Cambridge University Press 978-0-521-09993-6 - Problems and Theories of Philosophy Kazimierz Ajdukiewicz Table of Contents More information

Contents

	Translators' preface Preface	Page vii xix
	Introduction
	Theory of knowledge, metaphysics and other philosophical disciplines	I
	Part I The theory of knowledge
1	Classical problems of the theory of knowledge	7
2	The problem of truth	9
	The classical definition of truth and objections to it	9
	Truth as agreement with criteria	II
	Nonclassical definitions of truth	12
	A proper formulation of the classical concept of truth	17
	Scepticism and its refutation	18
	Nonclassical definitions of truth as leading to idealism	21
3	Problems of the source of knowledge	22
	Psychological and epistemological versions of this problem	22
	Apriorism and empiricism	25
	Radical apriorism	26

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
78-0-521-09993-6 - Problems and Theories of Philosophy	7
Kazimierz Ajdukiewicz
Table of Contents
More information

Radical empiricism       27         Moderate empiricism       27         Moderate apriorism       29         The dispute between empiricism and apriorism about the character of mathematical assertions       30         Pure and applied mathematics       31         A view of moderate empiricism       36         Conventionalism       36         A view of moderate apriorism: the teaching of Kant       38         The essence of a priori cognition according to phenomenologists       42         Rationalism and irrationalism       45         4       The problem of the limits of knowledge       50         Two meanings of transcendence       50         Immanent epistemological idealism       52         Perception and its object       54         Transcendental epistemological idealism       56         Kant as representative of transcendental idealism       59         Realism       62         Positivism       63         64       The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems       73         71       Ontology       76         72       Ontology       76         74       Ontology       76         75       The tasks of ontology       76			Page
Moderate empiricism       27         Moderate apriorism       29         The dispute between empiricism and apriorism about the character of mathematical assertions       30         Pure and applied mathematical assertions       30         Pure and applied mathematical assertions       30         Pure and applied mathematics       31         A view of moderate empiricism       36         Conventionalism       36         A view of moderate apriorism: the teaching of Kant       38         The essence of a priori cognition according to phenomenologists       42         Rationalism and irrationalism       45         4       The problem of the limits of knowledge       50         Two meanings of transcendence       50         Immanent epistemological idealism       52         Perception and its object       54         Transcendental epistemological idealism       59         Realism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       65         5       The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics'         6       The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems       73         7       Ontology <td></td> <td>Radical empiricism</td> <td></td>		Radical empiricism
The dispute between empiricism and apriorism about the character of mathematical assertions       30         Pure and applied mathematics       31         A view of moderate empiricism       36         A view of radical empiricism       36         Conventionalism       36         A view of moderate apriorism: the teaching of Kant       38         The essence of a priori cognition according to phenomenologists       42         Rationalism and irrationalism       45         4       The problem of the limits of knowledge       50         Two meanings of transcendence       50         Immanent epistemological idealism       52         Perception and its object       54         Transcendental epistemological idealism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       65         5       The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics'         6       The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems       73         The division of metaphysical problems       74         7       Ontology       76         7       Ontology       76         7       Ontology       76         7			27
character of mathematical assertions       30         Pure and applied mathematics       31         A view of moderate empiricism       35         A view of radical empiricism       36         Conventionalism       36         A view of moderate apriorism: the teaching of Kant       38         The essence of a priori cognition according to phenomenologists       42         Rationalism and irrationalism       45         4       The problem of the limits of knowledge       50         Two meanings of transcendence       50         Immanent epistemological idealism       52         Perception and its object       54         Transcendental epistemological idealism       50         Realism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       65         5       The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics         6       The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems       73         The division of metaphysical problems       74         7       Ontology       76         7       Ontology       76         7       Ontology       76         7		Moderate apriorism	29
Pure and applied mathematics       31         A view of moderate empiricism       36         A view of radical empiricism       36         Conventionalism       36         A view of moderate apriorism: the teaching of Kant       38         The essence of a priori cognition according to phenomenologists       42         Rationalism and irrationalism       45         4       The problem of the limits of knowledge       50         Two meanings of transcendence       50         Immanent epistemological idealism       52         Perception and its object       54         Transcendental epistemological idealism       50         Kant as representative of transcendental idealism       59         Realism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       65         5       The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other         philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics         6       The origin of the word 'metaphysics' and the division of problems         7       Ontology       73         The tasks of ontology       76         Fxamples of concepts analysed by ontology       78		The dispute between empiricism and apriorism about the
A view of moderate empiricism       35         A view of radical empiricism       36         Conventionalism       36         A view of moderate apriorism: the teaching of Kant       38         The essence of a priori cognition according to phenomenologists       42         Rationalism and irrationalism       45         4       The problem of the limits of knowledge       50         Two meanings of transcendence       50         Immanent epistemological idealism       52         Perception and its object       54         Transcendental epistemological idealism       50         Realism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       65         5       The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences         Part II Metaphysics       69         Part II Metaphysics       61         7       Ontology       73         The division of metaphysical problems       74         7       Ontology       76         7       Ontology       76         7       Ontology       76         7       Ontology       76         Fxamples of concepts analysed by ontology       78		character of mathematical assertions	30
A view of radical empiricism       36         Conventionalism       36         A view of moderate apriorism: the teaching of Kant       38         The essence of a priori cognition according to phenomenologists       42         Rationalism and irrationalism       45         4       The problem of the limits of knowledge       50         Two meanings of transcendence       50         Immanent epistemological idealism       52         Perception and its object       54         Transcendental epistemological idealism       50         Kant as representative of transcendental idealism       59         Realism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       65         5       The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics       61         6       The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems       73         The division of metaphysical problems       74         7       Ontology       76		Pure and applied mathematics	31
Conventionalism       36         A view of moderate apriorism: the teaching of Kant       38         The essence of a priori cognition according to phenomenologists       42         Rationalism and irrationalism       45         4       The problem of the limits of knowledge       50         Two meanings of transcendence       50         Immanent epistemological idealism       52         Perception and its object       54         Transcendental epistemological idealism       56         Kant as representative of transcendental idealism       59         Realism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       65         5       The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics       61         6       The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems       73         The division of metaphysical problems       74         7       Ontology       76         7       Ontology       76         7       Ontology       76         78       Kat ss of ontology       78			35
A view of moderate apriorism: the teaching of Kant       38         The essence of a priori cognition according to phenomenologists       42         Rationalism and irrationalism       45         4       The problem of the limits of knowledge       50         Two meanings of transcendence       50         Immanent epistemological idealism       52         Perception and its object       54         Transcendental epistemological idealism       59         Realism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       65         5       The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics       69         Part II Metaphysics' and the division of problems       73         The division of metaphysical problems       74         7       Ontology       76         7       Ontology       76         7       Ontology       76         7       Ontology       76         7       Oncology       76         7       Oncology       76         7       Oncology       76         7       Oncology       76         78       Foncepts analysed by ontolog			-
The essence of a priori cognition according to phenomenologists       42         Rationalism and irrationalism       45         4 The problem of the limits of knowledge       50         Two meanings of transcendence       50         Immanent epistemological idealism       52         Perception and its object       54         Transcendental epistemological idealism       50         Kant as representative of transcendental idealism       59         Realism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       65         5 The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics       69         Part II Metaphysics' and the division of problems       73         The origin of the word 'metaphysics' and the division       74         7 Ontology       76         74       Ontology       76         75       The tasks of ontology       76         76       The origin of concepts analysed by ontology       78			-
gists       42         Rationalism and irrationalism       45         4       The problem of the limits of knowledge       50         Two meanings of transcendence       50         Immanent epistemological idealism       52         Perception and its object       54         Transcendental epistemological idealism       56         Kant as representative of transcendental idealism       59         Realism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       65         5       The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics       66         6       The origin of the word 'metaphysics' and the division of problems       73         The division of metaphysical problems       74         7       Ontology       76         The tasks of ontology       76         Examples of concepts analysed by ontology       78		A view of moderate apriorism: the teaching of Kant
Rationalism and irrationalism       45         4       The problem of the limits of knowledge       50         Two meanings of transcendence       50         Immanent epistemological idealism       52         Perception and its object       54         Transcendental epistemological idealism       56         Kant as representative of transcendental idealism       59         Realism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       65         5       The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics       66         6       The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems       73         The origin of the word 'metaphysics'       73         The division of metaphysical problems       74         7       Ontology       76         The tasks of ontology       76         Examples of concepts analysed by ontology       78
4       The problem of the limits of knowledge       50         Two meanings of transcendence       50         Immanent epistemological idealism       52         Perception and its object       54         Transcendental epistemological idealism       56         Kant as representative of transcendental idealism       59         Realism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       65         5       The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics       69         Part II Metaphysics       73         The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems       73         The division of metaphysical problems       74         7       Ontology       76         The tasks of ontology       76         Examples of concepts analysed by ontology       78
The problem of the finite of knowledge       50         Two meanings of transcendence       50         Immanent epistemological idealism       52         Perception and its object       54         Transcendental epistemological idealism       56         Kant as representative of transcendental idealism       59         Realism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       62         S       The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences         Part II Metaphysics       69         Part II Metaphysics       73         The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems       73         The division of metaphysical problems       74         7       Ontology       76         The tasks of ontology       76         Examples of concepts analysed by ontology       78		Rationalism and irrationalism	45
Two meanings of transcendence       50         Immanent epistemological idealism       52         Perception and its object       54         Transcendental epistemological idealism       56         Kant as representative of transcendental idealism       59         Realism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       65         5       The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics       69         Part II Metaphysics       73         The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems       73         The division of metaphysical problems       74         7       Ontology       76         The tasks of ontology       76         Examples of concepts analysed by ontology       78	4	The problem of the limits of knowledge	50
Immanent epistemological idealism       52         Perception and its object       54         Transcendental epistemological idealism       56         Kant as representative of transcendental idealism       59         Realism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       65         5       The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics       69         Part II Metaphysics       73         The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems       73         The division of metaphysical problems       74         7       Ontology       76         The tasks of ontology       76         Examples of concepts analysed by ontology       78			50
Perception and its object       54         Transcendental epistemological idealism       56         Kant as representative of transcendental idealism       59         Realism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       65         5       The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics       69         Contrology       73         The origin of the word 'metaphysics' and the division of metaphysical problems       74         7       Ontology       76         The tasks of ontology       76         Examples of concepts analysed by ontology       78			-
Transcendental epistemological idealism       56         Kant as representative of transcendental idealism       59         Realism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       65         5       The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics       69         6       The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems       73         The origin of the word 'metaphysics'       73         The division of metaphysical problems       74         7       Ontology       76         The tasks of ontology       76         Examples of concepts analysed by ontology       78			-
Kant as representative of transcendental idealism       59         Realism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       65         5       The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics       69         6       The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems       73         The origin of the word 'metaphysics'       73         The division of metaphysical problems       74         7       Ontology       76         The tasks of ontology       76         Examples of concepts analysed by ontology       78			56
Realism       61         Positivism       62         Neopositivism       65         5       The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics       69         6       The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems       73         The origin of the word 'metaphysics'       73         The division of metaphysical problems       74         7       Ontology       76         The tasks of ontology       76         Examples of concepts analysed by ontology       78			59
Neopositivism       65         5 The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics       69         6 The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems       73         The origin of the word 'metaphysics'       73         The division of metaphysical problems       74         7 Ontology       76         The tasks of ontology       76         Examples of concepts analysed by ontology       78			61
<ul> <li>5 The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other philosophical sciences</li> <li>6 Part II Metaphysics</li> <li>6 The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems</li> <li>73 The origin of the word 'metaphysics'</li> <li>73 The division of metaphysical problems</li> <li>74</li> <li>7 Ontology</li> <li>76 The tasks of ontology</li> <li>78 Examples of concepts analysed by ontology</li> </ul>		Positivism	62
philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics         6       The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems         73       The origin of the word 'metaphysics'         73       The division of metaphysical problems         74       74         75       Ontology         76       The tasks of ontology         78       For the tasks of ontology         78       76         77       76         76       76         77       77         76       76         77       76         76       76         77       76         77       77         76       76         77       77         76       76         77       77         78       78         78       78		Neopositivism	65
philosophical sciences       69         Part II Metaphysics         6       The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems         73       The origin of the word 'metaphysics'         73       The division of metaphysical problems         74       74         75       Ontology         76       The tasks of ontology         78       For the tasks of ontology         78       76         77       76         76       76         77       77         76       76         77       76         76       76         77       76         77       77         76       76         77       77         76       76         77       77         78       78         78       78	5	The relation of the theory of knowledge to the other
Part II Metaphysics         6 The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems         73 The origin of the word 'metaphysics'         73 The division of metaphysical problems         74         7 Ontology       76         76 The tasks of ontology       76         78 Examples of concepts analysed by ontology       78	-		69
<ul> <li>6 The origin of the term 'metaphysics' and the division of problems</li> <li>73 The origin of the word 'metaphysics'</li> <li>73 The division of metaphysical problems</li> <li>74</li> <li>7 Ontology</li> <li>76 The tasks of ontology</li> <li>76 Examples of concepts analysed by ontology</li> <li>78</li> </ul>		p
of problems73The origin of the word 'metaphysics'73The division of metaphysical problems747Ontology76The tasks of ontology76Examples of concepts analysed by ontology78		Part II Metaphysics
of problems73The origin of the word 'metaphysics'73The division of metaphysical problems747Ontology76The tasks of ontology76Examples of concepts analysed by ontology78	6	The origin of the term 'metanhysics' and the division
The division of metaphysical problems747Ontology76The tasks of ontology76Examples of concepts analysed by ontology78	0	of problems	73
The division of metaphysical problems747Ontology76The tasks of ontology76Examples of concepts analysed by ontology78		The origin of the word 'metaphysics'	73
The tasks of ontology 76 Examples of concepts analysed by ontology 78			74
The tasks of ontology76Examples of concepts analysed by ontology78	7	Ontology	76
Examples of concepts analysed by ontology 78			76
Ontological assertions 80
		Ontological assertions

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-09993-6 - Problems and Theories of Philosophy
Kazimierz Ajdukiewicz
Table of Contents
Moreinformation
Moreinformation

		Page
8	Metaphysical inferences from reflections on knowledge	82
	The problem of ideal objects: the controversy about universals Platonic ideas, Universals, The contemporary form of the dispute about universals	82
	The problem of metaphysical idealism	85
	<ul> <li>(a) Subjective idealism, The consequences of epistemological idealism, The thesis of subjective idealism, Reality and its appearance in the light of subjective idealism</li> <li>(b) Objective idealism, The inadequacies of subjective</li> </ul> idealism, Judgements in the psychological sense and judgements in the logical sense, The world of objective spirit, The thesis of objective idealism, Representatives of objective idealism, Hegel's dialectic, The dialectic of Hegel and the dialectic of Marx
	(c) Metaphysical realism, Naive and critical realism
9	Metaphysical problems arising from the investigation
	of nature	101
	The problem of the substance and structure of the world	101
	The problem of soul and body	102
	What substances exist in nature?, Dualism, Extreme and moderate dualism, Monism and its varieties, Materialism, Mechanical materialism, Dialectical materialism, Materialism in conflict with idealism, Materialism in conflict with dualism, A general characterisation of materialism, The relation of physical to mental phenomena, Emotional sources of opposition to materialism, Spiritualism, Monism proper: the identity theory, Immanent monism
	Determinism and indeterminism	128
	The controversy about the causal constitution of nature, Analysis and criticism of the concept of cause, The problem of prediction, Are the laws of nature only statistical laws?, Freedom of the will, The problem of the existence of the future
	Mechanism and finalism	137
	The controversy about the purposive arrangement of the world, Anthropomorphic purposiveness, Biological mechanism and vitalism, A non-anthropomorphic concep	t

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-09993-6 - Problems and Theories of Philosophy
Kazimierz Ajdukiewicz
Table of Contents
Moreinformation

	of purposive constitution, Neovitalists, Holism, Utilitarian purposiveness, Optimism and pessimism	Page
10	Metaphysical problems arising from religion	151
	The religious concept of deity	151
	The immortality of the soul	152
	Religious metaphysics	152
	The philosophical concept of deity	153
	Proofs of the existence of God	154
	God and the world	155
	Atheism	156
	The problem of the immortality of the soul among
	philosophers	157
	Religious metaphysics and ethics	158
11	Metaphysics as the attempt to achieve an ultimate
	world-outlook	160
Con	cluding remarks	169