

Contents

List of figures	page viii
Acknowledgements	x
List of abbreviations and acronyms	xiv
Introduction: voice, race, radio	1
Part I Sound and ‘migration’	29
1 K. E. Masinga, Zulu Radio, and the politics of ‘migrant’ orality	31
2 Communities through the back door: the radio worlds of Alexius Buthelezi, 1961–78	49
Part II Distance and intimacy	71
3 Exile: Bloke Modisane and the BBC, 1959–87	73
4 ‘Africa on the rise’: the early 1960s, and the radio voice of Lewis Nkosi	93
Part III Drama, language, and daily life	113
5 Untidy boundaries, restless identities: Zulu serial drama in the 1970s	115
6 Radio drama in the time of violence: Yiz’ Uvalo (In Spite of Fear), December 1986 to May 1987	135
7 ‘ Ikusasa lethu ’ (Our tomorrow): the ‘glorious decade’? Radio drama of the 1990s	155
8 Finding a centre	170
Conclusion: dances of power	187
Bibliography	195
Index	211
	vii