

UNEVEN URBANSCAPE

Uneven Urbanscape takes a new theoretically grounded view of how society produces and reproduces ethnoracial economic inequality. Drawing on empirically rich documentation and quantitative analysis utilizing multiple data sources, including the US Bureau of the Census, Ong and González assess the patterns, causes, and consequences of urban spatial disparities, specifically in home ownership, employment, and education. They focus on the global city of Los Angeles in order to examine outcomes across small geographic units that approximate neighborhoods and places, and to analyze the location-specific effects of geographic access and isolation within the region. Using a mix of micro-level data and aggregated statistics, Uneven Urbanscape provides one of the most comprehensive understandings of urban ethnoracial disparities and inequalities in recent decades.

PAUL M. ONG is Research Professor and Director of the Center for Neighborhood Knowledge at UCLA's Luskin School of Public Affairs.

SILVIA R. GONZÁLEZ is Assistant Director of the Center for Neighborhood Knowledge at UCLA's Luskin School of Public Affairs.

CAMBRIDGE STUDIES IN STRATIFICATION ECONOMICS: ECONOMICS AND SOCIAL IDENTITY

Series Editor

William A. Darity Jr., Duke University

The Cambridge Studies in Stratification Economics: Economics and Social Identity series encourages book proposals that emphasize structural sources of group-based inequality, rather than cultural or genetic factors. Studies in this series will utilize the underlying economic principles of self-interested behavior and substantive rationality in conjunction with sociology's emphasis on group behavior and identity formation. The series is interdisciplinary, drawing authors from various fields, including economics, sociology, social psychology, history, and anthropology, with all projects focused on topics dealing with group-based inequality, identity, and economic well-being.

Acknowledgments

The research for this book was funded in part by a generous grant from the John Randolph and Dora Haynes Foundation, and funding and in-kind support from the UCLA Center for Neighborhood Knowledge. Additional support came from the Ford Foundation, the UCLA Ziman Center for Real Estate, and the Asian American Studies Center, which supported the background research on wealth and housing. Preliminary analyses were conducted while Paul M. Ong was the Thomas Tam Visiting Professor and ARC Fellow at the CUNY Graduate Center, and Visiting Scholar at the Haas Institute, University College Berkeley. The UCLA Eugene V. Cota Robles Fellowship and the UCLA Graduate Research Mentorship Program provided support for Silvia's participation.

We would like extend a special thanks to a number of people who provided critical help and assistance: Chhandara Pech, Alycia Cheng, Justine Pascual, Zacharias Gardea, Norman de la Fuente, Andre Comandon, Melany De La Cruz-Viesca, Lisa-Beth Harris, and Marsha Blum. We are deeply indebted to our colleagues and friends at UCLA and the Luskin School of Public Affairs, who have provided a challenging and stimulating intellectual environment. We appreciate the encouragement we received, despite multiple delays, from Professor Sandy Darity, Karen Maloney, and Rachel Blaifeder at Cambridge University Press. Most of all, we are grateful for our family's patience and love, without which this book would have been impossible.
