Contents

Abbreviations ix
Acknowledgements xvii
Note on proper names xix

Introduction 1

1 Byzantine civilization in Russia 9
   1 The Roman political tradition
   2 Translations from the Greek
   3 The Orthodox faith

2 The catastrophes of the thirteenth century 29
   1 Byzantium: death and resurrection
   2 The Mongols in the Middle East and in Europe

3 The Mongols, their Western neighbours and their 48
   Russian subjects
   1 The area of the Black Sea
   2 German Knights on the Baltic
   3 The rise of Lithuania
   4 Poland turns to the East
   5 The Mongols and their Russian subjects

4 The Metropolitanate of Kiev and all Russia 73
   1 Status and power of the metropolitan
   2 Episcopal elections
   3 Source of the metropolitan’s power: his appointment from Constantinople
   4 First challenges to unity

5 Victory of the Hesychasts in Byzantium: ideological 96 and political consequences
   1 Crisis in the Byzantine religious and cultural outlook
   2 The patriarchate of Constantinople: claims to universality

6 Cultural ties: Byzantium, the Southern Slavs 119 and Russia
   1 Nature and limits of the Byzantino-Russian literary ties: Renaissance, pre-Renaissance?
   2 Channels of communication
   3 Russian monasticism: St Sergius, St Stephen of Perm
   4 Hesychasm and art
Contents

7 Byzantium and Moscow
1 Byzantium and Moscow
2 Olgerd and Moscow

8 Patriarch Philotheos and Russia (1364–76)
1 Patriarch Philotheos
2 Dynastic strife in the Golden Horde and the rise of Moscow
3 The challenge of Poland and Lithuania

9 Metropolitan Cyprian and Moscow’s separatism (1376–81)
1 Byzantium, the Genoese and the Golden Horde
2 Mityai, Pimen, and Cyprian
3 The battle of Kulikovo

10 Lithuania turns westwards
1 Further instability in the metropolitanate
2 The Union of Krewo
3 Metropolitan Cyprian and the strengthening of Byzantine connections

Conclusion: dreams and reality

Appendices: Some translated sources
1 Emperor John VI Cantacuzenos restores the unity of the metropolitanate of Kiev and all Russia (August 1347)
2 Patriarch Philotheos affirms his universal authority and supports Metropolitan Alexis as regent of Muscovy (June 1370)
3 Enemies of Moscow excommunicated by patriarchate (June 1370)
4 The threat of King Casimir of Poland (1370)
5 The protest of Olgerd
6 Philotheos: evenhandedness is a condition of unity (1371)
7 After the death of Alexis: Cyprian and his monastic friends. Letter 1 to St Sergius (June 3, 1378)
8 Cyprian faces Moscow’s separatism: Letter 2 to St Sergius (June 23, 1378)
9 Constantinople in 1379; the Encomion of St Peter by Cyprian
10 Byzantine wavering: A) Moscow’s separatism partially vindicated by Patriarch Neilos in 1380
B) Unity restored and Cyprian vindicated by Patriarch Anthony (1389)

Index

viii