

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-04143-0 - Hollywood's Overseas Campaign: The North Atlantic Movie Trade, 1920-1950

Ian Jarvie

Table of Contents

More information

Contents

List of Tables and Figures	page x
Preface	xiii
General introduction	1
A The problem and its context	1
B Outline history of discussion of the problem	3
C The approach of this book	6
D Historiographical, methodological, and background matters	10
Part I: A small market – Canada
1 The White Report and the trial of Famous Players, 1932	25
1.1 A shaggy-dog story	25
1.2 The lead-in to the White Report	28
1.3 White's findings	31
1.4 The prosecution of Famous Players	35
1.5 The judgment of the court	37
1.6 The upshot	40
2 Before the White Report, 1920–1930	44
2.1 The structure of the Canadian film market	44
2.2 American domination of the Canadian film market	47
2.3 The Imperial Conference of 1926	57
2.4 Britain legislates a quota	63
Appendix: “Exhibition within the Empire of Empire Films”	67
3 After the White Report, 1932–1950	77
3.1 Hollywood's backyard: Benefits and drawbacks	77
3.2 Through to the Imperial Economic Conference, Ottawa, 1932	78
3.3 The renewal of the British film legislation	82
vii

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-04143-0 - Hollywood's Overseas Campaign: The North Atlantic Movie Trade, 1920-1950

Ian Jarvie

Table of Contents

More information

Contents	viii
3.4 The National Film Board	86
3.5 The impact of World War II	87
3.6 The Canadian Cooperation Project	93
 Part II: America's biggest foreign market: The United Kingdom
4 The road to a British quota system, 1920–1927	103
4.1 Fears of U.S. influence on the mass electorate	103
4.2 A letter to the Morning Post	106
4.3 The debate on the Second Reading	115
4.4 The act as amended	126
4.5 The situation the act sought to correct	127
5 Trade policy, politics, and the 1938 act, 1928–1938	135
5.1 British and U.S. reaction to the situation created by the 1927 act	135
5.2 Planning for the renewal of the act	151
5.3 The final battles over legislation, 1937–1938	156
5.4 The final shape of the 1938 act	171
6 War and currency crisis, 1939–1945	179
6.1 General issues	179
6.2 The Anglo–American Agreements and lend–lease	185
6.3 Military and other cooperation	194
6.4 Postwar planning and British ambition	195
6.5 The reconquest of Europe, 1944–1945	204
7 Trial of strength: Hollywood's boycott of the British market, 1947–1948	213
7.1 Overview	213
7.2 Trade policy and film	214
7.3 The situation in the U.S. and U.K. film industries in 1947	215
7.4 The buildup to the duty	217
7.5 The decision is made	225
7.6 The Americans learn of the duty	227
7.7 Imposition of the duty	229
7.8 Negotiations toward rescission of the duty	231
7.9 Conclusion and aftermath	236
Appendix: "Film Financial Problem"	238
8 Postwar measures: The boycott and its aftermath, 1945–1950	247
8.1 Fond hopes	247
8.2 The shape of British strategy	249
8.3 GATT and the 1948 act	251
8.4 Making films for export	257

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-04143-0 - Hollywood's Overseas Campaign: The North Atlantic Movie Trade, 1920-1950

Ian Jarvie

Table of Contents

More information

Contents	ix
8.5 Exporting to Canada and Europe	263
8.6 The end in the fifties	268
 Part III: The U.S. motion picture industry and its overseas system
9 The MPPDA and the beginnings of organization, 1920–1922	275
9.1 The story so far	275
9.2 Thompson on American hegemony	275
9.3 Before the MPPDA	279
9.4 The formation of the MPPDA	284
10 Machinery without policy, 1923–1932	302
10.1 The developing government–MPPDA relationship	302
10.2 Mobilization to cope with quotas in Europe	306
10.3 The British legislation of 1927 as seen from the United States	312
10.4 In the wake of the British legislation	318
11 The system in operation, 1933–1941	336
11.1 Personnel and issues, 1933–1936	337
11.2 Challenging the renewal of the Cinematograph Films Act	341
11.3 The approach of war	348
12 Protecting the system in wartime, 1942–1945	366
12.1 Exports and payments in wartime	368
12.2 Postwar planning	372
12.3 Resumption of European operations	389
13 Adapting the system to peace, 1945–1950	398
13.1 Reacting to British developments	399
13.2 Trade policy and Canadian “cooperation”	405
13.3 British schemes and Hollywood crisis, 1948–1951	416
Epilogue	429
References	433
Filmography	443
Index of names	451
Index of subjects	459