

Contents

List of illustrations	page x
List of tables and diagrams	xii
Preface	xiii
Acknowledgements	xvi
Conventions and abbreviations	xviii
Errata	xxii
INTRODUCTION	I
The textual problem of Lear – Bibliography and textual criticism – Greg’s arguments in ‘The function of bibliography’ – Bibliographical and textual evidence – The need for a bibliographical context
I THE PRINTING HOUSE AND ITS OWNERS	13
The business founded by Thomas Judson – John Harison III – George and Lionel Snowdon – The Snowdons’ later careers – Okes takes over his brother’s apprenticeship – His two-stage takeover of the Snowdon business – Character-sketch
2 PRINTING-HOUSE METHODS	31
The lack of information concerning the organization of work in Jacobean printing houses – McKenzie’s arguments in ‘Printers of the mind’ – Identifying Okes’s work – Limitations of the surviving evidence – Production rates – Parallels between the Snowdons and the CUP – Concurrent printing by the Snowdons – Differences between the Snowdons and Okes – Shared printing – Okes’s need for special methods – Suggested organization of work
3 OKES AT WORK, 1607–8	60
Okes’s annual output – The second press of 1609 – The gap in the evidence from 1607 – Chronological reconstruction, January to September 1607 – April to December 1608 – The Lear period: October 1607 to March 1608 – The relative priority of Pelling and Lear – Summary
4 THE PRINTING OF King Lear	89
Previous reconstructions – The study of recurring types in folio printing – The need for modified methods in quarto

CONTENTS

- studies – The use of pica roman before Lear – The priority of the titlepage – The paper supplied by Nathaniel Butter – Sheets C and D – The damage to outer D – Sheets E and F – Bowers’s reconstruction and the ‘delay’ in printing sheet E – Evidence of proof-correction in outer F – The partial distribution of outer E – Sheet G – Evidence of proof-correction in outer H – Anomalies of type-recurrence in sheets H and I – The difference between headlines and skeleton formes – Simultaneous setting by two compositors – The method of dividing the type – Type-shortages in sheet K – The increased rate of presswork – Sheet L – The replenishment of the ‘s’ box – The possible effect of type-shortage on speech prefixes – The use of pica roman after Lear – Okes’s stock of type – Summary of the printing
- 5 THE COMPOSITORS 151
 Limitations of the existing methods of compositor-analysis – Previous compositorial studies of Lear – The division of sheets H–L – Spelling-preferences – Apparent changes in B’s habits – The effect of type-supply on spellings – Centred stage directions – Spacing tests – Reasons for confining the analysis to Lear itself – Okes’s apprentices
- 6 PROOF-READING, REVISING, AND PRESS-CORRECTING 188
 The ‘postulate of normality’ and proof-correction before presswork – The range of variation in proofing practice – The survival of pre-Restoration foul proofs – The trial of John Twyn – ‘Obvious’ errors and prior miscorrection – Miscorrection before presswork in the Folio – The forme-order of Lear sheets B–G – Correction with and without the copy – Sheets H–L – Summary
- 7 PROOFSHEETS AND MISCORRECTIONS 219
 Additions to Greg’s list of variants – Snowdon proofsheets of 1606 – Okes proofsheets of 1609, 1613, 1618, 1621, 1632, and 1636 – Correction by page and by forme – Jaggard proofsheets of 1610, 1615, and 1621 – The two marked pages of Folio Lear – Incomplete corrections – Misinterpreting the corrector’s marks – ‘Memorially contaminated’ corrections – Accidental marks on a proofsheets – A possible miscorrection in outer K – Errata – Cancels – Pen-corrections – Excision – A possible printing-house expurgation in a copy of Lear
- 8 PRINTERS’ COPY 258
 The rarity of copy used by printers of Shakespeare – A titlepage layout used by Okes in 1611 – The manuscript of Sir Anthony Sherley’s Relation of his Travels – The absence of printers’ marks – A transcript perhaps used as copy –

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-04431-8 - The Texts of King Lear and their Origins, Volume I: Nicholas Okes and the First Quarto

Peter W. M. Blayney

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

Evidence for the use of the extant manuscript during press-correction – The seven hands of the manuscript – ‘Copy-editing’ by Hand 7 – Proper names – Substantive differences between the manuscript and the printed book – Press-corrections in three of Okes’s formes – The cautionary lesson of H1^r – Conclusions

9	EPILOGUE: OKES’S LATER CAREER	292
	Records and allusions, 1609–13 – The wills of Okes’s father and stepmother – Records and allusions, 1615–27 – The illicit partnership with John Norton – Sir John Lambe’s investigations – The burning of An Introduction to a Devout Life , and later repercussions – The quarrel between Okes and Norton – Retirement and death

Appendices

I	Documents	317
II	Checklist of books, 1604–9	334
III	Ornaments, initials, and type	432
	A Illustrations	432
	B Locations and references	457
	C Ornament-damage	486
	D Borrowings and lendings	491
	E Cast type	497
IV	Recurrent types in Lear	504
	A List of types	504
	B List of appearances	518
	C Quantities of standing type	528
	D Supplement to Greg’s list of misprints	537
V	Recurrent headlines in Okes’s quartos, 1607–8	540
VI	Press-variants and errata	559
	A Press-variants in Okes’s quartos, 1607–8	559
	B Variants in re-imposed and reset type	602
	C Errata, 1604–9	612
VII	Sir Anthony Sherley’s Relation of his Travels	630
	A The printed book	631
	B Select collation of proper names	643
	C Substantive collation	648

Addenda	666
----------------	-----

Bibliography	680
I Works cited	680
II Manuscripts cited	689

Index of STC numbers	692
-----------------------------	-----

General index	699
----------------------	-----