

Contents

Acknowledgements	page vii
List of Abbreviations	viii
Introduction	I
PART I THE VEIL OF SPECIES	II
1 Through Species to the World: Aquinas and Henry of Ghent	13
1.1 Cognition, Change and Assimilation	14
1.2 Apprehending Species and the Directness of Cognition	20
1.3 Species and Scepticism	25
1.4 Henry of Ghent	29
2 Perception without Intermediaries: Olivi's Critique of Species	40
2.1 Challenging the Species Theory	41
2.2 Augustinian Alternatives	53
2.3 Olivi's Direct Realism	57
2.4 Olivi on Representational Content	64
2.5 Conceptual Cognition: The Limits of Olivi's Direct Realism	71
3 Direct Realism about Perception and Beyond: Auriol and Ockham	81
3.1 Auriol on Perception	82
3.2 Auriol on Conceptual Thought	87
3.3 Ockham on Seeing without Species	99
3.4 Acts of the Imagination and Their Objects	110
3.5 Thinking of Universals	114
PART II THE VEIL OF CARTESIAN IDEAS	121
4 Transformations of Cartesianism: Malebranche and Arnauld	125
4.1 Descartes	126
4.2 Malebranche's Intervention	143
4.3 The Vision in God	148

vi	Contents
4.4	Arnauld and the Charge of Idealism	155
4.5	Arnauld's Alternative	159
5	Ideas and Objects in Desgabets's Radical Cartesianism	169
5.1	Problems from Foucher	171
5.2	Desgabets and Direct Realism	174
5.3	Desgabets's Intentionality Principle	176
5.4	Reinterpreting the Essential Being	186
5.5	A Destruction of Pyrrhonism?	193
6	The Solid Philosophy of John Sergeant	198
6.1	Cartesianism as a Religious Threat	199
6.2	Sergeant's Critique	205
6.3	Sergeant's Way of Notions	211
6.4	Things in the Mind	214
	PART III REPRESENTATIONS AND SCEPTICISM	221
7	From Representation to Object	223
7.1	Unused Representations	224
7.2	Ontological Problems	227
7.3	Ontology and the Objective Being	235
8	Criteriological Problems	238
8.1	Epistemic Optimism	239
8.2	Can We Trust Our Ideas?	246
	Conclusion	255
	Bibliography	260
	Index	275