CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-06335-7 - Information Systems Development and Data Modeling: Conceptual and Philosophical Foundations
Rudy Hirschheim, Heinz K. Klein and Kalle Lyytinen
Index
More information

Index

access to information, 54 action norms, 216
action research, 123
active role of language, 109, 110 activity graphs, 200
actor, 20, 62
actual working practices, 95 adaptive systems development and prototyping, 35 agent, 77
agent for management, 78 Alice in Wonderland, 62 alternative paradigms, 5 analytical philosophy, 28 analytical sentences, 183
anarchy, 104, 105
ANSI/X3/SPARC, 43, 173
Anthony, 168
anti-positivism, 21, 89
applications backlog, 104 applications portfolio, 104, 106 appropriateness, 89
archetypes, 69
archetypical development approaches, 5 argumentation, 11
Aristotle, 60
artificial intelligence, 13, 176 assertives, 228
assumptions, 8, 69, 210
attributes, 20, 45
Austin, 220
authority structures, 201

barriers to a rational discourse, 88, 89 base of observational knowledge, 108 basic principles of the professional work practices approach, 131 behavior control, 79
being a professional, 130 beliefs, 12, 22
BIAIT, 25
bracketing, 153, 154, 162, 163
breakdowns, 121
business process reengineering, 28 business systems planning (BSP), 24, 25 canonical conceptual schema, 106 capital, 77

capturing, 170
Carnap, 146
Cartesian vision, 107
CASE, 34
case studies, 123
CASE tool, 103
categorical rules, 87
categories of knowledge, 87
CATWOE, 244
causes of development problems, 137 change process, 15
Checkland, 163
Chomsky, 176
class interests, 79
classic approaches, 33 classical data models, 173 classical systems life-cycle, 95 classification of communication barriers, 114 classifications, 209
classless society, 80
CODASYL, 31, 42
codes, 12
coercion, 47
cognitive mapping, 123
coherence or consistency theory, 87 collective resource approach, 39, 100 command structures, 201 commissives, 228
commitment, 227
commitment and obligation, 203 communication barriers, 126 communication difficulties, 86 communication gap, 35, 97, 113 communicative action, 88 communicative rationality, 89, 114 communities, 163
community of practitioners, 47 community user view, 43 comparative methodology review, 139 comparative review, 139 complete data model, 197 complex, 44
complex objects, 192
comprehensibility, 88
compulsions, 83
computer aided systems engineering (CASE), 101 computer-aided IE, 111
computer-aided information systems planning, 104 computer-aided rapid (evolutionary) systems development, 117

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-06335-7 - Information Systems Development and Data Modeling: Conceptual and Philosophical Foundations
Rudy Hirschheim, Heinz K. Klein and Kalle Lyytinen
Index
More information

computer-aided rapid prototyping, 117 computer-aided software environments, 241 concept of a reference, 145 concept of a rule, 198 concept of rational discourse, 89 concepts, 22
conceptual modeling, 26, 37 conceptual schema, 43, 183 conditions of human existence, 89 conflict, 47
conflict of interests, 82 connected set of ISD problems, 141 consensual action, 167
consensus, 76
consistency, 164
consistent data model, 197 constativa, 14
constraints, 44
constructive representation, 111 constructivist perspective, 164 constructivist school, 198 content, 15
content analysis, 123
control, 11
control of data, 110
control of systems design, 100 control of systems development, 54 control of users, 54
conversation, 230
cooperation, 79
cooperative design, 39, 100, 120 cooperative design approach, 100 cooperative prototyping, 118 coordinator, 231
correspondence relationship, 109 correspondence theory, 61 correspondence theory of truth, 87 cost–benefit analysis and assessment methodologies, 25 craftsmanship, 77, 79 creation and exchange of meanings, 11 critical reflection, 84 critical sciences, 84 critical social theory, 138 critical synthesis, 5
cultural analysis, 125
cultural biases, 84
cultural sciences, 83, 84 cultural stream of enquiry, 143

data, 12, 14
data abstraction, 40, 44
data classes, 106
data definitions, 106
data description language (DDL), 26 data fields, 41
data flow diagramming models, 112 data flow diagrams, 116 data independence, 40, 41 data model, 26, 106, 158, 164, 169, 170 data model taxonomies, 45 data modeling, 116, 154, 158, 159, 236 data modeling language, 232 data processing operations, 41 data processing system, 12 data-oriented analysis and design approaches, 23 data-oriented approach, 8 database architecture, 42 database management systems (DBMS), 173 database schemas, 23, 42
De Interpretatione, 60
declaratives, 228
deep structure, 176
degree, 44
democratic planning, 39
DEMOS, 38, 78, 80
denotational theory of data meaning, 178 denotational theory of meaning, 109 deontic logics, 203
Descartes, 21
descriptional framework, 135 descriptive belief, 189 designing tools for skilled workers, 38 deskilling of jobs, 77
determiners, 215
development group, 15 device media control language, 42 diagramming methods and tools, 103 diagrams, 240
dialectic, 77
dialectic inquiry, 125
dialectic materialism, 78
dialogical interaction, 84 diary keeping, 38, 76, 132 different meanings, 230 different types of lexical units, 213 direct manipulation support, 119 direct manipulation tools, 119 direction-of-fit, 227
directives, 228
discipline of computer science, 235 discourse, 167, 208
distortions, 126
distortions of communication, 85 distribution of control, 100 domain of change, 10
domination, 90, 126, 136
double hermeneutic, 162 double loop learning concept, 134 dualism of the natural and cultural sciences, 47 DUE, 38
dynamic modeling, 19, 44
dysfunctional consequences, 72, 79

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-06335-7 - Information Systems Development and Data Modeling: Conceptual and Philosophical Foundations
Rudy Hirschheim, Heinz K. Klein and Kalle Lyytinen
Index
More information

economic laws, 72
economic reality, 74, 77 effect uncertainty, 17
effectiveness, 107
efficiency, 107
emancipation, 5, 39, 81, 83, 84, 88, 90, 126, 167 emancipatory, 84
emancipatory approach, 138 emancipatory communication, 84 emancipatory discourse, 80, 84, 88 emancipatory ideal, 39
emancipatory rationality, 89
emancipatory systems, 127 emergent, 17
emergent nature of system requirements, 97 emergent sense-making, 97 empirical–analytical knowledge, 87 end-user computing (EUC), 105 end-user developed systems, 105 engineering metaphor, 34 engineering sciences, 83 enterprise description, 190 enterprise schema, 44, 105 enterprise view of data, 43 entities, 20
entity life-cycle analysis, 116 entity life-cycle models, 113 entity worlds, 180
entity-based approaches, 192 entity-based models, 44 entity-relationship (E-R) diagrams, 27 entity–relationship models, 112 environments, 15
epistemological assumptions, 3, 8 epistemological issues, 167 epistemology, 8, 71, 78, 89 epistemology approach, 156 epistemology of a methodology, 125 epistemology of neohumanism, 87 ergonomically sound design, 34 error handling, 54
errors of the third kind, 17 essential processes, 142 ETHICS, 36, 80, 93, 125, 248 ethnomethodological studies, 47 evaluate knowledge claims, 15 evolution of data modeling, 10 evolutionary learning, 74 evolutionary systems development, 102, 116 evolutionary systems development and prototyping, 35 excluded middle, 188
exegesis, 151
expansive prototyping, 118 exploitative ideology, 107 exploratory laboratory experiments, 123 expressiva, 14
expressives, 228
extensional theories of linguistic meaning, 148 external compulsions, 85 external control, 104
external schemas, 43
external views, 43
external world, 81

facilitator, 76
fact-based data modeling, 28 fact-based school, 171, 194 fact-based theory, 145
fallacy of historicism, 80
FAOR, 37, 113, 124
feature analysis, 29
features of object systems, 15 first-order predicate logic, 27
FLORENCE, 37, 80
flow charting, 29
formal, 183
formal concept refinement and analysis, 196 formal language, 145, 204 formal language development view, 160 formal language rules, 209 formal life-cycle, 104 formal specifications based prototyping, 117 forms of domination, 84 forms of life, 82, 135, 149, 207, 208 forms of mappings, 76 forms of tradition, 136 fourth generation techniques, 34 frame-based, 62
free-form text, 20
freedom, 80
Frege, 145
fruitful abstractions, 224 functional methodologies, 70 functional perspective, 11 functionalism, 4, 47, 71, 237 functionalism as the preferred paradigm, 73 functionalism in ISD, 69
functionalism's two essential assumptions, 73 functionalist approaches, 70, 158 functionalist data modeling, 157 functionalist methods, 71 functionalist perspective, 119 functionalist tools, 71 fundamental criticism, 83 fusion of horizons, 163

Gadamer, 151, 153
Gadamer-Habermas debate, 136
genealogy, 10
general problem formulating principles, 124 generalizable interest, 133 generalization hierarchies, 192 generations, 10, 28, 29

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-06335-7 - Information Systems Development and Data Modeling: Conceptual and Philosophical Foundations
Rudy Hirschheim, Heinz K. Klein and Kalle Lyytinen
Index
More information

generations of ISD methodologies, 95 generic intentions, 225 generic–specific, 215
grammar, 206
Grice's maxims of conversation, 166 grounded theory, 123
group think, 59

Habermas, 220, 223
Habermas' four validity claims, 231 hard methodology, 245
harmony, 61
healthy confusion, 104
Hedberg, 235
Hegel, 127
Heidegger, 151
Heidegger's phenomenology, 151 hermeneutics, 19, 88, 147, 151, 152 hermeneutic aspect of participation, 83 hermeneutic cycle, 127, 154 hermeneutic philosophy, 28 hermeneutic study, 151
hermeneutic theory of meaning, 153 hierarchical model, 42
historical evolution, 6 historical perspective, 6 horizon, 152, 154
horizon of meaning, 112, 162 horizontal prototypes, 117, 241 human activity systems, 124 human inquiry, 15, 33
human interest and power, 166 human interests, 79
human learning, 129
human reason, 83
human understanding, 13, 136 hybrid modeling, 20
hybrid models, 20

ideal language, 148
ideal of emancipation, 86 ideal of rational discourse, 90 ideal speech, 223
ideal speech situation, 86, 88
ideal type, 70
idealism, 21
ideological distortions, 83
ideology, 90
ill-defined application problems, 141 illocutionary act, 226, 227 illocutionary forces, 228 imperativa, 14
implementation strategies, 25 importance of language, 96 inadequate analysis, 109 includes structured methodologies, 101 inference making, 11 influence of the paradigms, 99 infological and datalogical levels, 32 information, 12, 14, 200 information base (IB), 184 information engineering (IE), 34, 104, 106 information engineering perspective, 101 information hiding, 193 Information modeling, 26 information requirements analysis, 24 information system (IS), 11, 178, 203 information systems architecture, 102, 105, 106, 141 information system development, 221 information systems development methodologies, 11, 22 information systems engineering, 25 information systems modeling, 112 information systems models, 20 information systems planning, 25, 44, 101, 102, 136 informative problems, 135 inquiry model, 125
institutional programming, 58 institutionalized conventions, 15 instrumental rationality, 89 instrumental work concept, 82 integrated CASE tools, 34
integrating, 105
integrationist, 47
intelligence failures, 104 intelligibility, 89
intensional logics, 196
intensional meaning, 145
intensional theories of linguistic meaning, 148 intensity of work, 77
intentional meaning, 189 intentional sentences, 188 intentionality, 16
intentions, 209
interests of labor, 79
internal compulsions, 84 internal control, 104
internal schema, 43
interpretation, 82
interpreted logic-based approaches, 192 interpretive predicate logic models, 44 intersubjective agreement, 209 intersubjective intelligibility, 222 intersubjectivity, 16
invariances, 13
invisible hand, 70
Iron and Metal Project, 38
irrational actions, 221
IS strategy, 44
ISA-KLAR project, 77
ISAC, 34
ISP, 106, 141
ISP/IE, 111

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-06335-7 - Information Systems Development and Data Modeling: Conceptual and Philosophical Foundations
Rudy Hirschheim, Heinz K. Klein and Kalle Lyytinen
Index
More information

joint optimization, 96

key actors, 8, 68
key problem aspects, 133
key roles, 68
kind of information flows, 54 knowing how, 224
knowing that, 224
knowledge, 12, 14
knowledge frame, 62
knowledge representation, 40, 107, 111 knowledge representation schema, 155 knowledgeable, 15
Kyng, 185

labor, 77
labor partisan, 77
labor process perspective, 100 Langefors, 175
language, 110, 209
language games, 149
language neutrality, 189 law making, 165
legal informatics, 201
legitimacy, 5
legitimation, 72
legitimized, 22
LEGOL/NORMA, 210, 212, 213, 219
Leibniz, 60, 145
level of indirection, 43 life world, 82
life-cycle, 24
limitation of prototyping, 122 linguistic philosophy, 28 linguistics, 60
locus of control, 105
logic of norms, 211
logic-based analysis, 125 logical levels, 41
logical program design, 32

man–machine communication, 118 manipulating and distorting communication, 51 manipulation, 82
mappings, 38
MARS, 37, 80, 129
material resources, 22
maximal critique, 133
meaning, 13
meaninglessness of system descriptions, 121 means uncertainty, 17, 96, 142 mechanism, 3 message meaning (expressed in speech acts), 208 meta-language, 146
meta-methodology, 124, 243 meta-theoretical assumptions, 47 metaphors, 132
method, 11, 22
methodological pluralism, 2 methodology, 29, 92, 128
methodology analysis, 138
mock-up, 119
mock-up simulations, 112 model of business functions, 106 model problems and solutions, 47 model theory, 196
modes of evidence, 221
Montague, 146
multi-perspective modeling (MPM), 111, 112, 113 multi-view approach to ISD, 113 multiple hermeneutics, 164 multiple interpretations, 103 multiple perspectives, 37
MULTIVIEW, 37, 124
Mumford, 235, 248
mutual learning, 98
mutual understanding, 37, 73, 81, 82, 88, 90

narrative, 8, 69
National Computing Centre, 32
NATO, 32
natural sciences, 235
nature of reality, 15
neohumanism, 47, 80, 237
neohumanist approach to data modeling, 165 neohumanist ISD, 80
neohumanist methodologies, 100 neohumanist perspective on prototyping, 121 neohumanist principles, 80 neopositivism, 146
neopositivist, 147
network model, 42
neutral medium, 110
neutral science, 79
nominalism, 21
non-distorted communication, 54
norm specification, 216 normative principles, 22

object, 62
object classes, 63
object system, 15, 78
object system change, 15 object system models, 32 object system representations, 20 object-oriented analysis and design approaches, 24 object-oriented model, 44, 193 object-oriented modelers, 194 object-oriented modeling, 111 objective reality, 59
objective-conflict, 47
objective-order, 47

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-06335-7 - Information Systems Development and Data Modeling: Conceptual and Philosophical Foundations
Rudy Hirschheim, Heinz K. Klein and Kalle Lyytinen
Index
More information

objectives, 15
objectives of information systems development, 88 objectivist, 47
obstacles to human communication, 88
Ogden, 145
On Contradiction, 99
ontological assumptions, 3, 8 ontological chart, 216
ontological dependencies, 215 ontological issues, 167 ontology, 8, 78, 81, 89 ontology and epistemology, 186 ontology approach, 156
order, 47
order–conflict, 47
ordinary language, 149
organizational agents, 75 organizational barriers to communication, 114 organizational compulsions, 86 organizational learning, 111 organizational power, 126
Organon, 60
orgware, 12
orthodoxy, 33
outcome or effect uncertainty, 142

paradigm, 4, 68, 95
paradigm shift, 2
paradigmatic assumptions, 6 paradigmatic assumptions analysis, 99 paradigmatic assumptions of functionalist ISD, 69 paradigmatic influences, 98 paradigmatic placement of methodologies, 92 paradigms which underlie systems development, 155 participation, 18, 76, 82, 84, 96, 97, 127 participative approaches, 36, 79 participative systems design methodologies, 36 participative systems development approaches, 36 participatory design approach, 127 participatory management, 100 participatory planning, 113 Pascal, 28
perceptual filters, 23 performative meanings, 66
perlocutionary acts, 226 personal knowledge, 87 perspective of social relativism, 120 phase structure, 240, 242
phenomenological perspective, 120 phenomenology, 101, 126 phenomenology of life-worlds, 132 philosophical analysis, 3 philosophical attribution, 95 philosophical controversies, 234 philosophical foundations, 5 philosophical hermeneutics, 151 Philosophical Investigations, 61 philosophical pragmatism, 21 philosophical tendencies, 95 physical barriers, 80
physical levels, 41
physical prototype, 102 picture theory of meaning, 61 Pitkin, 206
placement of specific methodologies, 10 planned evolution, 32
planning discourse, 114 plot, 8, 69
pluralist society, 18
policy implementation, 168 political center, 76 political system analysis, 125 politics, 70, 110
pool of design concepts, 135
PORGI, 36, 80, 135
positivism, 21, 71, 89
positivist research, 107 possible world semantics, 146, 196 power in organizations, 97 powers of intervention, 217 powers of legislation, 217 practical knowledge, 87
pragmatics, 66, 202
pre-database technology, 40 pre-methodology, 29
precedence analysis, 201
predicate logic, 60
predication, 145
predictive power, 108
preferred metaphor, 51
prejudice, 82, 153
preparatory conditions, 228
preplanned, 104
present at hand, 121
preunderstandings, 82, 136, 152 primacy of language, 54 principle of correspondence, 186 principle of objectivity, 187 principles of hermeneutics, 88 principles of social relativism, 237 problem definition, 141 problem formulation, 96, 141 problem perception, 96 problem solving synergy, 118 problem uncertainty, 17, 76, 96, 142 procedural scheme, 135 process oriented, 2
process representation, 19 process view, 134

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-06335-7 - Information Systems Development and Data Modeling: Conceptual and Philosophical Foundations
Rudy Hirschheim, Heinz K. Klein and Kalle Lyytinen
Index
More information

process–data software architecture, 111 process-data dichotomy, 23 process-oriented analysis and design, 23 process-oriented approach, 8, 101 process-oriented methodologies, 23 product view, 134
production factors, 82
professional language, 112 professional language communities, 207 professional vocabularies, 112 professional work practices, 128, 129 professional work practices approach, 101 professional work practices-based approach, 37 programming languages, 177 project data repository, 114 project diaries, 134
project management, 33
project-oriented systems development, 102 propositional acts, 226 prototype, 242
prototyping, 35, 74, 93, 94, 101, 104, 115, 241 prudence, 14
pseudo-natural constraints, 83 psychological compulsions, 81

Quine, 177

radical structuralism, 47 radical structuralist ISD, 76 radical structuralist methodologies, 100 raison d'etre, 54
rapid prototyping, 117
rational action, 221
rational choice, 4
rational discourse, 39, 80, 86, 89, 128, 138, 223 rational reconstruction, 224 rationality, 71
rationality of communication, 122 rationality of social action, 221 rationalization, 40, 79
rationally reconstructed, 40 ready to hand, 121
realism, 20, 89
reality, 75
reality construction, 75 reality mapping view, 160 reconstruction, 98, 224 reference, 109
referential meaning, 145, 189 reflection, 132
reflective practitioner, 132
regulativa, 14
reification, 70, 160
relational model, 42
relationships, 20, 44
representation forms, 15 representation of linguistic elements, 156 representation question, 159 representational assumptions, 8 research project organisation 131 resistance to change, 72 rich pictures, 37, 116, 125, 140, 143 Richards, 145
role of the analyst, 70, 73, 76 role–carriers, 215
romanticism, 3
root definition analysis, 116
root definitions, 37, 59, 126, 140, 163, 244 rule-based approaches, 231 rule-based data modeling, 28 rule-based school, 203
rule-based system, 204
rule-governed, 150
rules of predication, 226 rules of prudence, 87
rules of skill, 87
rules of universal pragmatics, 224 rules-of-thumb, 29
Russell, 159
Ryle, 155

SABRE, 29
SADT, 34
SAGE, 29
SAMPO, 39, 80
Sapir–Whorf hypothesis, 110, 148
Scandinavian school, 31
Scandinavian tradition, 34 schema, 26
schemata, 103
scientific paradigm of prediction, 75 Searle, 162, 220
seat-of-the-pants approaches, 29 second and third generation systems analysis techniques, 33 second wave technologies, 1 sedimentation, 58
self-realization, 80
self-reflection, 132
semantic analysis, 213
semantic data models, 44, 192 semantic models, 44, 220 semantic primitives, 218 semiformal notation, 20 semiotic approach, 114 sense-making, 5, 11, 15, 37, 73, 96 sentences, 161, 182
shared meanings, 82, 110
sign off, 34
Simon, 168
simple, 44
situation and interest analysis, 137 social action, 221

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-06335-7 - Information Systems Development and Data Modeling: Conceptual and Philosophical Foundations
Rudy Hirschheim, Heinz K. Klein and Kalle Lyytinen
Index
More information

social activity, 232
social classes, 77
social communication, 13 social community, 126
social complexity, 2
social conflict, 77
social construction of reality, 21, 109 social context, 156, 158 social context assumptions, 8 social context issues, 167 social contract, 137
social control, 126
social conventions, 72
social domination, 80
social injustice, 51
social institution, 208 social interaction, 76, 81 social philosophy, 6
social progress, 79
social reality construction, 5 social relativism, 47, 74, 75, 88, 97, 237 social relativist data modeling, 160, 162 social relativist ISD, 73 social system analysis, 125 social theory, 6
socially constructed, 15, 62 socially shared meanings, 37 socio-technical, 36
socio-technical system design, 95
sociolect, 112
Socratic ideal, 84
soft information, 12
Soft System Methodology (SSM), 23, 37, 80, 92, 101, 124, 141, 243 software crisis, 104
software development, 236 software engineering, 23, 25, 32 solidarity, 82
specification errors, 103 specifications prototyping, 116 speech act, 14
speech acts, 161
speech act theory, 202, 221, 225 SSADM, 34
stable data model, 106
stakeholders, 27, 37
standardizing the system development process, 103 standing orders, 216
state-tracking mechanism, 178 static modeling, 20
status norms, 217
structural perspective, 11 structure charts, 27
structure norms, 216
structured analysis and design methodologies, 23 structured approaches, 102 structured business systems analysis and specifications, 103 structured English, 20 structured methodologies, 19, 33, 239 structured methods, 95, 103 structured programming, 25, 34 structured system descriptions, 103 structured walk-through, 34
STS, 36
Subject Data Base Design, 25 subject database, 106
subject–predicate dichotomy, 60 subjective meanings, 81 subjective-conflict, 47 subjective-order, 47
subjectivist, 47
subjectivist data modeling, 171 subjectivist–objectivist, 47 supporting democratic planning, 38 surface structure, 176 symbolic interaction, 163, 222 symbolic interactionism, 75, 160 system description, 136 System Development Corporation, 32 system incompatibilities, 104, 105 system modeling, 125, 141 system objectives, 74 system specifications, 103 systemeering, 31
systems analysis, 11, 34 systems analysis techniques, 29 systems design, 11
systems designers' assumptions, 72 systems development, 11, 237 systems development life-cycle (SLC), 33, 90 systems expert, 69
systems life-cycle, 24 systems objectives, 70
systems rationalization, 77

tacit knowledge, 155
target system, 10
Tarski, 60, 146
taxonomy, 10
technical complexity, 2 technical control, 88, 90 technical knowledge, 87 technique, 11, 29
technological fixes, 234 technology architecture, 54 theoretical underpinnings, 5 theories of action, 49 theories of meaning, 175 theories of signs, 200, 202 theories of syntax, 202 theory of categories and predication, 60, 145 theory of communicative action, 133 theory of communicative human action, 221

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-06335-7 - Information Systems Development and Data Modeling: Conceptual and Philosophical Foundations
Rudy Hirschheim, Heinz K. Klein and Kalle Lyytinen
Index
More information

three level architecture, 43 time and events, 192
tool, 11
Tower of Babel, 24, 114
Tower of Babel problem, 207
Tractatus Logico-Philospohicus, 60
Tractatus world, 187
traditional approaches, 33 training, 54
transformation grammar, 176 truth claim, 14
truthfulness, 89
Tycho Brahe, 152
type of entities, 44
type–instance, 215
types, 92
types of knowledge, 83

ultimate goals, 107
ultimate goals for systems development, 108 unanticipated consequences of ISD, 133 uncertainty, 16
underlying tendencies, 95
undistorted communication, 89 unified ontology, 235
unit record, 41
Universe of Discourse (UoD), 10, 58, 178, 181, 182 unjust social conditions, 108 unknown values, 44
unwarranted constraints, 85
UoDD, 184
usability, 36
use of metaphors, 38
user communication, 96
user communication problems, 104 user friendly interfaces, 34 user interests, 100
user involvement, 36
user languages, 161
user resistance, 72, 79
user subschemas, 42
utilizing system, 10
UTOPIA, 38, 78, 80, 94, 246

validation, 165
validity checks, 60
validity claims, 84, 223 value choices, 4
values, 22
veracity, 89
versioning, 115
vertical prototype, 242
Vienna Circle, 146

walked-through, 34
Wealth of Nations, 70
web, 17
webs of conditions and factors, 17
Weltanschauung, 82, 126
Whitehead, 159
whole-part, 215
Winograd, 231
wisdom, 12, 15
Wittgenstein, 146, 160
Wittgenstein's philosophy of language, 147
Wittgenstein's theory of language games, 224
Wittgensteinian theory of language, 203 work, 81
work language, 112, 113 work language communities, 112 worker control, 100
worker interests, 77
working practices, 131
world, 81
world of shared meanings, 81

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org