

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-08716-2 - Heavenly Clockwork: The Great Astronomical Clocks of Medieval China, Second Edition

Joseph Needham, Wang Ling, and Derek J. de Solla Price

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

List of Illustrations	page vii
Chronological Table	x
Notes and Conventions	xii
Foreword to the Second Edition	xv
Introduction	I
I BIOGRAPHY OF SU SUNG	5
II TRANSMISSION OF THE TEXT OF SU SUNG'S BOOK	10
III SU SUNG'S MEMORIAL TO THE EMPEROR CHÊ TSUNG	15
IV TRANSLATION OF SU SUNG'S THIRD CHAPTER	28
V EXPLANATION OF SU SUNG'S CLOCKWORK	48
VI THE HISTORICAL BACKGROUND OF SU SUNG'S CLOCK	60
1 Armillaries before Su Sung, p. 61
2 Dial-faces and anaphoric clocks, p. 64
3 The deceptive language of Han Hsien-Fu (eleventh century), p. 68
4 The mercury drive of Chang Ssu-Hsün (tenth century), p. 70
5 I-Hsing and the first evidence of the escapement (eighth century), p. 74
6 The adventurous life of Kêng Hsün (sixth century), p. 83
7 A survey of Chinese clepsydra technique, p. 85
8 The birth of the celestial globe (fifth century), p. 94
9 The grand ancestor of all clock drives: Chang Hêng (second century), p. 100
VII THE DEVELOPMENT OF CLOCKWORK AFTER SU SUNG	114
1 Sung dynasty politics and competing clock-makers, p. 118
2 Horology in the south after the fall of the capital (A.D. 1126), p. 126
3 The fate of Su Sung's clock in the north among the Chin Tartars, p. 131
4 Clockwork under the Mongols (thirteenth and fourteenth centuries), p. 133
5 Entry of the Jesuits with their 'self-sounding bells', p. 142
6 The Jesuits as makers and repairers of clocks in nomine Dei , p. 148
7 The merchants of the 'sing-song' trade, p. 150
8 Ming sand clocks, p. 154
9 A Korean orrery, p. 161
10 Chinese opinions of Jesuit clockwork, p. 163

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-08716-2 - Heavenly Clockwork: The Great Astronomical Clocks of Medieval China, Second Edition

Joseph Needham, Wang Ling, and Derek J. de Solla Price

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

VIII THE CONTEXT OF THE INVENTIONS	page 170
1 The vermilion pens of the Ladies-Secretarial, p. 170
2 The computing machines of the Clerks-Calendrical, p. 173
IX GENERAL HISTORY AND TRANSMISSION OF ASTRONOMICAL CLOCKS	179
1 The evolution of astronomical models, p. 180
2 The evolution of power-driven astronomical models, p. 183
3 The Hellenistic background to horology, p. 184
4 The Chinese background to horology (before c. A.D. 850), p. 187
5 Islam and India (between c. A.D. 850 and the transmission to Europe), p. 187
6 European clockwork after the transmission from Islam, p. 192
Appendix: CHINESE HORARY SYSTEMS	199
Supplement	206
Bibliography to Supplement	216
General Bibliography	219
Tables of Chinese Characters	229
1 Technical terms in the main text, p. 229
2 Technical terms and phrases in the ancillary texts, p. 233
3 Names of persons, p. 236
4 Titles of books and other writings, p. 239
5 Names of places, p. 240
6 Titles, institutions, buildings, expressions, etc., p. 241
Index	243