

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction: The work of learning and teaching literacies	1
Old basics and new	1
New literacies, new schools, new teachers	8
How this book is organised	12
Part A: The ‘why’ of literacies	17
Chapter 1: Literacies on a human scale	19
Three globalisations	20
First languages	20
Starting to write	26
New media, new literacies	32
Chapter 2: The purposes of literacies	38
Why literacies?	39
Literacies for work	40
Literacies for citizenship	49
Literacies for contemporary community life	54
Part B: Approaches to literacies	65
Chapter 3: Literacies pedagogy	67
Literacies pedagogy in action	68
Things you do to know	72
Chapter 4: Didactic literacy pedagogy	84
On the paradigms of literacies	85
The contents of literacy knowledge – traditional topics and approaches	89
Synthetic phonics	89

The organisation of literacy curriculum – following the syllabus, the textbook and the teacher	102
Applying objective thinking	103
Learners doing literacy – copying, repetition, memorisation and applying rules	104
The social relationships of literacy learning – authority in language knowledge	111
Exploring connections between the ‘knowledge processes’ and didactic pedagogy	114
Chapter 5: Authentic literacy pedagogy	120
The contents of literacy knowledge – authentic meanings	121
The organisation of literacy curriculum – process pedagogy and natural language growth	131
Learners doing literacy – active learning and experiential immersion	135
The social relationships of literacy learning – self-expression in a learner-centred pedagogy	138
Chapter 6: Functional literacy pedagogy	146
The contents of literacy knowledge – learning the genres of school success and social power	147
The organisation of literacy curriculum – reading genre models and writing within generic frameworks	157
Learners doing literacy – genre scaffolds and independent construction	165
The social relationships of literacy learning – benefits of learning powerful text forms	168
Exploring connections between the ‘knowledge processes’ and functional literacy pedagogy	173
Chapter 7: Critical literacies pedagogy	176
The contents of literacy knowledge – learning about social differences, and popular and new media cultures	177
The organisation of literacy curriculum – a focus on voice and agency	188
Learners doing literacy – engagement with real-world issues and active citizenship	194
The social relationships of literacy learning – literacies as a tool for taking control of one’s life	196
Part C: The ‘what’ of literacies	209
Chapter 8: Literacies as multimodal designs for meaning	211
Meaning-making in representation and communication	212
Meaning-making as a design process	220

	Contents	vii
Multimodality	228
Design elements	238
Multimodal writing using new media	243
Chapter 9: Making meaning by reading	248
Modes of meaning	249
In the written mode: learning to read	250
Working at reading	253
Reading as the design of meaning	262
Connecting the sounds of speech with the visuals of writing	266
Developing vocabulary, comprehension and critical reading	275
Chapter 10: Making meaning by writing	281
Learning to write	282
Working at writing	284
A traditional grammar of English	289
Language choices and change types	294
Transformational-generative grammar	295
Systemic-functional grammar	300
The writing process	318
Chapter 11: Making visual meanings	334
Visual representation and communication	335
Perceptual and mental images	341
The visual design process	349
Visual design analysis	358
Paths to synaesthesia: making connections between visual and other modes of meaning	359
Chapter 12: Making spatial, tactile and gestural meanings	372
Learning through spatial, tactile and gestural meanings	373
Spatial meanings	373
Tactile meanings	379
Gestural meanings	386
Paths to synaesthesia: making connections between spatial, tactile, gestural and other modes of meaning	390
Chapter 13: Making audio and oral meanings	401
Learning audio and oral meanings	402
Audio meanings	403
Oral meanings	406
Paths to synaesthesia: crossovers between oral and written meanings	414

Part D: The ‘how’ of literacies	427
Chapter 14: Literacies to think and to learn	429
Literacies and cognitive development	430
Literacies for learning	439
‘Constructivist’ theories of learning	440
Chapter 15: Literacies and learner differences	466
The effects of difference in literacies learning	467
From group demographics to the complexities of learner differences	475
Differentiated literacies instruction 1: the idea of design	478
Differentiated literacies instruction 2: multimodality	479
Differentiated literacies instruction 3: knowledge processes	480
Differentiated literacies instruction 4: alternative navigation paths	481
Differentiated literacies instruction 5: creating a learning environment of productive diversity	482
Age differences and literacies learning	483
Different language backgrounds and literacies learning	487
Chapter 16: Literacies standards and assessment	496
Literacies standards	497
Literacies assessment	502
New media, new learning, new assessments	509
Literacies assessment technologies	515
References	524
Index	545