for entrepreneurs, 196–203, 212–214, 222–225 European context for, 196–199 evaluation of failure and, 204–206 for failed entrepreneurs, 196–203, 212–214, 222–225 about failure, 5, 308
  in Germany, 211–212
  historical overview of, 194 impression management for, 214–216, 314–316
  in Japan, 209
  jumping ship strategy and, 215–216
  long-term implications of, 222–225
  managers and, long-term implications for, 222–225 negative consequences of, 194–195 from project failure, 199–200 for project team members, 199–200 recognition of vulnerability and, 308–309 regional factors, 206–214, 311–313 self-blame and, 217–218 self-esteem and, 217–218 self-reflection and, 308–311 self-verification and, 216–222 singling out process, 201–202
  social context for, 313–314
  in US, 209
  visibility context for, 209–210
  well-being and, 307–316
stigma. See social stigma support. See family support support groups, for coping, 176–177 teams. See also coaches, in sports

  learning from failure for, 141–143
  social stigmatization of individuals, 199–200 timing of project termination and, perspectives on, 141–143 termination of business. See also procrastination, in termination of business; project termination, delaying of

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-12927-6 - Learning from Entrepreneurial Failure: Emotions, Cognitions, and Actions
Dean A. Shepherd, Trenton Williams, Marcus Wolfe and Holger Patzelt
Index
More information

environmental complexity as influence on, 82–83, 103–104 environmental dynamism and, 83–84, 104 environmental munificence and, 84–86 factors for, 3
learning before, 131–134
as loss, 146–147
performance thresholds for, 80–92 portfolio management implications of, 143–147
social stigma from, 196–199
speed of, 120–123
timing, of project termination, 122–123 team members' perspectives on, 141–143

under-performing firms, 75–76
undo principle, 57
undoing mechanisms, 240
United States (US), social stigma in, 209 values, of entrepreneurs, 92–93 openness as, 93

self-enhancement, 92–93
von Unruh, Attila, 198
vulnerability, 308–309

well-being hedonistic psychology perspective and, 36
need for autonomy and, 14
need for competence and, 11–12
negative self-image and, 220
self-verification theory and, 310–311
social stigma and, 307–316

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org