

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-10502-6 - The Neolithic Cultures of the British Isles: A Study of the Stone-using Agricultural Communities of Britain in the Second Millennium B.C.

Stuart Piggott

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

Foreword to New Edition	page xi
Preface	xiii
Introduction	xv
List of Text-figures	xix
List of Plates	xxiii
Chapter I The Natural and Human Background of Neolithic Settlement in the British Isles	page 1
The natural history, p. 1; vegetation in Zone VII: the flora of Neolithic Britain, p. 3; the exploitation of forest resources, p. 9; the fauna of Neolithic Britain, p. 10; the human population: Mesolithic communities in Britain, p. 13.
Chapter II The Sites and Monuments of the Windmill Hill Culture	page 17
The 'causewayed camps' of Wessex and Sussex, p. 18; other settlement sites in southern Britain and west Wales, p. 32; flint-axe factories and mines, p. 36; the use of stone axes (other than flint) in the Windmill Hill culture, p. 45; religion and the disposal of the dead, p. 46; collective burial in earthen long barrows, p. 50.
Chapter III The Material Equipment, Origins and Relationships of the Windmill Hill Culture	page 66
Pottery, p. 66; flint and stone, p. 75; bone and antler, p. 80; miscellaneous small objects of chalk and other stones: ornaments, etc., p. 85; art, p. 88; agricultural equipment and cereals, p. 89; domesticated animals, p. 89; summary: the main features of the Windmill Hill culture, p. 91.
Chapter IV The Expansion of the Windmill Hill Culture	page 102
The sites and monuments of the culture in Lincolnshire and Yorkshire: long barrows, p. 103; round barrows, p. 111; habitation sites, p. 112; material equipment, p. 114; summary, p. 118.
Chapter V The Neolithic Colonization of the West and North: Chambered Tombs and their Builders	page 122
Introduction: the problems of the British chambered tombs, p. 122; the regional groups: the Severn-Cotswold chambered cairns, p. 129; material equipment, p. 142; collective burial under a round cairn, p. 147; use of tombs in the Bronze Age, p. 148; a probable outpost of the Severn-Cotswold tombs in north Wales, p. 148; relationship of the Severn-Cotswold tombs, p. 149.

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-10502-6 - The Neolithic Cultures of the British Isles: A Study of the Stone-using Agricultural Communities of Britain in the Second Millennium B.C.

Stuart Piggott

Table of Contents

More information

viii

CONTENTS

Chapter VI The Clyde-Carlingford Culture in Western Scotland and Northern Ireland page 152

Introduction, p. 152; the cairns and their plans, p. 159; the burials and funeral ritual, p. 165; material equipment, p. 167; use of tombs in the Bronze Age, p. 177; habitation sites, p. 178; outlying colonies of the Clyde-Carlingford culture, p. 179; the relationships and chronology of the Clyde-Carlingford culture, p. 181; other chambered tombs of gallery-grave derivation in Ireland, p. 189.

Chapter VII Passage-grave Builders in Ireland: The Boyne Culture page 193

Introduction, p. 193; cairns and their plans, p. 194; material equipment, p. 201; art, p. 208; agriculture and domestic animals, p. 218; use of the tombs in the Early Iron Age, p. 218; the relationships of the Boyne tombs in Britain, p. 219; Continental affinities of the Boyne tombs, p. 221.

Chapter VIII The Colonization of the Highlands and Islands: Chambered-tomb Builders in the Hebridean and Orkney-Cromarty Regions page 223

Introduction, p. 223; the Hebridean group of chambered tombs, p. 224; material equipment, p. 228; relationships of the Hebridean culture, p. 230; the Orkney-Cromarty group of chambered tombs, p. 232; material equipment, p. 248; cereals, p. 252; re-use of tombs in the Early Bronze Age, p. 252; the question of the Maes Howe 'treasure', p. 253; the relationships of the Orkney-Cromarty group, p. 254.

Chapter IX Miscellaneous Chambered-tomb Groups and Other Related Sites in the British Isles page 257

Introduction, p. 257; the Clava group of chambered tombs, p. 257; chambered tombs in Shetland, p. 262; the Scilly-Tramore group of chambered tombs, p. 264; the Derbyshire group of chambered tombs, p. 267; the Medway group of chambered tombs, p. 269; miscellaneous chambered tombs in Wales and the west of England, p. 269; long cairns in north Britain, p. 270; miscellaneous sites in Britain, p. 271; Lough Gur, and miscellaneous burial sites in Ireland, p. 272.

Chapter X The Secondary Neolithic Cultures: The Flint and Stone Industries page 276

Introduction, p. 276; non-Western elements in the flint-mine industries, p. 281; the heavy flint industries, p. 282; the light flint industries, p. 285; the axe-factories of igneous stones, p. 287; axe-factories in Cornwall, etc., p. 299; the use of Presely stone, p. 300.

Chapter XI The Regional Communities of the Secondary Neolithic Cultures page 302

Introduction, p. 302; the Peterborough culture, p. 302; material equipment, p. 308; the relationships of the Peterborough culture, p. 312; Secondary Neolithic cultures in Ireland: the Bann culture, p. 316; the Sandhill wares, p. 317; a note on Scandinavian pottery finds in eastern England, p. 321; the Rinyo-Clacton culture, p. 321; the

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-10502-6 - The Neolithic Cultures of the British Isles: A Study of the Stone-using Agricultural Communities of Britain in the Second Millennium B.C.

Stuart Piggott

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

ix

northern province, p. 324; material equipment, p. 328; other settlement sites in the northern province, p. 336; the southern province, p. 337; material equipment, p. 338; the relationships of the Rinyo-Clacton culture, p. 343; the Ronaldsway culture, p. 346; material equipment, p. 348; the relationships of the Ronaldsway culture, p. 351; the Dorchester culture, p. 351; material equipment, p. 358; the relationships of the Dorchester culture, p. 361; a note on Circumpolar Stone Age elements in Shetland, p. 363.

Chapter XII The Content, Relationships, and Chronology of the British Neolithic Cultures page 365

The content of the cultures, p. 365; the relationships of British Neolithic cultures, p. 370; relative chronology in the British Isles, p. 373; the sequence in its European setting, p. 376; absolute chronology, p. 379.

Appendix A The Windmill Hill Culture page 382

Appendix B Peterborough Ware 384

Appendix C Rinyo-Clacton Ware 386

Bibliography 387

Index 411