

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	page
1 Introduction: the nature of material cultures	1
1.1 Cultures	2
1.2 Cultural similarities as reflecting degrees of interaction	8
1.3 Culture as reflecting behaviour	9
1.4 Conclusion	11
2 Ethnicity and symbolism in Baringo	13
2.1 The Baringo district (with F. Hivernel)	13
2.2 Field method	17
2.3 Material culture patterning	18
2.4 Conclusion	35
3 Maintaining the boundaries	37
3.1 Pottery production and distribution	37
3.2 Njemps stools	48
3.3 Hearth position	54
3.4 Conclusion	56
4 Disrupting the boundaries	58
4.1 Metal production and spears	59
4.2 Calabash decoration	68
4.3 Conclusion	73
5 Within the boundaries: age, sex and self-decoration	75
5.1 The dominance of older men	75
5.2 Age symbolism	77
5.3 Sex symbolism	83
5.4 Boundary maintenance and disruption	84
6 Hunter-gatherers and pastoralists on the Leroghi plateau	87
6.1 The Lonkewan Dorobo and Samburu	90
6.2 Artifact types	92
6.3 History and explanation	97
6.4 The maintenance of overt identities within tribes	102
6.5 Conclusion	103

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-10508-8 - Symbols in Action: Ethnoarchaeological Studies of Material Culture

Ian Hodder

Table of Contents

More information

viii	Contents
7	A state of symbiosis and conflict: the Lozi	105
7.1	Introduction	105
7.2	Present-day cultural patterning	111
7.3	Production and distribution	118
7.4	Status symbolism	119
7.5	Within-site patterning	122
8	Dirt, women and men: a study in the Nuba Mountains, Sudan	125
8.1	The Nuba	127
8.2	Regional patterning in material culture	134
8.3	Explanation of regional patterning	151
8.4	Within-site patterning: bone refuse	155
8.5	Other aspects of refuse	161
8.6	Burial	163
8.7	Aspects of design	170
8.8	Conclusion	181
9	Implications for archaeology	185
9.1	Cultures	186
9.2	Within-site artifact distribution	190
9.3	Settlement patterns	193
9.4	Burial	195
9.5	Exchange	202
9.6	Style	204
9.7	Social stratification	207
9.8	Conclusion	210
10	Conclusions and prospects	212
10.1	'Wholeness'	212
10.2	The particular historical context	215
10.3	Applying the contextual approach in archaeology	218
10.4	Summary and some further prospects	228
	Bibliography	230
	Index	239