

Contents

---

List of Figures	page x
Acknowledgements	xii
Note on Transliteration	xv
Chronology of the Deccan Sultanate Rulers	xvi
List of Abbreviations	xviii
Introduction: Cosmopolitanism, Courtliness and Ethics in the Deccani Sultanates	1
Historical Background	3
The Court, Courtiers and Courtly Societies	10
Ethics	15
‘The Persianate’ and the ‘Persian Cosmopolis’	17
Structure of the Book	24
Part I Courtly Society	29
1 Courtly Disposition	31
A ‘Cosmopolitan’ Education	33
An Ethical Education	39
A Courtly Disposition	43
Knowledge and Action	51
Courtly Bodies	52
Bodies and Objects	60
Conclusion	72
2 Networks, Patrons and Friends	74
Travel and Knowledge	75
Immigration to the Bahmani Sultanate	79
Nimdihi’s Network	83
Immigration to the Successor Sultanates	88
The Poet as Peripatetic Courtier	91
Patronage, Family and Friendship	100
Promoting New Courtiers: Mahmud Gavan	103
Friendship and Sociability	105
The Maḥlis : Performative Sociability	109
	vii

viii	Contents
	Sociable Stimulants and Bodily Anxieties	114
	Conclusion	119
3	Courts, Merchants and Commodities	120
	Trade in Sultanate Deccan	120
	Elite Involvement in Trade	127
	Horse Trader, Kingmaker and Governor: Khalaf Hasan Basri	130
	‘Prince of Merchants’, Vizier and Scholar: Mahmud Gavan	133
	Bijapuri Kingmaker, Portuguese Banker: Asad Khan Lari	139
	Courtly Traders	145
	Conspicuous Courtly Consumption	148
	Trade, Titles and Courtly Rhetoric	150
	‘Mercantilisation’ and ‘Courtisation’	160
	Exchange and Ethics	162
	Conclusion	164
	Part II Courtly Skills	165
4	Scribal Skills	167
	Letter Writing as a Courtly Skill	169
	Epistolographic Networks	171
	The Development of Insha	173
	Defining Insha in the Bahmani Sultanate: The Manāẓīr al-Inshā’	175
	The Transformative Powers of Speech	178
	Insha and the Science of Letters	180
	Transforming the Social World	183
	Language Choices in the Persian Cosmopolis	188
	The ‘True Munshi ’	197
	Bodily Transformations	204
	Conclusion	209
5	Esoteric Skills	210
	Defining the Esoteric Sciences	212
	Powerful and Effective Forces	215
	‘Necessary Medicine for their Lives’	217
	Triangular Gardens	220
	Planetary Associations	222
	Reading Chakram : Practical Courtly Tools	224
	Enchantment, Submission and Control: Invocations and Talismans	229
	The Esoteric Sciences as Ethical Training	233
	Esoteric Bodily Practices	235
	Olfactory Transformations	242
	Esoteric Sciences in Bijapur	245
	Commensurable Cosmologies	250
	A Deccani Courtly Culture	259
	Vernacularisation, Cosmopolitanism and the Cosmos	264
	Conclusion	266

Contents	ix
6 Martial Skills	268
The Ambiguity of Youth	269
Javanmardi and Futuvat	271
An Ethical Ideal	273
Javanmardi in the Deccan	276
Consolidating Martial Knowledge	281
Wrestling and Javanmardi	289
A Courtly Wrestler: Yusuf Adil Shah	292
Critiquing the Ethical Ideal	298
Conclusion	302
Concluding Remarks	303
Select Bibliography of Primary Sources	308
Index	311