

Contents

About the Author	page ix
Preface	xi
Acknowledgments	xvii
1 An Anthropogenic Problem That Requires an Ecocentric Solution	1
I Polarizing Gridlock in International and US Climate Change Regulation	3
II The Transition to an Ecocentric Paradigm: What, Why, and How	11
2 Climate Change Litigation in Domestic Courts and Human Rights Commissions	17
I US Case Studies	18
II Foreign Domestic Case Studies	22
III Human Rights Commission Case Studies	31
3 Protection of Future Generations: Prior to and during the Anthropocene Era	43
I What Is Intergenerational Equity?	44
II Intergenerational Equity in International Law Instruments	50
III Intergenerational Equity in Foreign Domestic Charters and Constitutions	60
IV Environmental Protection for Future Generations in the Courts: The Minors Oposa Case in the Philippines	61
V Protection of Future Generations in the Anthropocene	65

4	Legal Personhood for Wildlife: US and Foreign Domestic Judicial Developments	97
	I US Judicial Developments	98
	II Foreign Domestic Judicial Developments	115
5	Rights of Nature: US and Foreign Domestic Perspectives	120
	I US Developments	120
	II Foreign Domestic Developments	125
	III International Rights of Nature Tribunal Case Studies	164
6	Proposal for Enhanced Stewardship and Rights-Based Protections for the Voiceless	173
	I Substantive Standard	174
	II Procedural Mechanism	188
	III Lessons to Help Implement the Proposal	210
	IV Addressing Challenges and Limitations of the Proposal	222
	Subject Index	229
	Table of Cases	241