

Contents

---

Acknowledgments	page ix
Introduction	1
Death in theory	5
Death in the clinic	9
The structure of the book	12
Chapter 1: Against death: Freud and the question of death's psychic presence	15
The case against representation	15
The desiring machine (hits the wall of reality)	24
The I of the beholder	26
The case against fear	30
Doubt and hesitation	37
Chapter 2: "Most of the time life appears so uncertain to me": Death as a concern in Freud's life	40
Chapter 3: The dream of death: The Interpretation of Dreams	46
Opening: Death representable and irrepresentable	46
Dying the death of the other	50
Non vixit	52
Dying in one's dreams	56
Finally he melted away	56
A castle by the sea	59
Autopsy-choanalyzing oneself	62
How much time?	64
I must not go yet? A visit to the underworld	67
Concern for others	67
Limping, pale, and seriously ill. Irma	69
Chapter 4: To dream, perchance to die: A further exploration of The Interpretation of Dreams	75
Death and ambition	75
The man with the beard	76
Non vixit	77
Rome	78
"I must not delay any longer"	81
	v

vi	Contents
	Late in life	82
	The Botanical Monograph	83
	Method in the madness	85
	The "1851 and 1856" dream	86
	Aspire – expire	87
	Death, an absurdity	89
	Father on his death-bed	90
	Death: Between denial and recognition	92
	For dust thou art	93
	Night of the living dead	97
	Anxiety and wish	98
	Conclusions: Death and dreams	101
Chapter 5:	Death and anxiety	105
Chapter 6:	A struggle with the concept of death: "Thoughts for the Times on War and Death"	112
	Giving death the place which is its due	114
	But what is the place which is death's due?	117
	The highest stake in the game of living	120
	The direct encounter with death	124
	The influence of war	126
	Freud's hesitation	127
Chapter 7:	Driving death away: Freud's theory of the death drive	131
	The death drive and death	133
	Dying your own death	142
	Critiques of the death drive	146
	Recasting the death drive as an existential concept	149
	The death drive, Freud, and death: Further considerations	152
Chapter 8:	Death and culture: Death as a central motif in Freud's cultural and literary analyses	155
	The dead and us	155
	Immortality	155
	The uncanny	158
	Totem and Taboo	160
	Transient lives	161
	Further thoughts on "Thoughts"	162
	On Transience	164
Chapter 9:	Avoidance and reduction of death in psychoanalysis	170
	Reduction	170
	Generalization and non-specification	173
	Sexualization of death	175
	Rendering death a wish and activating the subject in death	176
	Concretizing death	177
	Pathologization of the psychic reaction to death	178
	A negative moral judgment	180
	Overlooking death	182

Contents	vii
Intermezzo: Dying without death—Mourning and Melancholia	183
Treating death as a problem of the ill and elderly	189
“So what?”	189
Chapter 10: The post-Freudians in the labyrinth of death	191
The Kleinians	191
The Kleinian understanding of the fear of death	193
The theory’s application	195
Erikson	197
Kohut	201
Jung	204
Winnicott	206
Chapter 11: Lacan	208
The symbolic, the imaginary, and the real	209
The symbolic	209
The imaginary	211
The real	213
Tragic paths and the death drive	215
The nature of desire	216
Das Ding	218
The concrete fear of death	219
Conclusion: Talking about death	220
Chapter 12: Attempts at reconciliation	222
Rank and Becker	222
Piven	224
Lifton	225
Death equivalents	226
Yalom and clinical approaches	228
Facing the abyss and surviving it	230
Existential psychoanalysis: Handling otherness	232
Bridges to one’s past	233
Chapter 13: Sources of the clash: The conflict between analytic ideas and concern with death	236
Where does the problem lie? Some analytic tenets that hinder the integration of death	236
The deterministic-mechanistic model	237
The focus on the past	238
The detachability of affect and content	238
The interdependence of psychic events	239
The instinctual model	240
The focus on presence	240
Explaining the external in terms of the internal	241
The analytic perspective on reality	242
The focus on relational aspects	243
Recoiling from the “high”: Against philosophy	243
Generality versus idiosyncrasy I: Universal explanations	245
Therapeutic pessimism	246

viii Contents

	Aspects of death that lie—or do they? Beyond psychoanalysis	247
	Death and the meaning of life	247
	Analytic sensibilities helpful to the integration of death	248
	“Freudian pessimism”	249
	Truth and illusion	249
	Generality versus idiosyncrasy II: Idiosyncratic explorations	249
Chapter 14:	Death in life	253
	Death in praxis	254
	The psychic life of death	257
	Death anxiety and the thought of death	260
	On not knowing death: Defenses and distortions	261
	Death as a dynamic absence	265
	To be with not-to-be	274
	Knowledge of death and the encounter with it	276
Final thoughts		279
References		286
Index		299