GENERAL PREFACE TO THE SERIES

The Major European Authors series, as the name implies, considers the most important writers of the European literatures, most often giving a volume to each author, but occasionally treating a group or a genre. The basic assumption is that the general reader and the student will be able to find information on biography and literary history fairly easily elsewhere. What he will look for in this series is a single volume which gives a critical survey of the entire œuvre or the most important works. Authors of books in the series are asked to keep this general objective in mind: to write critical introductions which will help the reader to order his impressions of the works of art themselves; to assume little prior knowledge, and so far as possible either to quote in English or to translate quotations.

It is hoped that the series will help to keep the classics of European literature alive and active in the minds of present-day readers: both those reading for a formal literary examination, and those who in the original languages and in translation wish to keep in touch with the culture of Europe.
