

Index

- Acemoglu et al. (2016), 196
 Andhra Pradesh (AP) public services provision, 97 tax on cow urine, 2, 35, 73
 Appel, H., 44
 authoritarian regimes, see also conservative regimes (ConservAuth); liberal authoritarian regimes (LibAuth) administrative quality and fiscal performance, 39–43, 53–54
 classification of, 7, 25–27 corporate tax compliance, 81 corporate tax rates and effects of trade tax revenues on, 82–85 corporate taxes and less productive firms, 76 domestic tax reform strategies, 7, 26–27, 31–33, 34, 59, 193
 domestic tax revenue collection,
 post-liberalization, 36–39 economic growth and domestic revenues, 43t3.1b hypothesis on tax revenues, 33–34 impact on the poor of declining state revenues, 104–106
 liberalization and domestic tax revenue, hypothesis test, 44–57
 numbers of less productive firms, 87
 political factors for regime maintenance, 25–26, 30–31, 59
 political powers of business interests, 31 political responses to free trade, 187 public confidence in, 59 public goods provision, 33 public goods provision, perceptions of across regime type, 62, 107–108 regime types, 61–62
 state-owned enterprises (SOEs)
 revenues, 42–44
 tax compliance and government confidence among elites, 69–72 tax compliance and satisfaction with public goods, 62–68
 tax compliance,
 post-liberalization, 68–69
 tax concessions to loyalist groups, 25–26, 30, 59
 tax inspection rates across regimes, 87–91
 value-added tax (VAT), 33
 Baunsgaard, T. and Keen, M., 39–40
 Ben Ali, Zine El Abidine, 171, 175–176, 179–181
 Bernstein, T. and Lu, X., 148
 Bhagwati, J., 130
 Bhagwati, J. and Panagariya, A., 20
 black money, 23, 59
 Brazil, 30, 79–80
 bureaucracy quality, 17, 18, 137, 138
 Carstens, Agustín, 17
 Cheibub et al. (2009), 62
 China
 agricultural taxes, 137 anti-tax evasion measures, 144, 149–152 central government and tax collection, 149
 coercive tax collection, 32, 148–149, 189
 corporate income tax (CIT), 143, 144, 149, 151, 153
 dissatisfaction with public goods provision, 147–148, 154, 189 domestic tax reforms, 136, 140, 153 education spending in, 155–156, 156f8.8 export-oriented trade regime development, 140–142 government expenditure (percentage of GDP), 157
 healthcare expenditure, 147–148, 155–156, 156f8.8
 industrial taxes, 138

320 Index

- China (cont.)
 large infrastructure spending, 155 local government tax collection system, 137, 146–147 personal income tax (PIT), 142, 144, 151, 153
 political opposition to tax reforms, 136 property taxes, 152–153 public goods spending, 105 public goods spending and inequality reduction, 155–157, 156f8.8, 189 regressive tax system, 146, 154 resilience to revenue shocks, 136 revenue shock and tax reforms, 141–145 rural opposition to tax reforms, 146–149, 150
 state-owned enterprises (SOEs), 136, 138–139, 140–142, 153, 189
 tariff reductions, 140–141
 tax collection systems, 136, 137, 138, 143, 189–190 tax concession to loyalist groups, 137, 152–154 tax rates (comparison with India), 151–152 tax revenues, pre-liberalization, 137–139, 145f8.6 trade openness and total government revenues, 14–15 trade taxes, post-liberalization, 140–142, 163–164 trade taxes, pre-liberalization, 136, 138 value-added tax (VAT), 142, 143–144, 147, 149, 150, 153
- coercion
 coercive, in authoritarian regimes, 26–27, 31–32, 72, 76 coercive tax collection, China, 32, 148–149, 189 coercive tax compliance, China, 32, 148–149, 189 coercive tax compliance, in authoritarian regimes, 26–27, 31–32, 72 coercive tax compliance, Tunisia, 176–177, 189 coercive, Tunisia, 176–177, 189 and domestic tax reforms, 26–27, 31–32, 76
- Collier, P. and Dollar, D., 12
- confidence in government according to regime type, 60 authoritarian regimes, 59 of domestic tax reforms, 35 in liberal authoritarian regimes, 33, 34, 57
 low confidence–low revenue trap in democracies, 6, 59, 193–194, 196–197 loyalist confidence in authoritarian regimes, 59 public confidence in authoritarian regimes, 59 and public goods investment, Jordan, 173–175, 189, 190 and public goods investment, Tunisia, 189 and quasi-voluntary compliance with tax payments, 6, 26 and state stability, Tunisia, 179–181, 182–184, 190 tax compliance by elites, authoritarian regimes, 69–72 tax compliance and satisfaction with public goods, 62–68
- conservative regimes (ConservAuth), see also authoritarian regimes; China
 classification of, 25–27
 coercive tax collection, 26–27, 31–32, 72, 76
 political competition ratings (POLCOMP), 61–62 public goods provision, post-liberalization, 105–106 public goods provision and regime type, 62, 107–108 public goods spending and distributional impact of declining trade taxes, 108–113 public goods spending, post-revenue shock, 99
- corporate income tax (CIT)
 in China, 143, 144, 149, 151, 153
 in Jordan, 167
 in Tunisia, 167
- corporate tax rates
 in China, 143, 144, 149, 150, 153
 correlation between corporate revenues and corporate tax rates by regime, 82 as declining in developing economies, 76–77 domestic investment profiles and, 83–84 downward pressures on by large exporting firms, 5, 75, 77 effects of trade tax revenue on, 82–85
 in India, 120, 125, 128–129
 interest groups' influence over government policies on, 95 interests of more productive firms and, 80 international financial institutions (IFIs)' influences on, 83 less productive firms' influence over, 75–76, 81 less productive firms' influence over, democracies, 75–76, 78–79, 81, 95–96 reforms to in India, 120, 125, 128–129 resistance to by urban industrialists using political pressures, 77–78

Index

321

- tax concession demands from lower productive companies, 78–79
- tax incentives, 77
- and trade revenues, 84
- corporate tax revenues
 - corporate revenues and corporate tax rates across regimes, 82
 - corporate tax compliance, authoritarian regimes, 76, 81
 - effects of on corporate tax rates, 82–85
 - and greater market competition, post-liberalization, 75
 - IFI stance on, 73, 74, 75
 - increased market competition, post-liberalization, 75
 - key role of, 73
 - less productive firms, authoritarian regimes, 76
 - payment of by productive corporations, 80–81
 - revenue shocks and, 91–95
 - slow increase of in democracies, 74–75
 - tax concession demands from lower productive companies, 75–76
- democracies, liberalizing
 - administrative quality and fiscal performance, 39–43, 53–54
 - classification of, 6–7, 61
 - compliance incentives and tax reforms, 26, 195–196
 - confidence in a government, 193–194
 - domestic revenue mobilization, post-liberalization, 36–39
 - domestic tax reforms in, 6–7, 27–30, 59
 - domestic tax revenues, 40–42, 194
 - effects of trade tax revenues on corporate tax rates, 84
 - government stability, 25
 - hypothesis on tax revenues, 33–34
 - import substitution legacies and tax inspections, 91
 - less productive firms and corporate taxes, 75–76, 78–79, 81, 95–96
 - liberalization and domestic tax revenue, hypothesis test, 44–57
 - low confidence–low revenue trap in democracies, 6, 59, 193–194, 196–197
 - numbers of less productive firms, 87
 - political constraints on tax reforms, 186–188
 - political influence by business interests, 25, 27–28
 - post-liberalization low revenue trap, 191–193
 - provision of public goods, 7–8, 28
 - public goods provision, perceptions of across regime type, 62, 107–108
 - public goods spending and distributional impact of declining trade taxes, 108–113
 - quasi-voluntary compliance with tax reforms, 29–30
 - revenue problems for, 190–191
 - revenue shock, 186–187
 - revenue-raising capacities, 27, 27f2.1, 34
 - and state-owned enterprises revenues, 42–44
 - tax capacities of early liberalizers, 22
 - tax compliance according to regime type, 68–69
 - tax compliance enforcement, 195–196
 - tax compliance and government confidence among elites, 69–72
 - tax compliance and satisfaction with public goods, 62–68
 - tax inspection rates across regimes, 87–91
 - tax revenue challenges, 27–30, 59
- developing countries, see also late liberalizing countries
 - benefits of small government, 98–99
 - overall revenue levels, 13–14
 - public goods and revenue levels, 14
 - revenue shock in, 13f1.1
 - tax revenues from large corporations, 73
- domestic tax reforms
 - authoritarian regime's strategies for, 7, 26–27, 31–33, 34, 59
 - challenges to in liberalizing democracies, 6–7, 27–30, 59
 - in China, 136, 140, 141–145, 153
 - coercive tax-collection strategies, 26–27, 31–32, 76
 - compliance incentives in democracies, 26
 - compulsory domestic tax reforms, 6
 - domestic tax revenues, 46
 - downward pressures on, 5
 - of the early liberalizers, 21–22
 - in El Salvador, 194
 - globalization–tax relationship research, 19, 20
 - goods and services tax revenues, 46
 - hard to collect domestic taxes, 4–5
 - IFI's recommendations for tax reforms in India, 117–119
 - import vs. export business interests, 35–36
 - income tax revenues, 46
 - in Jordan, 165–170
 - oil-rich countries, 43–44
 - political commitments to, 18

322 Index

- domestic tax reforms (cont.)
 - political opposition to, China, 136, 146–149, 150
 - post-liberalization in India, 117–122, 134–135
 - quasi-voluntary compliance, 26, 29–30, 32–33
 - revenues post-liberalization, hypothesis test, 44–57
 - as second generation reform, 17–18
 - trade tax and domestic tax revenue, 15–17, 16f1.3
 - in Tunisia, 165–170
 - value-added tax (VAT), 5
 - voluntary/quasi-voluntary domestic tax reforms, 6
- Drèze, J. and Sen, A., 132–133
- Eastern European countries, 43–44
- easy to collect taxes
 - and domestic tax revenues, 194–195
 - pre-liberalization tax revenues, 189
 - state-owned enterprises (SOEs) taxes, 136, 138–139, 189
 - trade taxes as, 3–4, 24, 136, 138–139
- economic elites
 - confidence in government, 35
 - political influence of over tax reforms, 25, 27–28, 52, 75–76, 81, 95–96, 135, 172–173, 177, 195
 - protection of through government spending policies, 102–104, 105, 108–111, 113, 131–132
 - tax compliance, 64–65, 68–69, 122, 195–196
 - tax compliance by regime types, 69–72
- education expenditure
 - across regime types, 62, 106–107
 - in China, 155–156, 156f8.8
 - in India, 131–132
 - in Jordan, 181
 - in Tunisia, 181
- El Salvador, 193–194
- financial liberalization, 19, 21, 47, 57, 74–75, 84
- firms, see also state-owned enterprises (SOEs)
 - exporting, 5, 75, 77
 - less productive firms' influence over corporate taxes, 75–76, 78–79, 81, 95–96
 - lobbying, 6, 52, 75–76, 77–78, 80, 81, 95–96, 111, 122
 - lobbying (India), 125, 128, 129
 - numbers of less productive firms, 87
- Gandhi, J., 32–33, 61
- Genschel et al. (2016), 82
- globalization
 - distributional impacts of, 7–8
 - globalization–tax relationship
 - research, 19, 20
 - poverty–trade relationship
 - scholarship, 100–101
 - and the revenue crisis, 2–3
 - uncertainties over, 8
- Gould, David, 187–188
- Grossman, G. M. and Helpman, E., 27–28
- Hallerberg, M. and Scartascini, C., 19
- Harrison, A., 101
- healthcare expenditure
 - in China, 147–148, 155–156, 156f8.8
 - in India, 97, 130, 131–133
 - in Jordan, 181
 - in Tunisia, 181
 - in Uganda, 105–106
- Hibou, B., 177
- import substitution industrialization (ISI)
 - in Brazil, 79–80
 - in India, 116–117
 - less productive firms and corporation taxes following, 81, 91, 95–96
 - political and economic power of urban industrialists during, 77–79
 - revenue shock impacts on corporate income and tax revenues, 91–95
- India, see also Andhra Pradesh (AP)
 - black money, 23, 59
 - business's dissatisfaction with tax reforms, 125–126, 134
 - central government and tax collection, 119
 - central-local government reform tensions, 190
 - corporate income tax reforms, 120, 125, 128–129
 - demonetization, 23, 58, 188–189
 - downward pressures on tax reforms
 - from wealthy businesses, 129–130
 - education expenditure, 131–132
 - effective tax rates (AETR), 121–122
 - Goods and Services Tax (GST), 127–128, 190
 - healthcare expenditure, 97, 130, 131–133
 - IFT's recommendations for tax reforms, 117–119
 - import substitution industrialization (ISI), 116–117
 - increased social inequality, 131
 - informal sector economy, 126

- lack of public confidence in the
 - government over tax revenues, 35, 188
- minimum alternative taxes, 130
- personal income tax reforms, 120
- political opposition to the tax
 - reforms, 122–128
- post-liberalization tax reforms, 117–122, 134–135
- pre-liberalization tax revenues, 117–118
- pre-liberalization tax system, 116
- pro-poor public spending, 123–124, 130–133
- public goods improvements, 124
- revenue generation from tax
 - reforms, 120–121
- tax amnesty schemes, 23
- tax avoidance, 125–127
- tax collection system, 115, 133–134, 189–190
- tax compliance rates, 115–116, 150, 188
- tax incentives for Ayurvedic firms, 73–74
- tax rates (comparison with
 - China), 151–152
- tax reform measures, 115
- tax reforms implemented by the Tax
 - Reform Committee (TRC), 119–120
- tax reforms that privilege the wealthy/
 - large businesses, 122–123, 131
- tax terrorism, 130, 195
- tax–GDP ratio, 121–122, 134–135
- trade tariff structure, 117–118
- trade tax decline,
 - post-liberalization, 163–164
- value-added tax (VAT) reforms, 120, 124–125, 127, 134
- inequality, see also public goods
 - decline in, liberal authoritarian regimes, 99, 109
 - increased inequality and reduced fiscal resources, 102–104
 - increased social inequality, India, 131
 - post-tax inequality indicator, 107–108
 - and pro-poor government spending across regime types, 109–113
 - public goods spending and inequality reduction, China, 155–157, 156f8.8, 189
- informal economies, 23
- International Centre for Tax and
 - Development's (ICTD), 44–45
- international economics (IE), 100–101
- international financial institutions (IFIs)
 - influences on corporate tax policies, 83
 - measures to offset revenue losses, 17
 - need for revenue mobilization in developing countries, 14
 - policies on tax reforms, 97
 - recommendations for tax reform in
 - India, 117–119
 - stance on corporation taxes, 73, 74, 75
 - state-owned enterprise
 - subsidiaries, 42–43
 - structural adjustment packages, 11–12
- International Monetary Fund (IMF), 117
 - liberalization assistance to Jordan and
 - Tunisia, 161–162
 - structural adjustment packages, 172
 - on Tunisia and Jordan's
 - post-liberalization policies, 178
- international political economy (IPE)
 - globalization–tax relationship
 - research, 19, 20
 - scholarship on the trade–poverty relationship, 101
- trade liberalization and tax research, 20
- transfer pricing and/or tax havens
 - research, 19–20
- Jordan
 - confidence in a government and public
 - goods, 173–175, 189, 190
 - corporate income tax (CIT), 167
 - corporate tax rates, 177–178
 - domestic tax reforms, 165–170
 - export growth, post-liberalization, 163–165
 - health and education spending, 181
 - IMF structural adjustment reforms, 172
 - investment in public goods, 104–105
 - need for tax system reforms, 179
 - personal income tax (PIT), 167
 - political opposition to tax
 - reforms, 172–173
 - poverty reduction programs, 181
 - public goods investment and regime support, 170–172
 - quasi-voluntary compliance with tax reforms, 159, 177, 189
 - stability of government confidence, 179, 181, 184
 - state-owned enterprises
 - (SOEs), 160–161
 - tariff reductions, 163–165
 - tax revenues, 167–170
 - tax revenues, pre-liberalization, 160–163
 - tax system, pre-liberalization, 159–160
 - trade tax decline,
 - post-liberalization, 162–164
 - unemployment rates, 182
 - value-added tax (VAT) reforms
 - (GST), 165–166

324 Index

- Khattry, B. and Rao, J. M., 39–40
 Kim, Jim Yong, 14
 Krueger, Anne, 178
 Kurtz, M. J. and Brooks, S. M., 78
- Lagarde, Christine, 14
 Lardy, Nicholas, 142, 155 late liberalizing countries, see also developing countries democratic, 6
 hard to collect domestic taxes, 4–5
 import vs. export business interests, 35–36
 lowered tariffs and, 4
 pre-liberalization tax revenues, 3–4
 revenue shock, 4
 tax revenues post-trade liberalization, 5–6
 trade openness and total government revenues, 14–15, 15f1.2
 Latin America, 191–192
 Levi, M., 26
 Levi, M. and Sacks, A., 64 liberal authoritarian regimes (LibAuth), see also authoritarian regimes; Jordan;
 Tunisia
 classification of, 25–27
 confidence in government, 33, 34, 57
 cooption tactics with opposition parties, 32–33
 decline in inequality, 99, 109
 investment in public goods, 33, 60, 62, 72, 104–105
 political competition ratings (POLCOMP), 61–62
 public goods provision, perceptions of across regime type, 62, 107–108
 public goods spending and distributional impact of declining trade taxes, 108–113
 public goods spending, post-revenue shock, 26–27, 99–100 quasi-voluntary compliance with tax
 reforms, 34, 72
 Liberia, 103
- Mauritius, 194
 Modi, Narendra, 58
- Nooruddin, I. and Rudra, N., 103
 Nooruddin, I. and Simmons, J.
 W., 102–103
- personal income tax (PIT)
 in China, 142, 144, 151, 153
 in Jordan, 167
- reforms to in India, 120
 in Tunisia, 167
 Philippines, 95–96
 politics interest groups' influence over government policies on corporate taxes, 75–76, 81, 95–96
 political commitments to domestic tax
 reforms, 19
 political factors and the mitigation of revenue shocks, 20–21
 political influences by business interests, 25, 27–28, 31, 77–78 political opposition to tax reforms in China, 136, 146–149, 150
 political opposition to tax reforms in India, 122–128
 political opposition to tax reforms in Jordan, 172–173
 political opposition to tax reforms in Tunisia, 174–176
 political responses to free trade, 186–188
 post-protectionist era political coalitions, 75–76, 77, 95
 role of business interests in democracies, 25, 27–28
- poverty, see also education expenditure;
 healthcare expenditure; inequality human development expenditure,
 India, 130
 human development expenditure,
 Tunisia, 175–176
 poverty reduction programs, Jordan, 181
 poverty–trade relationship
 scholarship, 100–101
 pro-poor public spending in India, 123–124, 130–133
 public goods spending and inequality reduction, China, 155–157, 156f8.8, 189
- protectionism of Ayurvedic industries, India, 73–74 effects on corporation tax revenues,
 post-liberalization, 6, 29, 30, 35
 in liberal authoritarian regimes, 33 political coalitions during, 75–76, 77, 95
 pre-liberalization, 6, 68
- public goods
 and acceptance of tax reforms, 24–25, 26
 and confidence in the government, Jordan, 173–175, 189, 190
 and confidence in the government,
 Tunisia, 189

- corporate satisfaction with and domestic tax compliance, 80–81
- in democracies, 28
- dissatisfaction with in rural China, 147–148, 154, 189
- government spending and distributional impact of declining trade taxes across regime type, 108–113
- improvements in India, 124
- investment in by conservative regimes, 99, 105–106, 108–113
- investment in by democracies, 7–8, 28, 108–113
- investment in by liberal authoritarian regimes, 33, 60, 62, 72, 104–105
- as motivation for tax compliance in liberal authoritarian regimes, 33
- poverty reduction programs, 182
- provision of, El Salvador, 193–194
- public goods provision, perceptions of across regime type, 62, 107–108
- public goods spending and inequality reduction, China, 155–157, 156f8.8, 189
- and regime support, Jordan, 170–172
- and regime support, Tunisia, 170–172, 189
- and revenue levels in developing countries, 14
- satisfaction with and tax compliance, 62–68
- spending by democracies on post-revenue shock, 103
- spending on and reduced revenues, 97–98
- in Tunisia, 175–176, 182
- public welfare
 - impact of revenue losses on, 99
 - pro-poor public spending, India, 123–124, 130–133
 - spending by democracies post-revenue shock, 99, 102–103
- Rao, Govinda, 121, 129–130
- Rao, M. G. and Rao, R. K., 122
- Rao, Narasimha, 117, 119, 120
- revenue shocks
 - in China, 136, 141–145
 - in late liberalizing countries, 12–13, 13f1.1
 - political factors and mitigation of, 20–21
 - post-liberalization, 186–187
 - and public goods spending, 99, 102–103
 - recovery from, 14–15
 - recovery from and regime type, 188
 - trade tax and domestic tax revenue, 15–17, 16f1.3
- Robinson, J. and Torvik, R., 28
- Rudra, N., 103
- Sasoon, J., 172
- Sen, A., 130
- Singapore, 24–25
- South Korea, 195–196
- state-owned enterprises (SOEs)
 - in China, 136, 138–139, 140–142, 153, 189
 - and easy to collect taxes, 136, 138–139, 189
 - in Jordan, 160–161
 - revenues from in authoritarian regimes, 42–44
 - in Tunisia, 160–161
- Tanzania, 105
- tax collection systems
 - administrative quality and fiscal performance, authoritarian regimes, 39–43, 53–54
 - bureaucratic capacity in developing countries, 17, 18
 - in China, 136, 137, 138, 143, 189–190
 - democracy and tax compliance, 26, 195–196
 - import substitution legacies and tax inspections in democracies, 91
 - India's pre-liberalization tax system, 116
 - India's tax system, 115, 133–134
 - inefficient tax administration systems, 23–24
 - local government tax collection, China, 137
 - regressive public spending, 103
 - regressive tax collection, China, 146, 154
 - tax administration systems, post-liberalization, 24–25
 - tax collection system reforms, China, 189–190
 - tax collection system reforms, India, 189–190
 - tax inspection rates across regimes, 87–91
 - tax system, pre-liberalization in Jordan, 159–160, 179
 - for trade tax collections, 24
 - in Tunisia, 159–160, 176–177, 178–179
 - weak tax collection bureaucracy in China, 137, 138
- tax compliance, see also confidence in government
 - amongst elites by regime type, 69–72

326 Index

- tax compliance (cont.)
 - anti-tax evasion measures, China, 144, 149–152
 - in authoritarian regimes, 62–72, 81
 - in democracies, 26, 29–30, 62–68, 69–72, 195–196
 - in India, 115–116, 150, 188
 - in Jordan, 159, 177, 189
 - in liberal authoritarian regimes, 34, 72
 - pre-liberalization, 68–69
 - quasi-voluntary compliance, 6, 26, 29–30, 32–33, 34, 72, 159, 189
 - by regime type, 60, 68–69
 - and satisfaction with public goods provision, 33, 62–68, 80–81
- tax havens, 19–20
- tax revenues
 - challenges to in liberalizing democracies, 27–30, 59
 - data, 36–39, 44–53
 - in El Salvador, 193
 - key role of, 2
 - pre-liberalization tax revenues in India, 117–118
 - and regime types, 26–27
- Thailand, 104
- trade liberalization
 - decreased trade tax revenues, 12
 - and economic progress, 186
 - lower tariffs and, 11–12
 - poverty–trade relationship
 - scholarship, 100–101
 - research on, 20
- trade taxes
 - in China, post-liberalization, 140–142, 163–164
 - in China, pre-liberalization, 138
 - decline in, post-liberalization
 - India, 163–164
 - decline in, post-liberalization
 - Jordan, 162–164
 - decline in, post-liberalization
 - Tunisia, 162–164
 - declines in and government public goods spending, 108–113
 - declines in, post-liberalization, 12, 15–17, 16f1.3, 44–57
 - and domestic tax revenues, 15–17, 44–57
 - as easy to collect taxes, 24, 136, 138–139
 - effects on corporate tax rates, 82–85
 - trade tariff structure, India, 117–118
- transfer pricing, 19–20, 77
- Tunisia
 - coercive tax collection, 176–177, 189
 - domestic tax reforms, 165–170
 - export growth, post-liberalization, 163–165
 - health and education spending, 181
 - IMF structural adjustment reforms, 172
 - need for tax system reforms, 178–179
 - political opposition to tax reforms, 174–176
 - public goods investment and regime support, 170–172, 189
 - public goods provision, post-liberalization, 175–176, 182
 - quasi-voluntary compliance with tax reforms, 159
 - stability and confidence in government (Arab Spring), 179–181, 182–184, 190
 - state-owned enterprises (SOEs), 160–161
 - tariff reductions, 163–165
 - tax revenues, pre-liberalization, 160–163
 - tax system, pre-liberalization, 159–160
 - trade tax decline, post-liberalization, 162–164
 - unemployment rates, 182
 - value-added tax (VAT), 167
- Uganda, 105–106
- United Nations (UN)
 - survey on democracy, Latin America, 191–192
- sustainable development goals and tax–GDP ratios, 14, 18
- value-added tax (VAT)
 - in authoritarian regimes, 33
 - in China, 142, 143–144, 147, 149, 150, 153
 - domestic tax reforms, 5
 - as hard to collect domestic taxes, 5, 17, 18
 - in India, 120, 124–125, 127, 134
 - in Jordan, 165–166
 - under liberal authoritarian regimes, 33
 - in Mauritius, 194
 - in Tunisia, 167
- Wibbels, E. and Arce, M., 19
- World Bank (WB), 44–45, 98
- World Trade Organization (WTO), 4, 12, 45, 93