Origins to Constantine

Edited by Frances Young
University of Birmingham
and Margaret Mitchell
University of Chicago
Assisted by K. Scott Bowie

A comprehensive overview of the essential events, persons, places and issues involved in the emergence of the Christian religion in the first three centuries. It analyses the diverse forms of Christian community, identity and practice that arose in the early decades of Christianity. Over thirty essays by leading scholars communicate the results of the most recent research in an accessible manner that allows readers to trace this dynamic history from its beginnings through to the rise of Imperial Christianity in the fourth century.

World Christianities c.1815–c.1914

Edited by Sheridan Gilley
University of Durham and Brian Stanley
Henry Martyn Centre, Cambridge

This is the first scholarly treatment of nineteenth-century Christianity to discuss the subject in a global context. In addition to full chapters on European Christendom, it deals with the expansion of Christianity in the Americas, Asia, Australasia and Africa, covering both Catholic and Protestant traditions. Major themes include the churches' response to modern ideas, Christianity and nationalism, the expanding role of women in religious life and the explosion of new voluntary forms of Christianity.

World Christianities c.1914–c.2000

Edited by Hugh McLeod
University of Birmingham

This is a comprehensive history of Catholicism, Protestantism and Independent Christian Churches in all parts of the world in the twentieth century. It charts the spectacular growth of Christianity in many parts of Africa and Asia, the transformation of Catholicism and the growth of Protestantism in Latin America, and the crisis of Christianity in the West. The volume covers key institutions and major new movements, describes the impact of war and political crisis and looks very broadly at the social and cultural impact of Christianity.
