

The Cambridge Handbook of Organizational Community Engagement and Outreach

This is an ideal reference for those looking to understand, study, and practice community engagement and outreach. It discusses the different ways individuals – including faculty, administrators, and management in organizations – engage in their communities.

It supplies case studies, best practices, and theoretical approaches to the study of community engagement. Scholars active in this field can use this book as an integration of the current knowledge concerning community engagement and as an inspiration for future research agendas.

While directing how to implement effective community engagement practices, it also facilitates the application of organizational theory to community engagement. This will appeal to academics who are interested in the theoretical background of community engagement.

JOSEPH A. ALLEN, PHD, is an associate professor of Industrial/Organizational (I/O) Psychology at the University of Nebraska Omaha (UNO). His research focuses on three major areas of inquiry, including the study of workplace meetings, organizational community engagement, and emotional labor in various service-related contexts. He directs the Center for Applied Psychological Services as well as the Volunteer Program Assessment at the University of Nebraska at Omaha (VPA-UNO).

RONI REITER-PALMON is the Varner Professor of Industrial/Organizational (I/O) Psychology and the Director of the I/O Psychology Graduate Program at University of Nebraska Omaha (UNO). She also directs the Center for Collaboration Science. Her research focuses on innovation in the workplace and the development and assessment of creativity, teamwork, and leadership skills. She has received UNO's College of Arts and Science Excellence in Research Award and the UNO Award for Distinguished Research and Creative Activity.
