

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-10061-8 - Christianity According to St Paul

Charles A. Anderson Scott

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

Preface . . . . . page vii

Chapter I

INTRODUCTION . . . . . 1-25

St Paul—the purpose and character of his letters—a Jew, though a Hellenistic Jew—the general impression confirmed by his pride of race, his conception of God, his use of the Old Testament and his ultimate hope of a ‘spiritual Israel.’

The possible sources of his thought and vocabulary—had he seen Jesus?—his knowledge of the historical Jesus—of His teaching—and His character.

Christianity according to St Paul best studied under the aspect of Salvation—‘Paulinism’ a misleading name—Salvation the most comprehensive term—and one universally current at the time.

Chapter II

SALVATION AS A FACT OF THE PAST . . . . . 26-97

I. Redemption or Emancipation . . . . . 27

(i) from servitude to Evil Spirits . . . . . 28

(ii) from the bondage of the Law . . . . . 38

(iii) St Paul and the Law . . . . . 41

(iv) redemption from the servitude of Sin . . . . . 46

II. Justification . . . . . 53

(i) a concomitant of Reconciliation . . . . . 53

(ii) examination of Romans i-iii . . . . . 59

(iii) justification and forgiveness . . . . . 74

III. Reconciliation . . . . . 75

(i) scope of the reconciliation, God or man or both . . . . . 77

(ii) how it was effected . . . . . 83

(iii) the death of Christ as a Sacrifice . . . . . 85

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-10061-8 - Christianity According to St Paul

Charles A. Anderson Scott

Table of Contents

More information

xij

CONTENTS

*Chapter III*SALVATION: ITS APPROPRIATION, FAITH pages 98-133

- |                                                |     |
|------------------------------------------------|-----|
| I. Faith evoked by the Word . . . . .          | 99  |
| II. The response and nature of faith . . . . . | 102 |
| III. Faith-union with Christ . . . . .         | 108 |
| IV. The seal upon faith: Baptism . . . . .     | 114 |
| V. St Paul and the mystery-religions . . . . . | 122 |

*Chapter IV*SALVATION: AS A PROGRESSIVE EXPERIENCE 134-235

- |                                                                     |     |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| I. 'Life' as synonymous with Salvation . . . . .                    | 135 |
| II. The principle of Life: the Spirit . . . . .                     | 141 |
| III. The newness of Life . . . . .                                  | 146 |
| IV. The sphere of Life . . . . .                                    | 150 |
| (i) in the Spirit . . . . .                                         | 150 |
| (ii) in Christ . . . . .                                            | 151 |
| (iii) in the Fellowship . . . . .                                   | 158 |
| V. The implications of Life, freedom, sonship, the Spirit . . . . . | 169 |
| VI. Growth in salvation-life . . . . .                              | 173 |
| VII. The Lord's Supper or Eucharist . . . . .                       | 181 |
| VIII. The expression of Life in character and conduct . . . . .     | 197 |
| (i) the source of ethical aspiration—love . . . . .                 | 202 |
| (ii) the guiding principle of consistency . . . . .                 | 207 |
| (iii) the incompatibility of the spiritual and the carnal . . . . . | 212 |
| (iv) the standards of ethical duty . . . . .                        | 214 |
| (v) social relations . . . . .                                      | 221 |
| (vi) women and marriage . . . . .                                   | 224 |
| (vii) women in the Church . . . . .                                 | 227 |
| (viii) parents and children . . . . .                               | 228 |
| (ix) master and slave . . . . .                                     | 229 |
| (x) relations within the community . . . . .                        | 230 |
| (xi) limitations of Paul's ethical teaching . . . . .               | 232 |

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-10061-8 - Christianity According to St Paul

Charles A. Anderson Scott

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

xiiij

Chapter v

SALVATION: ITS CONSUMMATION IN THE FUTURE . . . . .	pages 236–243
St Paul's large use of Jewish eschatology . . . . .	237
Two of the three factors in Salvation wait for completion . . . . .	238
The resurrection and the spiritual body . . . . .	239
The consummation to be realised in a personal relation . . . . .	241

Chapter vi

SALVATION: ITS AUTHOR AND PERFECTER, CHRIST . . . . .	244–279
St Paul's Christology springs from his experience of Salvation . . . . .	245
(i) Jesus the Messiah . . . . .	246
(ii) His full humanity . . . . .	248
(iii) The Lord—'Kyrios' . . . . .	249
(iv) the Son . . . . .	255
(v) the relation between Christ and the Spirit . . . . .	257
(vi) the second Adam . . . . .	261
(vii) side-lights on Paul's Christology, the Wisdom, the Glory and the Stone . . . . .	263
(viii) the pre-existence of Christ . . . . .	269
(ix) Christ and God . . . . .	270
(x) Conclusion . . . . .	277

Indices

I. Of Subjects . . . . .	280
II. Of Authors . . . . .	282
III. Of Principal Passages . . . . .	284