Many interpreters of the Fourth Gospel detect allusions to biblical texts about marriage, but none offers a comprehensive analysis of these proposed allusions or a convincing explanation for their presence. Building on the work of Richard Hays and Donald Juel, Jocelyn McWhirter argues that John alludes to biblical texts about marriage in order to develop a metaphor for Jesus and how he relates to his followers. These texts seem to have been interpreted as messianic prophecies, and applied by John to events in Jesus' life and death. McWhirter shows how verbal parallels link John's evoked marriage texts to Psalm 45 about God's anointed king. Messianic interpretation of these texts allows John to use them in portraying Jesus as a bridegroom-Messiah and depicting Jesus' relationship with his followers in terms of marriage.

JOCELYN MCWHIRTER is an Assistant Professor of Religious Studies at Albion College in Albion, Michigan. This is her first book.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This monograph is a revision of my doctoral dissertation, submitted to Princeton Theological Seminary in 2001. It has been thoroughly updated to reflect developments in scholarship since then.

Many others have played an instrumental role in its production. I owe thanks first to my teachers. Rod Whitacre at Trinity Episcopal School for Ministry got me interested in the Fourth Gospel. My dissertation director, the late Donald Juel, introduced me to the concept of messianic exegesis, patiently reviewed most of this document's many versions, and consistently steered me in the right direction. Beverly Gaventa added helpful comments to an early attempt. Committee members James Charlesworth and Ross Wagner carefully read the final drafts and offered crucial insights.

Additional thanks are due to several of my colleagues. My friend Elisabeth Johnson offered a thoughtful response to the first draft of Chapter 3. John Miller shared information about the Testament of Judah. Alan Iser, my colleague at Saint Joseph's University, answered my questions about Jewish exegetical traditions and contemporary praxis. I must also acknowledge my fellow residents Charlene Moss, Michael Daise, Bill Campbell, Lidija Novakovic, and Raquel St. Clair, whose contributions to my intellectual development and emotional stability cannot be measured.

My friends and family members have been a constant source of support and encouragement since this project began. I am especially grateful to my children Jamie and Teddy, who put up with me as I made the final revisions.
