

Contents

List of Contributors	page vii
Introduction: The Enduring Significance of Jackson's Knowledge Argument Sam Coleman	1
1 The Knowledge Argument Is an Argument about Knowledge Tim Crane	15
2 There's Nothing about Mary David Rosenthal	32
3 Acquaintance, Parsimony, and Epiphenomenalism Brie Gertler	62
4 Acquaintance and Phenomenal Concepts David Pitt	87
5 The Knowledge Argument Meets Representationalism about Colour Experience Frank Jackson	102
6 The Mary-Go-Round Galen Strawson	118
7 Concept Mastery, Social Externalism, and Mary's New Knowledge Torin Alter	141
8 Mary's Powers of Imagination Amy Kind	161
9 The Knowledge Argument Is Either Indefensible or Redundant Tom McClelland	180
10 Grounding, Analysis, and Russellian Monism Philip Goff	198

vi Contents

11	Phenomenal Knowledge Why : The Explanatory Knowledge Argument against Physicalism Hedda Hassel Mørch	223
12	The Knowledge Argument and the Self Robert J. Howell	254
13	What Uninformed Mary Can Teach Us Michael Tye	269
	Bibliography	281
	Index	299