Acknowledgements

I wish to thank Professor Robert H. Cawley for his helpful remarks on a previous version of this book, when it still contained an abundance of logical formulae which would have been indigestible to a medical readership. My thanks are also due to Professor Stephan Körner who was kind enough to read this book in its almost final version. He has given me sound advice on the logical background of my argument. He is, however, not responsible for any formulations I finally chose as I wished to keep clear of many of the complexities and perplexities of logical thought in the interest of a presentation which, I hope, will be understandable to persons who are not versed in the special terminology of logical discourse.
