

Economics and Philosophy

Editorial policy

The disciplines of economics and philosophy each possess their own special analytical methods, the combination of which is powerful and fruitful. Economics and Philosophy seeks to promote the mutual enrichment of the two disciplines by publishing high-quality original research in all contemporary areas linking them. Topics include, but are not limited to, the foundations of rational or behavioral decision theory and game theory, the nature of rationality in general, ethical and other analytic-philosophical issues in economics, the use of economic techniques in ethical theory, and experimental research on economics and philosophy. Economics and Philosophy does not publish historical or text-interpretive work, unless it makes a contribution to current debates about economics and philosophy.

1. Submission of Manuscripts

All correspondence should be sent to economicsandphilosophy@cambridge.org. Ideally, articles should be submitted in pdf format, but Word and Rich Text format are acceptable.

The articles must be prepared for anonymous refereeing: that is, a referee should not be able to see or directly infer from the paper who the author is. For instance, instead of writing "as I have argued previously in Meier (2003)", please write "as has been argued in Meier (2003)"; instead of putting "Name Suppressed, "Free-Will in Economics", Economics and Philosophy 20: 123-145", write, for instance, "Meier, P. (2003): "Free Will in Economics" Economics and Philosophy 20: 123-145.

The journal publishes papers in English only.

Authors of accepted articles will be asked to prepare a final version in the journal's style and to submit it electronically.

Submitting an article to Economics and Philosophy implies that it has not been published elsewhere and is not being considered for publication elsewhere.

Authors must obtain written permission to publish any material of which they do not own the copyright. Authors of articles published in the journal assign copyright to Cambridge University Press (with certain rights reserved) and you will receive a copyright assignment form for signature on acceptance of your paper.

2. Text conventions

Please attend to the following notes about style:

Authors should make their writing attractive, and as clear and easy to follow as possible. Non-native speakers of English in particular should take steps to make sure that their writing is correct and readable.

Economics and Philosophy is a journal of argument and analysis, not history and exegesis. Consequently, most of our articles will not need large numbers of references, footnotes and quotations. These should be kept to a minimum.

References.

There is no need to refer to everything that has been written on a subject; cite only the best or most useful or most accessible sources. Of course, you must acknowledge your intellectual debts. Make sure your readers know why they are being referred to a particular source; if it is not obvious from the text, use a footnote. Make sure they know what to look for and precisely where to look; normally you should specify page numbers. Use a consistent referencing system.

Footnotes.

Footnotes are useful for references, and sometimes for making a point that would be distracting in the text. But if your point does not merit a place in the text, you should consider seriously whether it merits printing at all. Remember that hardly anyone reads footnotes anyway, so leave them out when you can.

Spelling and Grammar.

Stick consistently to either UK usage or US usage.

3. Instructions for authors of accepted papers

Complete instructions will be made available to authors of accepted papers.

4. Proofs

Typographical or factual errors only may be changed at proof stage, within a given deadline. The publisher reserves the right to charge authors for correction of non-typographical errors.

5. Offprints

Each author will receive a pdf offprint of their article. Print offprints may be purchased from the publisher if ordered at proof stage.

6. Books for review

Books for review should be sent to:

The Book Review Editor
Francesco Guala
Department of Economics
University of Milan
Via Conservatorio 7
20122 Milan
Italy

(Last updated September 2011)