CONTENTS

FOREWORD \hspace{1cm} PAGE ix

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS \hspace{1cm} xii

CHAPTER I. LANGO RELIGION & MAGIC \hspace{1cm} 1–34

Preliminary remarks (pp. 1–2)

I. The Premises of Lango Religion \hspace{1cm} 2–22

A. Jok is a neutral power permeating the universe, neither well nor badly disposed towards mankind, unless made use of by man (p. 3). Distinction between religion, white magic and black magic (p. 3).

C. Phenomena affecting society, the vicissitudes of which, while familiar, cannot be predicted or controlled empirically, are associated with jok power (p. 6): 1. Natural phenomena, such as rain, hail, locusts and lightning (p. 6). 2. Sickness and disease (p. 6). 3. Misfortunes (p. 11).

F. Jok power is associated with every human being as that part of him to which we usually apply the term spirit or soul (p. 16): 1. The nature of the tigo and ochen (p. 16). 2. How the tigo afflicts living people (p. 19). 3. Dreams (p. 21).

II. The Practice of Lango Religion: White Magic \hspace{1cm} 22–29

Definition of White Magic (p. 22). What White Magic tries to achieve (p. 23). The medicine man or ajueka (p. 23). Psychological aspects of healing (p. 26). The medicine man in relation to tribal ceremonies (p. 27). Bateson's categories of analysis (p. 28).

III. The Practice of Lango Religion: Black Magic \hspace{1cm} 29–34

Definition of Black Magic (p. 29). The Sorcerer or ajok (p. 29). Black Magic is approved when used against a criminal (p. 30). Suggestion and poison are the basis of Black Magic (p. 31). Some Black Magic processes (p. 31). Summary (p. 33).

CHAPTER II. LANGO GROUPS & CEREMONIES \hspace{1cm} 35–62

Co-operation is essential for the preservation of Man (p. 35). Lango groups standardise the individual to the pattern of Lango culture (p. 36). Early history of the Lango (p. 36). The Lango groups (p. 38). The Tribe (p. 39). The Clan (p. 40). The Etoge, or religious group (p. 48). The Jo Doggola, or lineage group (p. 52). The Family (p. 53). The Wat, or group of relations (p. 54).
VI

CONTENTS

Neo, or group of the mother’s brothers with their families (p. 54). The Okeo, or sister’s family (p. 56). The spheres of influence of the Root and the Jago (p. 56). The Village (p. 58). The Wang Tiek, or cultivating group (p. 58). The Yi Atea Dyang, or members of one cattle kraal (p. 59). Status Groups (p. 60). Age Grades (p. 61).

CHAPTER III. CEREMONIES CONCERNING THE TRIBE 63–80

The three tribal ceremonies protected the Tribe from invasion and drought (p. 63). (a) Apanu, or final burial rite (p. 63). (b) Esoor, or initiation ceremony (p. 66). (c) Myel akot, or rain dance ceremony (p. 73). Reasons for the disappearance of the tribal ceremonies (p. 80).

CHAPTER IV. CEREMONIES CONCERNING THE CLAN 81–110

The Clan is the most important group (p. 81). The serial and reciprocal nature of Clan ceremonies (p. 81). (a) Marriage (p. 82). (b) Tepro lau, or tying on the marriage skin (p. 83). (c) Kiro dako, or sprinkling the wife (p. 88). (d) Yeo lyeto, or bringing the ornaments (p. 88). (e) Koyo chogo, or biting the bone (p. 91). (f) Ngolo ki dyel, or judging by means of a goat (p. 94). (g) Lako sango atina, or washing the child’s eyes (p. 96). (h) Myel arat, or twin dance (p. 97). (i) Kiro dako ma nyuolo rudi, or sprinkling a woman who has borne twins (p. 99). (j) Burial of premature twins (p. 102). (k) Chibo adit me atehere, or installing a Clan chief (p. 109). (l) Blood-brotherhood (p. 105). (m) Tiko dono ma to, or burying a dead man (p. 106). (n) Neko dyang me wi lyel, or killing a bull for the grave (p. 108). Conclusion (p. 109).

CHAPTER V. CEREMONIES CONCERNING THE ETAGO 111–126

The Etago controls the tigo, or spirits of the dead (p. 111). (a) Achuban me genye tol, or December for loosening the string (p. 111). (b) Gato too, or laying a spell on sickness (p. 115). (c) Neko dyang me two, or killing a bull for sickness (p. 121). (d) Gato chogo, or digging up the bones (p. 122). (e) Rubo koti, or mixing the seed (p. 123). Conclusion (p. 126).

CHAPTER VI. CEREMONIES CONCERNING THE FAMILY 127–144

(a) Kiro bang imat, or sprinkling at the mother-in-law’s (p. 127). (b) Eye moye maro, or carrying flour to the son-in-law (p. 128). (c) Neko dyang me maro, or killing a bull for the mother-in-law (p. 129). (d) Birth (p. 130). (e) Ato akser, or ritual child (p. 135). (f) Kiro dano, or sprinkling a man (p. 137). (g) Neko dyang me woro papa, or killing a bull to honour one’s father (p. 138). (h) Migrating to a new house (p. 139). (i) First fruits (p. 139). (j) Sterility and impotency (p. 140). (k) Gato je, or laying a spell on an animal (p. 141). (l) Lamo tong te tue, or blessing a spear for sickness (p. 144).

CHAPTER VII. CEREMONIES CONCERNING TERRITORIAL GROUPS 145–152

The Lango political system (p. 145). (a) When lightning strikes a house (p. 146). (b) Ryemo tuo, or the driving away of disease (p. 147). (c) When opening a new wu dyang, or cattle kraal (p. 148). (d) The hunt (p. 148).
CONTENTS

CHAPTER VIII. CEREMONIES CONCERNING MEDICINE MEN

153–176

The ceremonies of the medicine men are less stereotyped (p. 153). (a) Exorcising of jok nam (p. 153). (b) Mako tipo, or catching a spirit (p. 155). (c) Kiwonyo, or extraction (p. 157). (d) Visits to the villages of Atoro and Oming (p. 162). (e) Curing by means of jok nam (p. 165). (f) Curing by means of jok lange (p. 166). (g) Some other ajuekan (p. 167). (h) Dreams (p. 169). (i) Magic against fire (p. 172). (j) The abila and the house of jok (p. 172). (k) Miscellaneous magical beliefs (p. 175).

INDEX and GLOSSARY of LANGO TERMS and MATERIAL CULTURE

177