

Journal of Linguistics

Editorial policy

The Journal of Linguistics is concerned with all branches of theoretical linguistics. Preference is given to ARTICLES which make a substantial contribution to current debate in theoretical linguistics. The language of submission and publication is English.

A NOTES AND DISCUSSION contribution is appropriate in particular for comments on articles published earlier in JL.

A BOOK REVIEW is a short summary and evaluation of the content of the book, which also contextualises it in terms of current debate. Reviews in JL are generally no more than 2000 words in length, as commissioned by the Review Editor. Manuscripts which substantially exceed the word limit may be cut or sent back to the author to be shortened. If neither is acceptable to the author, the Review Editor may ask for the book to be returned so that another reviewer can be found. Unsolicited book reviews are generally not accepted but offers can be made by contacting the Review Editor.

A REVIEW ARTICLE should be a more substantial piece of work than a book review. It should not just summarise and evaluate the book. Rather it should seek to take up some of the ideas in the book and take the debate forward either by extending them in some way or by taking issue with them. The review article should also seek to place the book in its wider linguistic context by referring to other literature within the sub-field. Potentially, a review article is as important a contribution to the field as an ordinary article. For this reason, all review articles will be refereed before publication, so as an author you should expect to receive comments and suggestions for changes, and should be prepared to revise your initial draft before publication, and to do so within a reasonable time-frame. Unsolicited review articles are not accepted but offers can be made by contacting the Review Editor.

Submission of an article is taken to imply that it has not previously been published, and is not currently under consideration for publication elsewhere. Following acceptance of a paper, the author will be asked to assign copyright (on certain conditions) to Cambridge University Press. Details can be viewed at http://journals.cambridge.org/images/fileUpload/documents/lin_Copyright.pdf.

Contributors are responsible for obtaining permission to reproduce any material in which they do not own copyright, to be used in both print and electronic media, and for ensuring that the appropriate acknowledgements are included in their manuscript.

Papers accepted for publication in JL are published online, in FirstView, ahead of their print publication. Following publication, authors will receive a PDF file with their contribution.

Cambridge University Press has introduced a new policy on author self-archiving, which applies to JL. For full details, please see <http://journals.cambridge.org/openaccess>. In short, permissions for author self-archiving under this policy are as follows:

	Personal Webpage	Departmental/ Institutional Repository	Non-commercial Subject Repository	Commercial Repository/Social Media Sites
Submitted Manuscript Under Review	At any time	At any time	At any time	At any time
Accepted Manuscript	On acceptance	On acceptance	On acceptance	Abstract only
Version of Record	Abstract only plus link to Cambridge site	Abstract only plus link to Cambridge site	Abstract only plus link to Cambridge site	Abstract only plus link to Cambridge site

This policy is compliant with all known funding mandates and applies no embargo period to the non-commercial posting of the Accepted Manuscript. Under this policy Cambridge will remain a SHERPA/RoMEO ‘Green’ Open Access publisher. On the other hand, the policy acts to protect the exclusivity of the final Version of Record by prohibiting the posting of this version. By securing the Version of Record, we secure the value of a journal subscription and thus the revenue source on which the ‘Green’ model of Open Access relies.

Submissions

In order to minimize delays to publication, authors are encouraged to follow the instructions below, and the journal's Style Guide, in the preparation of their manuscript. The Style Guide will be accessed at <http://journals.cambridge.org/action/displayMoreInfo?jid=LIN&type=ifc>.

With minor exceptions spelled out in the Style Guide, JL's style for References follows the Unified Style Sheet for Linguistics Journals (<http://celxj.org/downloads/UnifiedStyleSheet.pdf>; <http://celxj.org/downloads/unified.bst>).

JL welcomes submissions in LaTeX. Please see the Style Guide for further information.

Authors should submit to the Managing Editor an anonymous electronic copy of the paper in an anonymised PDF file email attachment. The email message must include (i) the name(s) of the author(s) and full contact details; (ii) the full title of the paper; (iii) an abstract of up to 200 words summarising the content of the paper; (iv) a statement of the entire length of the paper in word number; and (v) a statement that the paper is not currently under consideration for publication elsewhere. If the paper has been refereed as submission to some other publication, please ensure that any plausible input from the referees has been incorporated so that those referees' efforts are not neglected. All papers will normally be read by three anonymous referees. All abstracts are sent to potential referees and the published version of an article always includes an abstract. Please ensure that the abstract is included in the file with the paper as well as pasted separately into the submission email

For the purpose of refereeing, an article should be anonymous. This means that the name(s) and address(es) of the author(s) should not be included in the file and that, as far as possible, the author(s) should not be identifiable from the references in the text and the acknowledgements. The file itself should not reveal the author's identity through the information that may be present in the file's Properties when accessed from within the file. (Properties will be found under the File tab.)
