

CONTENTS

Preface and Acknowledgements page xi

Introduction 1

1 The Hellenic City-States System 23

 An International Society? 26

 Emotional Responses to Suffering 38

 War, Booty and Slavery 43

 The Peloponnesian Wars 47

 The Hellenic Civilizing Process 55

2 New Territorial Concentrations of Power in Antiquity 58

 Part I The Rise and Fall of the Hellenistic States-System 58

 Macedonian State Formation 62

 Alexander’s Empire 68

 The Hellenistic States-System 74

 Part II The Rise of Rome 79

 A The Roman Republic 79

 B Pax Romana 91

 Civilizing Processes in the Hellenistic and Roman Worlds 103

3 The International Relations of Latin Christendom 106

 Order, Violence and Suffering 112

 Chivalrous Warfare 129

 Crusading Warfare 137

 Medieval Civilizing Processes 147

4 The Renaissance City-State System 150

 City and Civilization 154

 Relations Between the City States 166

 Power Monopolization, Territorial Expansion and Elimination

 Contests 170

viii	CONTENTS
	Renaissance Humanism 176
	Fortune and Necessity 178
	Civilizing Processes in Renaissance Italy 184
5	The European States-System and the Idea of Civilization 186
	European State Formation 191
	Civilizing Conduct 195
	Monopolizing Armed Force 201
	Civility and Statecraft in the Early European System 207
	Court Society, Civilization and Diplomacy 216
	Legacies of State Formation and the Civilizing Process 223
6	Cruelty and Compassion in the Age of Empire 226
	Religious Colonialism 235
	Race and Slavery 245
	Campaigns Against the Slave Trade and Slavery 251
	Moral Progress, Civilization and World Politics 264
7	Enlightenment Thought and Global Civilization 268
	Widening Worlds and the Question of Difference 277
	The Ambiguities of Global Interconnectedness 282
	Compassionate Cosmopolitanism 287
	Universal History and Cosmopolitan Ideals 298
	The Global ‘Civilizing’ Legacy of the Enlightenment 303
8	Total Warfare and Decivilizing Processes 306
	Revolutionary Warfare 308
	Towards a New International Political Order 318
	The Nationalization of Suffering 325
	Long-Distance Warfare and Impersonal Violence 331
	Advancing Global Civility? 338
9	Modernity, Civilization and the Holocaust 342
	Modernity and the Holocaust 345
	Euthanasia and the Civilizing Process 359
	Genocide and the Civilizing Process 363
	The Cosmopolitanism of Ordinary Virtues 376
	Towards a Planned Global Civilizing Process 380
10	Sovereignty, Citizenship and Humanity in the Global Civilizing Process 384
	Sovereign Rights and Responsibilities 388

CONTENTS ix

War Crimes and Civilization	393
Enlarging the Scope of Sovereign Responsibility	400
Private Power and Global Responsibility	404
Ethical Responsibility and the Global Civilizing Process	414
Sovereignty, Civilization and International Society	421
11 Process Sociology, Civilization and International Society	425
Violence, Civilization and World Politics	426
The Civilizing Process and International Society	433
Things That Were Once Permitted Are Now Forbidden?	435
The Taming of the Great Powers	436
The Expansion of International Society	441
Cosmopolitan Standards of Restraint	447
Organized Irresponsibility	451
Towards an Explanation of the Global ‘Civilizing Process’	456
Conclusion	466
Conclusion	468
Bibliography	472
Index	538