

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-02956-8 - Summa Theologiae: Volume 48 - The Incarnate Word,
(3a. 1-6)

R. J. Hennessey O.P.

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

xiii	Editorial Notes
xv	Introduction
3	Foreword
	QUESTION 1. THE FITTINGNESS OF THE INCARNATION
5	Article 1. was it fitting for God to become incarnate ?
9	Article 2. was the incarnation of the Word of God necessary for the restoration of the human race ?
15	Article 3. if man had not sinned, would God nevertheless have become incarnate ?
21	Article 4. did God become incarnate more to remedy actual sins than original sin ?
25	Article 5. would it have been fitting for God to become incarnate from the beginning of the human race ?
29	Article 6. should the work of the Incarnation have been postponed until the end of the world ?
	QUESTION 2. THE KIND OF UNION THE INCARNATION IS IN ITSELF
35	Article 1. was the union of the incarnate Word in one nature ?
41	Article 2. was it in a person ?
47	Article 3. was it in a supposit or hypostasis ?
53	Article 4. whether the person of Christ is composite
55	Article 5. was there a union of body and soul in Christ ?
59	Article 6. was human nature united to the Word in the manner of an accident ?
67	Article 7. is the union of the divine and human nature something created ?
69	Article 8. is this union the same as assumption ?
73	Article 9. is the union of the two natures the greatest of all unions ?
75	Article 10. was the union of the two natures in Christ wrought through grace ?
79	Article 11. did any merits precede this union ?
83	Article 12. was the grace of union natural to the man Christ ?

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-02956-8 - Summa Theologiae: Volume 48 - The Incarnate Word,
(3a. 1-6)

R. J. Hennessey O.P.

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

QUESTION 3. THE MODE OF UNION ON THE PART OF
THE PERSON ASSUMING

- 87 Article 1. is it fitting that a divine person assume?
 89 Article 2. and for the divine nature to assume?
 93 Article 3. personality aside, can the divine nature assume?
 95 Article 4. can one person without another assume a created
nature?
 99 Article 5. does each person have the power to assume?
 101 Article 6. can many persons assume a nature one and the same numerically?
 105 Article 7. can one person assume two natures numerically distinct?
 109 Article 8. was it more fitting that the Son of God rather than another divine person assume a human nature?

QUESTION 4. THE UNION ON THE PART OF THE NATURE
ASSUMED

- 115 Article 1. was human nature more capable of being assumed
than any other nature?
 121 Article 2. did the Son of God assume a person?
 123 Article 3. did the divine person assume a man?
 125 Article 4. should the Son of God have assumed a human nature
separated from all individuals?
 129 Article 5. should the Son of God have assumed human nature
in all individuals?
 131 Article 6. should the Son of God have assumed a human nature
from the stock of Adam?

QUESTION 5. THE ASSUMPTION OF THE PARTS OF HUMAN NATURE

- 135 Article 1. did the Son of God assume a true body?
 139 Article 2. did Christ have a carnal or earthly body?
 143 Article 3. did the Son of God assume a soul?
 147 Article 4. did the Son of God assume a human mind or intellect?

QUESTION 6. THE ORDER OF ASSUMPTION

- 153 Article 1. whether the Son of God assumed flesh through the soul
 157 Article 2. did the Son of God assume a soul through the mind?

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-02956-8 - Summa Theologiae: Volume 48 - The Incarnate Word,
(3a. 1-6)

R. J. Hennessey O.P.

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

- 159 Article 3. was the soul of Christ assumed by the Word prior to the body?
- 163 Article 4. was the flesh assumed by the Word prior to its union with the soul?
- 167 Article 5. did the Son of God assume a whole human nature through its parts?
- 169 Article 6. was the Son's taking up human nature through grace?

APPENDICES

- 175 1. The Setting of the Treatise
- 178 2. Technical Terminology
- 180 GLOSSARY
- 185 INDEX