Index

action research, 39, 41, 54–8 cycle of, 40, 54
evidence informing decision-making in, 43, 46 history of, 39
research questions, 42, 45, 54 whole-school approaches to, 59
agency
and change, 159
of students, 10, 17, 157–76
of teachers, 17, 157–76
assessment, 11, 27, 158
formative assessments, 152 individual diagnostic approach, 139 and planning, 135
self-assessment and peer assessment, 139, 168
summative assessments, 152 tools for, 137
Australian Association for the Teaching of English, 3, 9, 59
Australian Curriculum and Assessment Authority, 9
Australian Institute of Teaching and School Leadership, 9
professional standards, 24, 34, 100
Australian Literacy Educators’ Association, 3, 9, 59

Barnes, Douglas, 7–8, 10
BBC Skillwise activities, 74
Beauchamp, Catherine, 14
Benchmark Assessment System, 137 bilingualism, 92, 130
’blind spots’ with respect to professional practice, 20, 24, 108, 114 blogs, 45, 51, 54, 57
and intercultural understanding, 95
Kidblog, 75, 78
parents’ access to, 53, 57
value of, 172
Bourdieu, Pierre, 119
’capital’, 119, 121, 122
’habitus’, 119, 120, 124

CAFE assessment system, 137 capital, cultural, social, economic and emotional, 119, 121, 122 children, 20–22
attitudes towards schooling, 20, 141
’deficit’ constructions of, 22, 84, 101 diverse cultures of, 21, 84, 88, 118 sharing and listening to each other, 11 see also students children of immigrants, 30, 86, 131 children with disabilities additional activities at home, 104, 105, 107 assessment against the same standards as other students, 106 assessment of language and literacy needs, 106, 110, 113 development of confidence and skills, 102–7 Down Syndrome, 102
expectation of academic achievement, 102, 106 extra funding for education, 101, 105
hearing loss, 107–13
involvement of parents and therapists in education, 105, 108, 109 participation in all activities, 106 pragmatic skills, 112 sense of achievement and progress, 104 strategies for the whole class, 114 choose-your-own-adventure activity, 65–9 children’s suggestions for, 68 multimodal elements, 68, 69 classrooms communication practices in, 12–13 as spaces for collaboration, 65 as spaces for social interaction, 10, 63–72
cochlear implants, 107, 109
Soundfield system, 109, 109

collaboration
in action research, 39
advantages of, 28
among teachers, 6, 47
communities of inquiry, 41–7 communities of learners, 47–53, 77 embracing strengths in, 173 inclusion of parents in, 57 communities of learners (cont.)
  teachers in, 159
  and trust, 173
  communities of practice, 38 communities, ways with words of, 21 community building, 14
  community centres
    homework and, 124
    as literary spaces, 124–5
    purposes of, 124
  community literacies, 16
  comprehension, 45
    concept of, 47
    and digital tools, 45
    processes and strategies for teaching, 146 testing and recording of, 46 creative non-fiction ethnographic genre stories, 5
  critical thinking, 2
  cultural identity, 94
  cultural resources and texts, 85–90 cultural sensitivity, 86 cultural understanding, 33 curriculum, 8, 74, 158
    accessibility of, 137
    achievement standards, 151 compliance with, 27, 149
    and intercultural understanding, 88
    and ‘Kidspeak’, 135–6
    and learning goals, 72
    teaching to, 27
    translation into student-friendly language, 135–6

Deakin University, 4
  digital games, 64
  digital literacies, 12, 15, 47, 71 digital technologies, and engagement
  of students, 64
  see also ICT, technology disability, discrimination on the grounds of, 100
discrimination, 100
  see also racism
discussion in classrooms, 20–2, 28
Down Syndrome, 102
  characteristics of, 104, 105

‘Earth, Space and Beyond’ integrated studies unit, 163–9 ‘Burning questions’, 166 concept of synthesis, 163–4 evaluation of presentations, 167 educational goals
  equity and excellence, 100 successful, confident creative learners and active citizens, 100 expertise and authority, 161 families, types of capital available to, 119
Four Resources Model of reading, 145 ‘genre’ approaches to reading and writing, see ‘process’ or ‘genre’ approaches to ‘habitus’, 119, 120, 124
  ‘Harmony Day’ project, 85–90 focus on difference, 87 integrated literacy art project on, 87
  memory journals, 88, 90
  hearing loss, 107–13
  cochlear implants, 109
  impact on social skills, 112
  and speaking and listening goals, 111
  strategies for the whole class, 112
  and vocabulary, 110, 111
Heath, Bruce, 21–2
homework, 16, 117–32, 172 attitudes towards, 121–4 collaboration in, 126
  and community centres, 124 family resources for, 122 parents’ and children’s experiences
  of, 123
  purposes of, 122
  and the relationships between home and school, 118–19, 120–4, 126 responsibility for, 120–1, 124
  and scaffolding, 124
  social and cultural contexts of, 120, 124–7
  for ‘value adding’, 123
human rights, 89

ICT
  to engage children, 57
  incorporation of, 43, 49 to provide feedback, 55 teachers’ skills in, 54
  see also technology
Index

inclusive literacy education, 99–101, 113–14 challenges and rewards of, 101
whole-school approaches to, 109
Indigenous communities, 23–4, 32 ‘both ways’ learning, 33 learning around a mobile phone, 127–9 literacy resources in, 33 teaching and learning of literacy in, 127 inequalities, and education, 119 inference, capacity for, 42, 47 intercultural understanding, 16 awareness of, 91
creation of an environment for, 89 dominant culture, 87
embedding in the curriculum, 91, 94 inclusive values, 93
incorporation into literacy teaching, 83–98
memory journals, 88
and multicultural education, 86 use of literature to develop, 95, 97
whole-school approaches to, 90
Kidblog, 75, 79
‘Kidspeak’, 53, 135–6
knowledge, communal construction of, 33 knowledge creation, 162, 166, 169 language modes, 9
learning
capacity to make choices, 159, 172
collaborative, 48, 162
in digital times, 63–72
as a gift to children, 129 outside the classroom, 131 ownership of, 135
responsibility for, 159, 169, 174
situating learning, 127–30 social nature of, 70
social relations and, 160 of students and teachers, 41, 44 and teaching, 7
using technology to monitor, 72–7 willingness to experiment and take risks, 159 learning disabilities, assessment of, 101 learning strategies, meta-cognitive, 33 ‘Lights, Camera, Action!’ activity, 55–8 literacy
assessments of, 49, 50
barriers to, 23–5
community literacies, 117–32, 162
complexities of, 20–2, 118, 129
comprehension, 45, 46
concepts of, 69–72
critical analysis of a text, 96 debates about, 7–8, 141, 143
and digital tools, 161
domains of, 131
and the dominant culture, 118 expansion of, 71, 79
explicit teaching in, 33, 70, 142 genres of, 12, 47
in home, school, social and community spaces, 118 impact on a person’s life, 100
inclusive literacy education, 16, 99–101 integration of reading, writing, speaking and listening, 66 intercultural engagement in literacy education, 83–98 internalisation of information, 164 and making movies, 56
multimodality, 45, 47, 55–8
in out-of-school lives of students, 12, 21 politicisation of, 7
principles of literacy teaching and learning, 167 purposes for teaching, 32 scaffolding for, 75 selection of specific goals for, 49 as a sociocultural practice, 174 and standardised tests, 12 teachers’ judgements about, 49 and technology, 77–9
tensions and debates in, 140–8 ‘whole-language’ approach, 142
Literacy Support programs, 103, 144 meaning, 13, 42
see also comprehension
Melbourne Declaration on Educational Goals for Young Australians, 100 middle years learners, 140–1
characteristics of, 140
language and literacy of, 141 planning for learners of diverse backgrounds, 143–8

© in this web service Cambridge University Press

www.cambridge.org
Index

mindsets, 161–2, 174
expertise and authority is increasingly distributed and shared, 161 expertise and authority located in individuals and institutions, 161 multicultural education, and intercultural understanding, 86 multiculturalism, 84
multimodality, 64, 66, 70, 80
NAPLAN tests, 10, 25
administration of, 26
consequences of, 38
preparation for, 27
narratives, 5–7
patterns in, 68
understanding of, 70
new literacies, 12–13
participatory action research, see action research passionate affinity spaces, 126 pedagogy, 172
and choice, 167
‘growth’ pedagogy, 142
holistic, 31
inclusive, 158
opportunity for consolidation of skills, 167
and student agency, 162–3 turnaround pedagogies, 158 people with a disability, 100 planning, 7–8, 16, 27
and assessment, 135
collaborative, 26, 149, 152
contributions of individual teachers, 28 and curriculum, 134
dimensions of, 134
focus on learning, 133–56, 150
focus on students, 134, 135–40, 150, 153 group planning, 27
for learners of diverse backgrounds, 143–8 and the policy environment, 73 reflective and collaborative, 152 and sense of shared responsibility of teachers, 149
and student agency, 169–74
student participation in, 138, 153, 170, 172
for teaching, 133–56
working in professional learning teams, 148–53 planning meetings, 149, 151, 152–3
focus on learning, 151
reflective, collaborative discussion in, 150 sharing of practices and resources, 153 practitioner inquiry, 15, 37–62 language of, 40
whole-school approaches to, 48, 53, 54
primary and secondary schools, links between, 134, 140
Primary English Teaching Association Australia, 112 ‘process’ or ‘genre’ approaches to reading and writing, 141, 142, 148 criticisms of, 142, 146 professional associations, 17
professional autonomy, 4, 29 professional development, 33
one-off sessions, 38, 41 and professional learning, 38
professional identity, 31 professional knowledge, 9–11
professional learning, 37–62, 174 nature of, 41
as ongoing collaborative reflection, 38 and professional development, 38 sharing teachers’ work, 77 professional learning teams, 148–53 professional practice, complexities of, 20
professional standards, 24, 34, 100 Queensland, C2C instructional model, 2 racism, 85, 92, 93
use of language to exclude others, 92 reading, 5–7, 44, 144
see also comprehension, narrative Reading Recovery programs, 103, 144 regulation of education, 9, 27, 29 research, 2–4, 15, 37–62
whole-school approaches to, 39 researchers, and teachers, 3 respect, 86, 97 right to education, 100 in a preferred language, 130

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org scaffolding, 44, 75, 130
  effectiveness of, 130
  and homework, 124
school-based research, 38 school communities, expectations of, 28 schools cultures of, 47
  priorities of, 56
  racist behaviour in, 85, 92 relationships with the community, 127 relevance of, 64
  responsiveness to children’s cultures and literacy practices, 22 sister-school arrangements, 92 studies of Asia, 91
situated learning, 127–30 social media, 64
social networks, 70, 79 socio-economic status and parental education, 94 standardisation, 26, 27, 28
standardised testing, 10, 25, 34, 46, 134, 158 assumptions underpinning, 10 impact of, 12
  value of, 38
  see also NAPLAN tests
standards-based reforms, 34, 38
STELLA project, 9, 29–33
  research involved in, 29 stereotypes, 93
students
  achieving their potential, 100 choice and, 159, 172
  collaboration, 66, 126, 169, 172 control of their learning and monitoring of progress, 138 digital portfolios, 139
diverse cultures of, 143, 153 engagement of, 44, 46, 58, 141 expectations of, 151
feedback provided to, 52, 55, 57 funds of knowledge of, 69, 94–7, 118, 158, 162, 173 identification of at-risk students, 144 independent learning skills, 122, 124 independent work, 74, 75, 78 individual planners for use by, 138 involvement in planning, 138, 153, 170, 172 literacy contracts, 45
meaningfulness of activities, 129
middle years learners, 140–1 providing challenges for, 166 recording their achievements, 73 reflections on their learning, 52, 75, 152, 166 responsibility for their learning, 72, 76
self-assessment and peer-assessment, 139 setting learning goals, 72, 73, 74, 77
use of journals, 88
virtual schoolbags, 21, 120, 158
Studying the Effectiveness of Teacher Education, 4 synthesis, 163–4
teacher education
  effectiveness of, 4
  pre-service placements, 25 teachers, 75
  agency and confidence of, 14
  assessment, 50
  ‘blind spots’ with respect to professional practice, 20, 24, 108, 114 changing schools, 25
  as co-learners, 158
  collaboration, 49, 170
  on contracts, 25
  coordination roles of, 41 disposition to look for new challenges, 160 early career teachers, 4, 20, 25, 26
  effectiveness of, 25–8
  expectations of graduate teachers, 24 forms of compliance required of, 158 judgements of children’s literacy, 103–7 learning of, 13, 14, 25, 52, 109 monitoring of students’ learning, 76 observation of, 49, 51
  ongoing professional learning, 20 personalisation of the learning of their students, 74
  professional autonomy, 4, 29
  professional identity, 31
  professional learning, 77, 174
  professional standards, 24, 34
  proficiency, 24
  recording of students and teachers working, 46
  research, 174
teachers (cont.)
ad and researchers, 3
responsibility to identify children needing extra support, 144 self-reflection, 7, 32, 49, 52, 93, 97, 139, 174 sharing and learning experiences, 53, 57 social relationships and school contexts, 5 and specialist support staff for students with disabilities, 101 status as intellectuals, 38 understanding of literacy, 46
use of journals, 43, 58, 60
values and beliefs, 34, 84, 93
teacher’s aides, 101
teaching, 27, 39
based on students experience, 28 and the curriculum, 74
in digital times, 63–72
emphasis on participation, 162 judgements about quality, 5 and learning, 7
reasons for choice of career in, 29 sensitivity to cultural diversity, 85 tensions in, 13, 19–36
technology
different types of, 77
enabling teachers to engage in professional conversations, 78 impact on social relations, 169 and literacy, 77–9
netbook laptop computers, 160 range of uses of, 80
for recording classroom interactions, 46
as a supporting medium, 78
under-utilisation of, 42
‘Terry the tennis ball’, 66
The Little Refugee book, 95
trust, 173
Universal Declaration of Human Rights, 89
values and beliefs, 34, 84, 93
Victorian Education, E5 instructional model, 2
virtual schoolbags, 21
vocabulary, 69, 110, 111 ‘whole language’ approach to reading and writing, 142 primary and secondary schools, links between, 142 wikis, 54
choose-your-own-adventure, 65–9 worksheets, 20, 22
writing
assessment of, 10, 11
mirror writing, 105
as a process, 65
‘process’ or ‘genre’ approaches to, 141, 142
purposes of, 55
reluctance of ‘at-risk’ students to engage in, 146
as a whole-class activity, 66