

Index

- Abel, T., 6n
 Aberbach, J. D., 40–1, 57
 acquiescence, see agreement response set acquiescent response set (ARS), see agreement response set
 Adams, H. E., 202
 Administration method for chief dispositional scales developed, or employed, herein 59–61, 63
 Adorno, T. W., 3, 9, 30n, 31n, 45n, 47n; see also authoritarian personality tendency aggregative analysis, 2–3 agreement response set (ARS), 31–63, 45–51 and esp. 201–5; and all-positive scales, 32–6, 201–3; Couch and Keniston's measure of ARS, 203–5; unable to influence scores on paired alternative scales, 50; and the California F scale, 45–8, 201–5; see also attitude and dispositional scale construction; psychological dispositions; response sets
 Aitkin, D., 22n, 178n alienation, as a felt sentiment of social estrangement, briefly defined, 10, 52; definition elaborated, 52–8, 128–9; discussed, 29–41 passim, 77–82, 84–8, 165–6; Alienation Scale: items, 60–1; method of administration and scoring, 59–60; method of construction, 185–91; statistical characteristics, 65, 87–9, 185–91, 194–5; criterion group validation, 191–2; internal cohesion, 66–7, 70–1; sub-scales of 65, 70; alienation triptych, 9–11 (esp. diagram at 10), 68, 73–6, 84–8; amongst intellectuals and students, 87–90; amongst the poor, 85–7; as social scepticism, 38–41; case studies of, 78–84; disparate character of, 77–8, 185–91; relation to anxiety, 9–11, 65–7, 73, 94–9; to authoritarian personality tendency, 66–7, 95–9; to agreement response set, 33–6; to ethnocentrism, 9–11, 66–7, 73–6, 94–9; to personality correlates, 85–90; to political attitudes, 127–49; to social desirability set, 38; previous research reviewed, 29–41; social incidence, 92–3; socialization into, 85; variations in correlation with other dispositions, 95–8; whether or not plural in character, 38–9, 51–2, 56–8, 66–7; see also anomia: psychological dispositions; reification; student alienation all-positive scales, described and discussed, 31–5, 201–5; see also agreement response set; attitude and dispositional scale construction; California F scale; psychological dispositions alienation 'triptych', 9–11
 anomia (here, synonymous with personal 'anomie', 'anomy'), 33–6, 53
 anomie, see anomia
 anomy, see anomia
 'answer-system', spuriously proffered by varieties of ethnocentrism, esp. anti-Semitism, 75–6 anti-intracception, defined, 30; see also authoritarian personality tendency; ethnocentrism anti-Semitism, in the Nazi imagination, 5, 75–6, 166–72; as an element in ethnocentrism, 58–9, 64, 70, 192, 197; see also ethnocentrism; Jewish communities, as targets for irrational hostility anxiety, characterization of type of anxiety associated with the Cattell measure, 59; modification of the Cattell measure, 59; method of administration, 59–60; statistical characteristics of the modified Cattell scale, 197; sub-sentiments, 71; as a disposition within a system, 9–11; disparate

Index

- character of, 77–8, 187–91; relation to agreement response set, 46–8, 202–4; to social desirability set, 70–2; to alienation, 9–11, 64–7, 73, 88–90, 95–9, 186–91; to authoritarian personality tendency, 66–7, 203–4; to ethnocentrism, 66–70; to neuroticism, 87–9; to political sentiment, 126–49, passim; social incidence, 94–5; variations in correlation with other dispositions, 95–6; see also 'intra-punitive' anxiety; 'extra-punitive' anxiety; physiological symptoms of anxiety; psychological dispositions
- Armstrong, D. B., 33, 92
- attitude and dispositional scale construction, 4, 9, 41; canons of, 50–2; discussed, 42–67, passim; exemplified, 185–200; see also agreement response set; alienation; anxiety; authoritarian personality tendency; California F scale; ethnocentrism; political attitudes; psychological dispositions; reliability estimates; validation
- Australia, politics of, 13–28, passim; federal parliamentary system of government, 14, 18–20; monarchy, 15, 27–8; economy, 16–17; social structure, 17, 24–6; industrial relations, 20; attitudes to partisan politics, 17–18; political stability, 14, 16–18; war, attitudes to, 14–15, 22–5; electoral system, 21; federal elections of 1963 and 1966, 21–2; political parties, 13–16, 19–25; leading political figures, 13, 21–5, 27; ethnocentrism within, decline of, 25–6; as an immigrant polity, 25–7; relation to the United States, 15, 21–2, 27–8; relation to the United Kingdom, 14–16, 21, 25–8; see also psychological dispositions; political attitudes
- authoritarian personality tendency, briefly defined, 30–1; closely defined and discussed (by phenotypical and genotypical characterization), 45–8, 66–7, 70–3, 185–91, 195–6, 204–5; Authoritarianism Scale: items, 61–3; method of administration and scoring, 59–60; method of construction, 185–91; statistical characteristics, 185–91, 195–6; discussion of, 66–7; sub-scales of, 70; validation of, 42, 195–6; authoritarianism of the 'left', 30–1; California F scale and other measures, 31–2, 45–50; corruption of research into authoritarian tendency, 31–2, 45–8, 201–5; deflection of, 160–1; disparate character of, 187–91; in small group situations, 150–60; amongst Catholics, 33, 92, 98; moral control of, 160–1; negative and positive scoring, merits of, 162–3; relation to agreement response set, 31–6, 45–50, 201–5; to alienation, 30–1, 66–7, 72–3, 91; to anxiety, 66–7, 70–2, 204–5; to ethnocentrism, 30–1, 33–7, 66–7, 72–3, 91; to political sentiment, 32–3, 37–8, 126–49; previous research reviewed, 29–41; social incidence, 32, 90–2; spasmodic authoritarianism, 161–2; variations in correlation with other dispositions, 95–8; see also California F scale; psychological dispositions
- Bacon, (Sir) Francis, 1
- balanced scales, 32, 48–50; see also attitude and dispositional scale construction; psychological dispositions
- Banfield, E. C., 86
- bargaining, oblique, with political opinions, exemplified, 150–7; discussed, 157–61
- Bass, B. M., 49
- behaviouralism, 4–9
- Bell, D., 84
- Bergin, T. G., 53n
- Berkowitz, N. H., 49–50
- Bettelheim, B., 86
- Blauner, R., 52
- Block, J., 202
- Bock, R. D., 31, 201n
- Bogardus scale, 33
- Bosch, Hieronymus, 170
- Brandt, Willy, West German Chancellor, 173
- California F scale, 4, 31, 36, 45–50; substantial extrinsic contamination of scores by agreement response set probable, 46; consequential corruption of research into authoritarian personality tendency, 46–8, 201–3; substantive significance thereof, 204–5; other weaknesses of the F scale, 92; see also authoritarian personality tendency; attitude and dispositional construction
- Campbell, A., 32, 205
- Campbell, D. T., 202

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-13645-7 - Psychology and the Political Experience

Alan Hughes

Index

More informationIndex

- Campbell, E., 31n
 capital gains tax, an isolated issue of political policy, 103, 105, 120–1; factorial relation to other issues, tabulated, 198–9 capital punishment, 32, 37–8, 103, 108, 110, 116–17, 131–2, 147, 155–60, 165, 198–200; see also conscience radicalism
 Catholic Action, in contradistinction to ‘action of Catholics’, defined, 23n
 Catholics, in politically diverse groups, 13, 23–4, 106, 120, 133; and authoritarianism, 33, 92
 Cattell, R. B., his IPAT Anxiety scale (modified), employed, 59, 65, 69–70, 94, 186; factorial characteristics of the scale items, 71, 187–91; standardisation data of the modified scale, 197; the 16 Personality Factor Questionnaire employed, 88–90; see also anxiety
 Certcov, D., views applauded, 39, 56–7
 Chapman, L. J., 31, 202
 chi-square test, of statistical significance, 69n, 182
 Christie, R., 31n, 49
 civil liberties, see libertarianism cluster analysis, 37, 181
 Collingwood, R. G., on statistical research, 9
 Communism, perceived as a threat, 23–5, 27, 113–15; relation of its perception as a threat to psychological variables, 138–9, 156; see also defence leftism conscience radicalism, identified by cluster analysis, 37; by factor analysis, and construction of index for, 198–9; items and response splits, 100–4, passim; scoring procedure, 107; statistical characteristics, when items grouped as an index, 200; discussed as a dimension of political radicalism, 5, 37–8, 100, 104–11; sociological correlates, sparse, 116–17; psychological correlates, marked, 126–32; diagrams of factorial relations with other political variables, 108, 110; political correlations tabulated, 107, 111; correlations within social classes, 121, and the political public, 123; these discussed, 107–25; variations in correlation with psychological variables by social class and education, tabulated, 140, 141, discussed, 139–49; psychological causal frame diagram, 147; summary of psychological relationships, 164–6; see also political attitudes construct validation of questionnaire measurement scales, see validation of attitude and dispositional scales, esp. conceptual reference contextual analysis of attitudes, necessity of, 7–9; account of political context, 13–28; discussion of, 171–2
 Converse, P. E., 32, 205n
 Cook, P., 31n
 correction for attenuation (of correlation coefficients), briefly described, 183; employed, 110–11, 130, 132, 133, 136
 correlational analysis, briefly described, 182, discussion of, 68–9; critically important correlational tables, for chief dispositional constructs, 66, for political attitudes, 107, 111, 121, 123, for both, 130–4, 136; see also correction for attenuation; shared variance, significance, statistical; statistics
 Coser, L. A., 53n
 Couch, A., 49n, 203–4
 Crisp, L. F., 19
 criterion groups, in scale construction, 43, 51, 191–2;
see also validation
 culture of poverty, conceptual outline, 85–6; relation to traditionally poor societies, 186; in psychological aspects related to the ‘alienation triptych’, 11, 85–6
 Dahrendorf, R., 173
 danger of external attack on Australia, little apprehension of, 14–15, 25, 113; relation to psychological variables, 138; see also defence leftism
 Davidoff, M. D., 68n, 182n
 Davies, A. F., 14, 19, 20n
 Dean, D. G., 35
 deductive method, 1 defence leftism, identified by factor analysis, and construction of index for, 198–9; items and response splits, 100–4, passim; scoring procedure, 107; statistical characteristics, when items grouped as an index, 200; discussed as a dimension of political radicalism, 100, 104–11; few sociological or

Index

- psychological correlates, seemingly uniquely 'political', 117–18, 126–30, 132–4; diagrams of factorial relations with other political variables, 109, 110; political correlations tabulated, 107, 111; correlations within social classes, 121, and the political public, 123; these discussed, 107–25; variations in correlation with psychological variables by social class and education, tabulated, 140, 141; discussed, 139–49; psychological causal frame diagram, 147; summary of psychological relationships, 164–6; see also political attitudes
- defence mechanisms, unconscious, associated with authoritarian personality tendency, 30, 70–3; see also genotypical characterization, of authoritarian personality tendency; ethnocentrism; anti-intracception; projectivity; reaction-formation; stereotypical thinking
- defence stratagem, ethnocentrism as a, 30; see also authoritarian personality tendency; ethnocentrism
- determinism in social science, condemned, 6–9, 28, 127–8, 132, 174–5
- Dicken, C., 201
- Dicks, H., 30
- differences in correlations, testing significance of, 69n, 184
- Dillehay, R. C., 33, 45n, 204
- dimensions of radicalism, see political attitudes; political radicalism, dimensions of
- dispositions, psychological, see psychological dispositions
- Djilas, Milovan, 172
- dogmatism, 203; see also Rokeach, M.
- Durkheim, Emile, 53; see also anomia
- Edwards, A. L., 68n
- electricity, illustrating the development of a concept, 44
- empirical procedures, desirability and character of, 1, 6–9, 11–12; often brutal, 11–12; see also method in the social sciences; political attitudes; political psychology; psychological dispositions
- Encel, S., 14, 20n
- English, A. C., 58, 165n
- English, H. B., 58, 165n
- 218
- epistemology of socio-psychological concepts, 44–5; a fiasco discussed, 45–8, 201–5; see also attitude and dispositional scale construction; method in the social sciences; psychological dispositions
- Erikson, E. H., 172
- ersatz* identification, 73, 81
- 'established' socio-economic radicalism, see socio-economic radicalism, 'new' and 'established'
- ethnocentrism, briefly defined, 9–10; closely defined, 58; as a disposition within a system, 9–11, 66–7; amongst students, 88–9, amongst the poor, 85–6; Ethnocentrism Scale: items, 63–4; method of administration and scoring, 59–60; method of construction, 58–9, 185–91, subscales of, 70; construct validation, 58–9, 192–4; disparate character of, 185–91; relation to Adolf Hitler's imagined world, 166–72; to alienation, 9–11, 66–7, 73–6, 94–9; to authoritarian personality tendency, 30–1, 33–7, 66–7, 72–3, 91; to anxiety, 66–70; to political sentiment and action, 73–6, 126–49; social incidence, 93–4; variations in correlation with other dispositions, 95–8; see also attitude and dispositional scale construction; anti-Semitism; Jewish communities, as targets for irrational hostility; prejudice; psychological dispositions
- 'extra-punitive' anxiety, esp. in relation to authoritarianism, 71–3; see also anxiety; Cattell, R. B.; genotypical characterization, of authoritarian personality tendency
- extreme response set, means of avoiding scale score contamination by, 50
- Eysenck, H. J., method in political psychology deplored, 8–9, 32; the Eysenck measures of neuroticism, extraversion and lying, employed, 41, 87–90; Maudsley Personality Inventory (MPI) not influenced by agreement response set, 202
- Eysenck, S. B. G., measures developed in association with Eysenck, H. J., employed, 41, 87–90
- factor analysis, described, 181, 183; employed, 5, 35–6, 51–2, 64–6, 100, 187–90, 198–9; represented diagrammatically (alienation and anxiety item

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-13645-7 - Psychology and the Political Experience

Alan Hughes

Index

More informationIndex

- loadings), 78, (the dimensions of political radicalism), 108–10; see also cluster analysis; principal components analysis; varimax factor analytical procedures
- Ferguson, G. A., 69n
- Feuerbach, Ludwig, conception of alienation ('reification'), 53; see also reification
- Fingerspitzengefühl* (lit., finger-tip sensation; fig., intuitive comprehension of a social climate) 6; see also intuition; Verstehen
- Fisch, M. H., 53n
- Fisher z, transformation test, 69n, 184
- Frenkel-Brunswik, E., 3, 47; see also authoritarian personality tendency
- Free Democrats (in the German Federal Republic), 173–4
- Fromm, E., 30, 56; an alternative to his conjectural basis for the volatility of lower-middle-class ethnocentrism proposed, 96–8
- Fruchter, B., 181
- frustration-aggression, as a mechanism connecting alienation with ethnocentrism, 74
- game-playing, oblique, in conversational transactions, 150–60
- Gay, P., 167n
- Geiger, T., 98n
- Geisteswissenschaftliche Psychologie* (lit., cultural science psychology), 9
- Gemeinschaft* (a fraternal community), 55
- generalization of mistrust, as a mechanism connecting alienation with ethnocentrism, 73
- genotypical characterization, of authoritarian personality tendency, 30, 46–8, 68–73, 185–91, 204–5
- Germany, 5, 12, 73–6, 166–74
- Gesellschaft* (organization characterized by instrumental, as opposed to fraternal, bonds) 55
- Goffman, E., 55
- Goheen, H. W., 68n, 182n
- Goldthorpe, H. J., 52
- Goldwater, Barry, U.S. Senator, as presidential candidate, 40
- Goot, M., 13
- government aid to church schools, an isolated issue of political policy, 101, 106, 120; factorial relation to other issues tabulated, 198–9
- Graham, B. D., 21n
- Greenstein, F. I., on method in the psychology of politics, 2, 6, 8, 167; on substance, 6n, 159–60
- Guilford, J. P., 68n, 181
- Gusfield, J. R., 98
- Hammond, S. B., 26n
- Hancock, (Sir) Keith, 13
- hanging, see capital punishment
- 'hard' data, discussed, 41, 171; see also attitude and dispositional scale construction; method in the social sciences; political psychology; psychological dispositions
- Harman, H. H., 70n, 181
- Harper, R. J. A., 17n
- Hathaway, S. R., 201n
- Havel, J., 49n
- Hegel, Georg, 53
- Hilberg, R., 168
- Himmelweit, H. T., 74n
- Hitler, Adolf, private ruminations, illustrating nature and centrality of Nazi anti-Semitism, 168–71
- Horne, D., 13, 15
- Huck, A., 26n
- Hughes, A., (author), 22n, 36–8, 46n, 201n
- Hughes, C. A., 21n, 22n
- idiographic analysis, (of particularities in a situation), 4, 6–9; stressed as a necessity 4, 28, 43; complementary to nomothetic analysis (of generalities), 12, 43–4, 166–7, 171–2, 174–5
- imaginative inhibition, apparently imposed upon a culture, 172–3
- immigration programmes, hazardous during specifiable periods, 174
- individual case study technique, discussed, 2–3, 12; exemplified, 78–84; see also 'John'; 'Patrick'
- intention, 7–9, 127–8, 132, 173–4
- 'intra-punitive' anxiety, esp. in relation to authoritarian personality tendency, 71; see also anxiety; Cattell, R. B.; genotypical characterization, authoritarian personality tendency
- intuition, 1, 6–7, 171
- Israel, J., 39.
- Jahoda, M., 31n

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-13645-7 - Psychology and the Political Experience

Alan Hughes

Index

More informationIndex

- Jenkins, W. L., 68n, 182n
- Jewish communities, as targets for irrational hostility, 74–6, 167–72; realistically appraised, in Weimar Germany, 167–8, in contemporary Australia, 58–9, 193
- 'John', an individual case study in high subjective alienation, 78–82, 84, 86–8, 127, 165–6
- Johnson, Lyndon, President of the United States, 22, 40, 154
- Jupp, J., 20, 59
- Kahan, M., 178n
- Kamenka, E., 53n
- Keniston, K., 49n, 203–4, 84–5, 88n, 203–4
- Kirby, A. C., 202
- Kirkpatrick, S. A., 40n
- Kirscht, J. P., 33, 45n, 204
- Kish, L., 104n, 178n
- Knöpfelmacher, F., 33, 92
- Lafitte, Gabriel, 78n
- Lafitte, P., on epistemology, in the social sciences, 7
- Laski, H. J., 87n
- Lasswell, H. D., on methodological strategy, in political psychology, 2
- 'left' (and 'right') in political attitudes, use of a single dimension seemingly untenable, 37, 104–11; its use exemplified, 8n, 100n; see political attitudes; political radicalism, dimensions of
- 'left' authoritarianism, 30–1; see also authoritarian personality tendency
- Levinson, D. J., 3; see also authoritarian personality tendency
- Lewis, O., 85–6; see also culture of poverty
- libertarianism, items and response splits, 111–12; scoring procedure, 112; statistical characteristics of items when grouped as an index, 200; sentiment discussed and sociological correlates elaborated, 118–19; relations to dimensions of political radicalism tabulated, within social classes, 121, within the 'political public', 123; these discussed, 109–25; psychological correlates tabulated, 134, 136, these discussed 134–7; variations in correlation with psychological variables by social class and education, tabulated, 140–1; discussed, 126–8, 139–49; in social interaction, 150–61; psychological causal frame diagram, 147; summary of psychological relationships, 164–6
- Lipset, S. M., 14, 32
- lower-middle-class ethnocentrism, volatility of, demonstrated and discussed, 96–8
- Lutterman, K. G., 40
- McBride, L., 203
- McCandless, B., 31n
- McCary, J. L., 72n
- McClosky, H., 5n, 36
- McDill, E. H., 34–5
- McKinley, J. C., 201n
- Mannheim, Karl, 55
- Marx, Karl, 53, 54, 87
- Maudsley Personality Inventory, 202
- May, R. D., 19n
- Mayer, H., 23n
- meaningless, feeling of, 34–5, 37, 54–5, 65, 185, 191–2; and anxiety 42, 57; this relationship tabulated, 65; discussed, 73, 77–8, 86–90; see also alienation
- measurement, of attitudes, disposition or sentiments, usefulness of, 42–4; resemblance to use of language, 11–12; methodological canons for, 50–2; see also attitude and dispositional scale construction; political attitudes; psychological dispositions
- mechanisms connecting psychological dispositions with each other, 72–6; with political sentiment, 126–49; theoretical considerations, 6–9, 126–8, 159–61, 166–7, 171–2, 174–5
- Medding, P. Y., 58
- Melville, Herman, 86
- Merton, R., 53, 55
- method in the social sciences, esp. political psychology, 1–12; case for psychological analysis in politics, 28–30, 42–4, 166–72; canons for the measurement of constructs, 50–2; 'hard' data, 41, 171; accommodation of intention and self-awareness, 126–8; summary of issues in method, 164–75; see also attitude and dispositional scale construction; individual case study technique; political psychology; Verstehen
- Middleton, R., 40
- Miller, J. D. B., 20
- Miller, W. E., 32, 205n
- Minnesota Multiphasic Personality In-

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-13645-7 - Psychology and the Political Experience

Alan Hughes

Index

More informationIndex

- ventory (MMPI), 201–2
- moral control authoritarian personality tendency, discussed, 160–1; exemplified, 155
- moral indignation, and politics, 98n
- Moran, G., 203
- Murray, R. A., 23n
- Nazism, 5, 12, 30, 73–6, 166–72; see also anti-Semitism
- Neal, A. G., 20, 56
- 'negative Weltanschauung' (dim worldview), see McDill, E. H.; reification
- Nettler, G., 36n
- neuroticism, and alienation, 41, 88–90; see also Eysenck, H. J., and Eysenck, S. B. G.
- 'new' socio-economic radicalism, see socio-economic radicalism, 'new' and 'established'
- Nixon, Richard, President of the United States, 80
- nomothetic analysis (to do with generalizations), 6–9; methodologically prior to individual case-study analysis, 43–4; abortive nomothetic analysis of a dispositional construct discussed, 44–8, 204–5; resultant pessimism exemplified, 45–6; central nomothetic propositions of relation of dispositional influences to political attitudes in the Australian urban context summarized, 165–6; complementary nature of idiographic analysis, 167, 171–2, 174–5
- normlessness, (lack of moral order), when felt to be prevalent in a society, 35–7, 53–5, exemplified, 79–82; amongst children of the poor, 85; and anxiety, 65; see also alienation
- Norton, J., 46
- nuclear types, 2
- Oeser, O. A., 26n
- ontology of socio-psychological concepts, criteria for disparate status, 77; an illustration, 77–8
- Overacker, L., 20
- paired-alternative attitude scale items and scales, 42, 48–52; paired-alternative Alienation, Authoritarianism and Ethnocentrism Scales, 60–4; standardization data for these, 194–7; see also agreement response set; attitude and dispositional scale construction; psychological dispositions
- paranoid schizophrenia, and alienation, 99
- parsimony, in humane studies, 7
- Parsons, T., 53
- partial correlations, argument for a use of, 57; employed, 65, 69–70, 186–7
- 'Patrick', an individual case study in low subjective alienation, 82–4
- Peabody, D., 45–6, 50, 203, 205
- Pear, T. H., 74n
- Pettit, L. K., 40n
- phenotypical characterization, of dispositional constructs, 42–5; of authoritarian personality tendency, 45–8, 61–3, 67, 195–6
- phi correlation coefficient, 182
- physiological symptoms of anxiety, disparate clustering of, 71; see also anxiety; Cattell, R. B.
- political attitudes, 4–5; not regarded as epiphenomenal, 6–9, 125; treated discursively, 13–28; statistically analysed and discussed, 100–25; factorial structure displayed diagrammatically, 108–10; political attitude indices, construction method for, 198–200; scoring method for 107–113; standardization data for, 199–200; variations in inter-correlation, 121–3; relation to psychological dispositions explored, 126–66; centrality of anti-Semitism to Nazism, 166–72; see also conscience radicalism; defence leftism; libertarianism; socio-economic radicalism; political psychology; political radicalism, dimensions of; psychological dispositions
- political party electoral choice, 16–25; political and sociological correlates, 100–25, passim; psychological correlates, 126–49, esp. 128–9
- political perceptions, (here, perceived political situations), 113–15, 119–20; correlations with psychological dispositions, 137–9; bizarre perceptions, in Germany during the Nazi period, 74–6, 166–72
- political psychology, 1–9, 20–30 and 126–75, passim; necessity of, in macro-political analysis, on occasion, illus-

Index

- trated, 166–72; see also aggregative analysis; attitude and dispositional scale construction; contextual analysis; correlational analysis; determinism; idiographic analysis; individual case study technique; intention; method in the social sciences; nomothetic analysis; parsimony; political attitudes; psychological dispositions; small groups; Verstehen
- political radicalism, dimensions of, 37, 100–25, passim, esp. figurative representations of these, at 108–10; construction of political indices and presentation of standardization data, 198–200; items and response splits, 100–4; psychological causal frame diagram, 147; see also conscience radicalism; defence leftism; socio-economic radicalism, ‘new’ and ‘established’; libertarianism; political attitudes
- political science, note on variety in method, 174–5; see also method in the social sciences; political psychology
- positional response set, 50, 67, 188
- poverty, perceived as a social problem, 17, 113, 119–20; relation to psychological variables, 9–11, 84–6, 137
- powerlessness, subjectively felt, 33–41, 54, 65, 70–1, 92–3; exemplified, 79–82; and anxiety, 11–13, 65, 73, 90; see also alienation
- prediction of socio-political phenomena, uncertainty of, 174–5
- prejudice, ethnic, defined, 37; discussed, 58–9, 192–4; see also ethnocentrism
- Price, C. A., 58
- principal components analysis, described, 70–1; employed, 187, 190–1; outcome discussed, 70–2; see also factor analysis; varimax factor analytical procedures
- product-moment correlation coefficient (Pearson r), 182; significance levels of, 68n; see also correlational analysis
- projectivity, defined, 30; see also authoritarian personality tendency; ethnocentrism
- psychic isolation, see social isolation
- psychological dispositions, defined and discussed, 1–3, 126–8; deflection of the influence of, 33, 92, 157–61; first-order interrelations demonstrably various, 95–8; in explanation of macro-politics, 166–72; in small groups, 150–61; purpose of measurement of, 42–4; logic of measurement of, 11–12, 44–5, 50–2; relation to political sentiment, 126–49, esp. diagram at 147; review of previous research, 30–41; see also alienation; anxiety; attitude and dispositional scale construction; authoritarian personality tendency; ethnocentrism
- Pulzer, P. G. S., 171n
- quartile scores, defined, 184; a possible use of negative values discussed, 161–3
- radicalism, strictly construed, discussed, 16–18, 20–1, 100–4, passim; but see political radicalism, dimensions of
- Rank, O., 86
- Ranulf, S., 98
- Ray, J. J., 41
- reaction-formation, as a mechanism connecting alienation with ethnocentrism, 73; see also ersatz identification
- reductionist analysis, see determinism; political attitudes
- reification, as a philosophical error (treating of a non-thing as a thing), exemplified, 35; discussed in relation to alienation, 39, 57–8, 64–7, and esp. 77–8; in relation to four dispositions held to be disparate, 51–2, 66–7, 187–91; as a form of human estrangement from ‘valid’ experience, (the tyranny over man of malignant ideas), 53, 84, 98n
- Reitlinger, G., 170n
- reliability estimates, by parallel forms method, of dispositional scales, expressed statistically, 194–7; discussed, 5, 126; by test-retest method, for the Alienation Scale, 192; of political indices, by split-half method, expressed statistically, 199–20, discussed, 110, 126, 136; see also political attitudes; psychological dispositions; validation
- response sets, 50–1; see also agreement response set; extreme response set; social desirability set; positional response set
- Rettig, S., 35, 56–7
- ‘right’ (and ‘left’) politics; see ‘left’ (and ‘right’) in political attitudes
- Roberts, A., 34

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-13645-7 - Psychology and the Political Experience

Alan Hughes

Index

More informationIndex

- Roberts, (Sir) Stephen, 168n
- Rokeach, M., 34, 203
- Rorer, L. G., views on agreement response set contamination contested, 45–6
- Rosenberg, B., 53n
- Ross, Brian, research collaborator, 191–2
- Rotter, J. B., 38–40
- samples, captive, usefulness of, 43, 51–2; limitations of, 43; as criterion groups, discussed, 43, 51–2; a use of, 191–2; see also validation
- samples, non-random, meaning of significance levels within, 177–8
- samples, subject of empirical surveys herein, 177–80, 185; representativeness of major urban sample, tabulated, 179–80; social projections from internal characteristics, 180; see also samples, non-random
- sampling, by stratified clusters, 178
- Sanford, F. H., 32
- Sanford, R. N., 3; see also authoritarian personality tendency
- Santamaria, B. A., as political commentator, 23n
- Saunders, D. R., 89n
- Schaar, J. H., 36
- Schuman, F. L., 89n
- Schutz, A., 6
- Schutzstaffeln* (Nazi ‘black guards’; often contracted to SS), 75, 170
- scoring method of chief psychological dispositional scales developed herein, 59–60; of political attitude scales, 107, 113; standardization data, attaching to the dispositional scales, 194–7; to the political and libertarianism indices, 199–200
- Seeman, M., 37, 39, 54
- Seidenberg, B., 49n
- self-awareness, in relation to psychological dispositions, 126–8
- self-estrangement, sentiment of, 56, 66, 185; exemplified, 81; see also alienation
- shared surface content of disparate scales (as a possible, misleading source of covariance) 72, 134–5
- shared variance estimates, method described, 182–3; an application, 96–8
- Sheil, B., research collaborator, 88–90
- Shils, E. A., 30–1
- Siegmán, A. W., 31n
- significance, statistical, defined and discussed, 181–2; in relation to correlation coefficients, 68–9; in relation to differences in correlation, 184, 68n; confidence levels adopted throughout herein, 65, 68n; see also chi-square test; Fisher z , transformation test; samples, non-random
- single-statement attitude scale items, lack of clarity, 48–9
- small groups, interaction within, 150–7; hypotheses arising from observation of, 157–63
- Smith, M. Brewster, 8, 165n
- social class distinctions, in Australia, 20–1, 24–5, 151–60; working-class idiomatic speech exemplified, 78–84; middle-class idiomatic speech exemplified, 151–6
- social critique, and alienation, 39, 81, 86–8, 99
- Social Democrats (in the German Federal Republic), 173–4
- social desirability set, 38, 50–1; possible influence on relation of F scale scores to anxiety scale scores, 71
- social isolation, 33–40, 53–5, 65, 71, 185; and anxiety, 65; see also alienation
- social mobility, upward, as a solvent of dispositional influence on political opinion, 157–60
- social rejection, of the person, psychological consequences, exemplified and discussed, 79–82, 152–3, 155–60; see also alienation
- socio-economic factors, seen to bear on political attitudes and action, 16–18, 29; see also socio-economic radicalism; political attitudes
- socio-economic radicalism, ‘new’ and ‘established’, differentiation of ‘new’ and ‘established’ radicalism in 1963, 37; apparent absorption of ‘new’ radicalism in general (‘established’) socio-economic radicalism by 1966, 104–5, 198–9; items and response splits for ‘established’ socio-economic radicalism, 100–4; scoring procedure, 107; statistical characteristics when grouped as an index, 199; discussed as a dimension of political radicalism, 104–11; sociological correlates, 115–6;

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-13645-7 - Psychology and the Political Experience

Alan Hughes

Index

More informationIndex

- diagrams of factorial relations with other political variables, 108, 109; political correlations tabulated, 107, 111; relationships within social classes, 121; and the political public, 123; these discussed, 104–25; psychological correlates, tabulated, 130, discussed, 126–31; variations in correlation with psychological variables by social class and education, tabulated, 140, 141; discussed, 139–49; psychological cause frame diagram, 147; summary of psychological relationships, 164–6; see also political attitudes
- Srole, L., 3, 33–4, 36
- standardization data, and item characteristics, for the psychological measurement scales developed or used in modified form herein, 192, 194–7; for political indices, 199–200
- statistical errors, technical, Types I and II, defined, 69n
- statistics, usefulness in social science, 11–12; brief guide to techniques, 181–4; see also measurement; method in the social sciences; nomothetic analysis
- stereotypical thinking, as a defence mechanism, 30; illustrated, 155, 167–71; see also authoritarian personality tendency; ethnocentrism
- Stice, G., 89n
- Stokes, D. E., 32, 205n
- student alienation, personality correlates, 87–90; surprising persistence (in a sophisticated sample) of correlation with ethnocentrism, 88–9; lack of correlation between Alienation Scale scores and Eysenck Lie scale scores, 87–9
- Sturmabteilungen* (lit., 'storm troops'; Nazi street soldiers), 73–4
- structure of interrelations between psychological dispositions and political attitudes, 126–49; central causal diagram, 147; variations in correlation, by social class and education, tabulated, 140, 141; variations discussed, 139–47; see also psychological dispositions; political attitudes; political radicalism, dimensions of; libertarianism
- Sutton, A. J., 41
- target groups, on to which ethnocentric aggression may be discharged, 9–10, 37, 58–9, 73–6, 84–9, 167–9, 192–4
- Taylor, J. A., 202; Taylor Manifest Anxiety Scale, (TMAS), 202
- Tebbutt, Geoffrey, 28n
- temperance and prohibition movements, in the U.S., as 'expressive' politics, 98n
- tendencies, central, stressed to be not absolute in character, 11; see also nomothetic analysis
- tetrachoric correlation coefficient, characteristics, method for rapid calculation of estimate of, 68n, 182, significance levels of 68n; see also correlational analysis
- Trevor-Roper, H. R., 169n
- Truman, T., 23n, 100n
- typological study technique, 2–3; employed, 78–84, 168–71; see also individual case study technique
- validation of attitude and dispositional scales, by cluster analysis, 37; by criterion group scores, 43, 191–2; by conceptual reference (construct validation) 44–59, 192–4; by disparate factorial structure, 187–91, 198–9; in company with functional differentiation, 77–8; by internal cohesion of items, 185–90, 194–200, by predictive success, 43, perils thereof, 204–5; see also attitude and dispositional scale construction; political attitudes; psychological dispositions; reliability estimates
- variations in correlations between psychological dispositions and political attitudes, tabulated, at 95, 96, 121, 123, 159; discussed seriatim thereafter, and, more generally, at 124–5, 146–7, 164–6
- varimax factor analytical procedures, briefly described, 181, 183; employed, esp. at 187–91, 198–9
- Verstehen* (insightful understanding) seen as obligatory in social science method, 6–9, 128–9, 164–75; seen as the mandatory outcome of sociopolitical analysis, 149
- Vico, Giambattista, on urban alienation, 53–4
- Vietnam war, 15, 22, 27, 80–1, 101, 106, 108–10, 114–5, 117–118, 132–4, 198–200; see also defence leftism

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-13645-7 - Psychology and the Political Experience

Alan Hughes

Index

More informationIndex

- Wangh, M., 167n
Weimar Republic (of Germany), 12,
148–9, 166–72
White Australia policy, opinions on,
37–8, 102, 108, 110, 147, 155, 157–61;
few social correlates, 116–7; psychological correlates, 131–2; see also conscience radicalism
Wiggins, N., 51n
Wolkon, G. H., 49–50
Zeman, Z. A. B., 74n
Zuckerman, M., 46