

Contents

List of illustrations	page ix
Preface	xi
List of abbreviations	xviii
Glossary	xix
1 State domination in the transition to industrial capitalism
The synchronism of symbolic and physical force	1
Functions and modus operandi of state bureaucracies: the case of Prussia	9
The maintenance of state security and social order: 'citadel practice' as the model for official conduct	14
2 Bureaucracy as an apparatus of domination
The structures of power and officialdom after 1815	17
Modes of interpretation within the bureaucracy	20
Police I: The unity of security and welfare	22
Police II: The 'common good' and the bureaucratic power of definition	25
3 'Common good', property and 'honour'. The mediation of general and particular interests
'Common good': the articulation of interests and social intercourse	32
The 'mobilisation' of social resources: property and the interests of the propertied	34
Property and poverty: on the conditions of 'national welfare'	41
Poverty as an administrative problem: the crisis of domestic industry and the 'impudence' of the poor	45
Administrative 'honour' and private gain	52
The protection of property as the defence of order	64

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-11187-4 - Police and State in Prussia, 1815-1850

Alf Ludtke

Table of Contents

More informationviii Contents

4	The organs of coercion at work
	The police dominion	67
	The military dominion	131
5	Emergencies and the requisitioning of the military
	Riot control and the ‘protection of the state as a whole’	155
	Military intervention	160
	Case study: the ‘tumults’ and repression of the Krefeld silk-weavers, October–November 1828	166
	The pressure to act: violent intervention as the only alternative?	178
	Requisition of the military: the restoration of the military’s power of final say, 1820	180
6	Citadel practice – the pathology of bureaucratic experience in Prussia
	The guarantee of ‘public quiet, safety and order’ in everyday life	182
	‘Citadel practice’: the routinised violence of the bureaucracy	184
	‘Citadel practice’ as the ‘militarisation’ of the police and internal administration	190
	Aspects of international comparison: the Prusso-German Sonderweg	193
7	State violence, bureaucratic action and domination
	On the functionality of state violence	199
	State violence and ‘forms of habitus’	200
	State violence: symbolic and physical force	202
	Appendices	205
	Notes	217
	Bibliography	268
	Index	285