

Cambridge University Press

0521021499 - The New Racism in Europe: A Sicilian Ethnography

Jeffrey Cole

Frontmatter

More information

Over the past twenty years immigration has become one of the most contested issues in western Europe. The arrival of Africans, Asians, eastern Europeans, and others in Italy has reversed earlier trends of emigration. Debate, political activity, and violence have raised questions of rejection and integration, of anti-racism, and the new racism. Studies of these issues commonly focus on political activity and the plight of minorities, but this book breaks new ground in its emphasis on the everyday reactions of Italians to immigration and related issues. Drawing on research carried out in Palermo, Jeffrey Cole considers the role of class, culture, local history, and political economy in the ambivalent responses of Sicilians to immigrants. He places Italian attitudes in a European context, and investigates why anti-immigrant politics are concentrated in the wealthy Italian north.

Cambridge University Press

0521021499 - The New Racism in Europe: A Sicilian Ethnography

Jeffrey Cole

Frontmatter

More information

Cambridge Studies in Social and Cultural Anthropology

107

THE NEW RACISM IN EUROPE

Cambridge University Press
0521021499 - The New Racism in Europe: A Sicilian Ethnography
Jeffrey Cole
Frontmatter
More information

Cambridge Studies in Social and Cultural Anthropology

The monograph series Cambridge Studies in Social and Cultural Anthropology publishes analytical ethnographies, comparative works and contributions to theory. All combine an expert and critical command of ethnography and a sophisticated engagement with current theoretical debates.

A list of books in the series will be found at the end of the volume.

Founding Editors:
Meyer Fortes, Jack Goody, Edmund Leach, Stanley Tambiah

Cambridge University Press

0521021499 - The New Racism in Europe: A Sicilian Ethnography

Jeffrey Cole

Frontmatter

More information

THE NEW RACISM IN EUROPE

A Sicilian ethnography

JEFFREY COLE

Dowling College, New York

Cambridge University Press
 0521021499 - The New Racism in Europe: A Sicilian Ethnography
 Jeffrey Cole
 Frontmatter
More information

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS
 Cambridge, New York, Melbourne, Madrid, Cape Town, Singapore, São Paulo

Cambridge University Press
 The Edinburgh Building, Cambridge CB2 2RU, UK

Published in the United States of America by Cambridge University Press, New York

www.cambridge.org
 Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9780521584937

© Cambridge University Press 1997

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 1997
 This digitally printed first paperback version 2005

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloguing in Publication data

Cole, Jeffrey, 1958–
 The new racism in Europe: a Sicilian ethnography / Jeffrey Cole.
 p. cm – (Cambridge studies in social and cultural anthropology: 107)
 Includes bibliographical references and index.
 ISBN 0 521 58493 0 (hardback)
 1. Sicily (Italy) – Ethnic relations. 2. Sicily (Italy) – Race relations. 3. Sicily (Italy) – Emigration and immigration.
 4. Culture conflict – Italy – Sicily. 5. Sicily (Italy) Social conditions – 1945– I. Title. II. Series.
 DG865.7.C65 1997 305.8'009458–dc21 97-4075 CIP

ISBN-13 978-0-521-58493-7 hardback
 ISBN-10 0-521-58493-0 hardback

ISBN-13 978-0-521-02149-4 paperback
 ISBN-10 0-521-02149-9 paperback

Cambridge University Press

0521021499 - The New Racism in Europe: A Sicilian Ethnography

Jeffrey Cole

Frontmatter

More information

To Sally

Contents

List of illustrations	page x
Acknowledgments	xi
1 Introduction	1
2 When the bottom looks down: working-class views of immigrants in Palermo	25
3 The view from the top: bourgeois views of immigrants in Palermo	74
4 The politics of race and immigration in the Italian north and south	100
5 Conclusions	130
Appendix	134
Notes	136
References	143
Index	152

Illustrations

Photographs are by Jeffrey Cole unless otherwise noted.

1	Map of Italy	page xiv
2	Benetton ad, central business district, Palermo (Photograph Sally Booth)	7
3	Poster, immigration legislation	8
4	Large mural, Piazza San Francesco Saverio (Photograph Rosemary Cole)	37
5	Neighborhood activists	39
6	Immigrants	110
7	Election poster	114

Cambridge University Press

0521021499 - The New Racism in Europe: A Sicilian Ethnography

Jeffrey Cole

Frontmatter

More information

Acknowledgments

In the course of planning, researching, and writing this book I have enjoyed the encouragement and assistance of numerous individuals and institutions both here and abroad.

I consider myself the beneficiary of intellectual stimulus, encouragement, and plain good advice offered freely by teachers, colleagues, and friends. In particular, I would like to thank Jane and Peter Schneider, Glenn Peterson, Leith Mullings, Gary McDonogh, Michael Blim, Eric Wolf, Edward Hansen, David Maynard, D. Chris Leonard, Richard Hara, Malve von Hassell, and Marty Schoenhals. I owe a special debt to Jane Schneider. As a teacher and as adviser to my dissertation at the City University of New York, she initiated me into the craft of ethnography, whose complexities and rewards I am only now beginning to appreciate. Her invitation to a conference on the “Italian Southern Question,” sponsored by the Wenner-Gren Foundation, offered me the opportunity to rethink my material.

I have also had the great good fortune to have Jessica Kuper as editor. The publication of this book owes much to her advice and support. I would also like to thank two anonymous readers for the Cambridge University Press, whose comments I found invaluable. Andrew Humphrys deftly copy-edited the manuscript.

I also benefitted from the assistance of many individuals and institutions in Italy. In Rome, Luigi Filadoro of the Commission for Cultural Exchange Between Italy and the United States took pains to ensure that my experience as a Fulbrighter was a memorable one. Giovanna Ghiotto and Augustino Bevilacqua of Progetto Italia-razzismo procured valuable research materials for me. I enjoyed conversations with representatives of Senzaconfine and the Federazione delle Organizzazione e Comunità

Cambridge University Press

0521021499 - The New Racism in Europe: A Sicilian Ethnography

Jeffrey Cole

Frontmatter

More informationxii Acknowledgments

Straniere in Italia. In Palermo, representatives of the following organizations generously gave of their time: the Salesian Order, including Oratorio Santa Chiara and the Poliambulatorio in Ballarò; the Centro Immigrazione and the Associazione Siciliana Emigrati e Famiglia of the Chiesa Valdese; Carità; the regional office and the Centro La Speranza/Collaboratrici Familiari of the Associazioni Cristiane Lavoratori Italiani; Associazione Professionale Italiana delle Collaboratrici Familiari; Associazione Ellai Illai; Unione Siciliana Emigrati e Famiglie; Centro Informazione Sud-Sud; the Coordinamento Immigrati Sud del Mondo of the Associazione Ricreativa Culturale Italiana; Associazione Regionale degli Immigrati e Famiglie; Confederazione Italiana dei Sindacati Liberi; Confederazione Generale Italiana del Lavoro; Ispettorato Provinciale del Lavoro di Palermo; the Servizio Studi of the Banco di Sicilia; the Tunisian Consulate; and the United States Consulate. I also learned from visits to the Centro Accoglienza Terzomondiale in Alcamo, the Meeting del Mediterraneo in Catania, and Carità in Salemi.

While I benefitted from the efforts of many people in Palermo, I found the help of several to be invaluable. Don Cosimo and his staff at the Centro Sociale San Francesco Saverio in Albergheria found accommodation for me and my family, introduced us to the neighborhood, and encouraged and facilitated the study. A better host I cannot imagine. I profited from numerous discussions with Professor Vincenzo Guarrasi, the University of Palermo scholar whose analyses of immigration to Sicily and the political economy of Palermo I have found indispensable. I am indebted to teachers Angela Aiola and Giovanni Callari, who allowed me to administer the questionnaire to their students. Dr. Giovanni Pampanini and Professors Roberto Rovelli, Giuseppe Scidà, and Hassen Slama generously shared their research on immigration. Vincenzo Ognibene let me have the run of the library at the Opera Universitaria, introduced me to Palermitans of all classes, solved all manner of problems, and helped administer the questionnaire to students at the University of Palermo. We sorely miss his companionship and that of his wife, Ida Abbadessa, and their daughter Ardaisia. Like so many Sicilianists before me, I was the grateful recipient of Pasquale Marchese's warm hospitality and profound knowledge of Sicily. We spent many memorable days with him, his son Vincenzo, and Elena Paparcone at il mulino. Whenever we think of Sicily our thoughts turn to the old mill and to Pasquale's wisdom. Our affection for Sicily grew at the table of Mary Taylor Simeti and Antonio Simeti, whose daughter Natalia took good care of our son Sammy. Fara Mejia

Cambridge University Press

0521021499 - The New Racism in Europe: A Sicilian Ethnography

Jeffrey Cole

Frontmatter

More informationAcknowledgments xiii

was a boon companion to my wife and afforded me an insider's view of an immigrant's life. Doug Barnes of the United States Information Agency and Mary Benton shared their passion for Sicily with us and gave us all kinds of practical help. We also enjoyed the company of Sal Cucchiari, Kate Loring, Rosario Lentini, Fausta Ferruzza, Giovanna Albegiani, Liana Castelli, and Fabrizio Mangione. Finally, this study would not have been possible without the patience and hospitality of Palermitans too numerous to name. I thank the respondents in the school and neighborhood samples, who shall remain anonymous, as well as the immigrants with whom I spoke. I am especially indebted to the people of Albergheria who showed me and my family such warm hospitality and generosity.

Throughout the project I have drawn encouragement and affection from my family. My parents, Rosemary and E. Larry Cole, have offered unstinting support, as has my father-in-law, Charles F. Booth. Jocelyn and Sam make life a delight and an adventure. I reserve my greatest thanks for my wife, Sally Starbuck Booth. My keenest critic and most ardent supporter, she helped me through all aspects of the research. She introduced me to Sicily and taught me the techniques of research during her own fieldwork there in 1988. It was she who first noted the the paradox of immigration to Sicily and urged me to develop it as a dissertation topic. To Sally, the love of my life, I dedicate this work.

I received financial support for doctoral research in the form of a Dissertation Award from the Harry Frank Guggenheim Foundation, a Grant for Improving Doctoral Research from the National Science Foundation (number BNS-9012923), a Fulbright Award for Graduate Study, and a Grant-in-Aid of Research from Sigma Xi. A Richard Carley Hunt Memorial Postdoctoral Fellowship from the Wenner-Gren Foundation allowed me to devote a summer to revising the dissertation into a book. Dowling College has generously supported my endeavors. I presented the results of this research at Dowling's Mediterranean Conference in 1995 and 1996; I am grateful to the conference organizer, Norman Holub, for giving me the opportunity to participate. Released time from Dowling enabled me to complete revisions to this manuscript in a timely manner. I gratefully acknowledge these sources of funding and institutional support.

I would also like to thank Critique of Anthropology. Parts of chapter 2 appeared in "Working-Class Reactions to the New Immigration in Palermo (Italy)," Critique of Anthropology 16(2): 199–220.

1. Map of Italy