Acknowledgements

We wish to thank the numerous researchers from across the globe who contributed their passion, thoughts and insights to this project, and especially we wish to thank them for their patience during this book’s long genesis. We especially want to recognize Steve Carpenter, Crawford Holling, Simon Levin, and Robert May who were particularly generous with their time in addressing our questions. David Roberts was an early discussant on the project. Jessica Parker provided critical comments on the manuscript that kept us grounded and the writing relevant. A special thanks to Paulette Goldweber of Wiley Press who was generous in allowing us access to the articles in the many fine journals they publish. We also thank our editors at Cambridge University Press, Dominic Lewis and Jenny van der Meijden, for their faith in the project and help moving the book from concept to reality.